First War, Then Billions.
Platinum in Alaska.
Life's Ups and Downs.
Dangerous Taxations.

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WHEN THE next war starts the United States government, before jumping into the game, will perhaps turn back to the cost of our late war. Figures published yesterday show that the relief of veterans costs the country now a thousand million dollars a year. Two billions more is called for by the pending bonus bill.

THE VETERANS' relief consumed 41 per cent of the 1931 income tax and will consume more than all of the income tax of 1932. As years pass the cost will increase. Veterans' relief will amount to two billion dollars a year 10 years from now. It costs taxpayers today more than the Army and Navy combined.

Every dollar that the government owes the veterans should be paid loyally.

But veteran relief bills should be borne in mind when the next war comes.

ON THE KODIAK Island, off the coast of Alaska, live the kodiak bears, biggest in the world. A few go to shoot them and have the pleasure of telling about it afterwards.

Southwest of Kodiak Island lies Chirikoff Island, and if news from there is verified, thousands will rush to Chirikoff for one going to Kodiak.

Jack McCord is believed to have discovered on Chirikoff deposits of platinum, more precious than gold.

IT WAS A fortunate day for the United States when Seward bought Alaska for eight million dollars. Russia was tired of the place, having killed off the sea otters that supplied the finest fur for Russian noblemen's coats.

There is no knowing how many hundreds of times we may get back our eight million dollars from Alaska's treasures, besides adding a great empire to our territory.

NO IMAGINATION can exaggerate the strangeness of life's ups and downs. In New York a certain Frenchman used to have luncheon in a little restaurant above Chambers street with Raymond, of the Times, Horace Greeley and Albert Brisbane.

The Frenchman always made the salad, and Greeley said to Albert Brisbane one day, after luncheon:

"That Frenchman is fool enough to think he will be emperor of the French some day."

When Albert Brisbane saw him later, in Paris, his name was Napoleon Third, and he was emperor of the French.

DE VALERA, CONDEMNED to death by the Irish government a little while ago, is now head of the Irish government. His Spanish father gave dancing lessons for a living. De Valera, for his amusement is now giving dancing lessons to the British lion.

He promises to abolish the oath of allegiance to King George, and Ireland will no longer pay to England principal or interest for the millions of pounds that England advanced to buy Ireland's land from the landlords for the peasants.

Whether it would be wise for Ireland thus to put herself outside of the family of assorted British nations is for the Irish to decide.

MONEY MUST come from somewhere, and it seems ungracious to attack any of the "good ideas" that Congressmen dig up. It may seem especially strange to utter anything but praise of taxes on Wall Street transactions, since many have an idea that Wall Street gambling is largely responsible for our troubles.

Nevertheless, there is no doubt that the peace of mind of millions, and, what is far more important, the values of bonds and other securities held by savings banks and life insurance companies, depend a great deal on the prices at which securities are quoted on the stock exchange.

The threat of taxation there has caused values to fall off about three billions of dollars already. If that situation is really as dangerous as is alleged, Mr. Mills, head of the Treasury, will know how to make the facts clear to Congressmen.

A LITTLE while ago Marconi managed to send faint signals across the Atlantic Ocean. Now he and everybody else can talk around the world. Television interests him today. He says:

"I expect soon to be able to see my family in New York while I speak with them by wireless telephone."

Business may be bad, but progress never ceases. That should encourage us. Shall we some day talk to the planet Mars by radio, and at the same time study the Martians by television? It is not unthinkable since the ether unites Mars and the earth and radio operates through the ether.

VETS MARCH ON CAPITOL FOR BONUS

Leaders of Congress Given Truckload of Petitions Bearing 2,240,030 Names

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Marching behind bands, over a thousand veterans went to the Capitol today with a truckload of petitions urging cash payment of the bonus and were promised by majority spokesmen of the House and Senate their plea would receive consideration.

GIVEN TO LEADERS

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, sponsors of the demonstration, said there were 2,240,030 signatures on the petitions delivered in 20 packing cases.

They were given to Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader; Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, and Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, who were grouped on the Capitol steps with other members from both branches of Congress.

Surrounded by more than 100 banners, including the American flag, and colors of American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars post, Paul C. Wolman, past commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, presented the petitions as some of the veterans shouted:

"To the White House."
"Pay us the bonus."

Capt. Raymond A. Burke, who led the Victory Post of the Legion, told newspapermen he represented 1,000 Legion posts. Several woman marched at the head of the parade.

150,473 STATE SIGNERS

A partial list of the number of signatures on the petitions by states was given by Wolman to include: Ohio, 127,137; Pennsylvania, 150,473; West Virginia, 38,071.

Representative Patman, leader of the bonus fight, made public more than 50 telegrams received today from Legion posts and individual legionnaires protesting against the statement of National Commander Henry L. Stevens, Jr., that the Legion stands solidly behind President Hoover in his opposition to the bonus. One, from Greensburg, Pa., said:

"Keep up the cash bonus fight. Congress can have our S. C.'s and war medals. Stevens has sold us out."

Harris Tells Canvassers Talbot Bill Funds Will Fall Far Below Needs Here

The first day of the campaign to carry out Senator Frank Harris' family-help-family relief plan was marked by collections sufficient to care for 1,051 families for three months according to announcements made today at the first report luncheon meeting of workers in Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel. Senator Harris was toastmaster.

The Advance Guard division, under Taylor Allderdice, reported sufficient collections to care for 1,004 families during the period set forth in the plan, while the Central division, under D. M. Craig, reported funds for 47 families.

With 28,000 families in the county needing aid, yesterday's collections reduced this number to 26,049. The next report meeting will be held in the hotel Monday at noon and daily meetings will be held thereafter until completion of the drive.

Senator Harris declared that despite the fact that the county is to receive $1,692,000 for relief under the Talbot bill, drives for more funds must go on. He said:

"The action of the Supreme Court in declaring the Talbot bill constitutional is most pleasing news. This action will give Allegheny County $1,692,000 for relief. However, we must not have the mistaken idea that this money will be immediately available.

"The bill provides that this money will be paid to the City of Pittsburgh and to Allegheny County in installments, which may extend over a period of several months, and only part of which will be available for immediate use. It will still be necessary for the family-help-family plan to succeed, to take care of the 28,000 destitute families."

$886,000 FOR CITY

Pittsburgh's share of the state fund will approximate $886,000, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Department of Welfare, said. She

An Appeal to the Senate

By B. C. FORBES

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, their hopes blasted by the House, now appeal to the Senate to save them from tax burdens calculated to spread further financial, industrial and business ruin and precipitate still more widespread unemployment.

The United States Senate used to be regarded by the great body of American citizens as a bulwark against irresponsible, demoralizing legislation hatched in the lower chamber.

For a time the House developed a creditable measure of statesmanship. As its reputation rose, the Senate's reputation unfortunately receded.

The Senate now has been presented with a magnificent opportunity to regain its lost prestige, to act as a life-saving buffer against the mentally-unbalanced House, to repeal the proposed deplorable attacks upon prosperity and unemployment.

Will the Upper Chamber rise to the occasion? Will it demonstrate its right to be regarded as the nation's superior legislative body?

Will the Senate recognize the wisdom of insisting upon a selected manufacturers' sales tax spread sufficiently thin to constitute no embarrassing handicap on any product, on any industry, on any line of business?

THE REPRESENTATIVES — Misrepresentatives—in the House, judging by their queer conduct, apparently are 10, 20 years behind the times; apparently, they are unaware of the far-reaching social and economic evolution which has been going on in their own country.

They propose onerous taxes on the motor industry, apparently under the delusion that motor vehicles are still the possession only of the rich. Apparently they do not realize that there are now more automobiles than families in America and that the automobile has become as essential to modern life, to modern business, to modern agriculture, as food and shelter.

Apparently the Misrepresentatives in the House imagine that in levying crippling taxes on the purchase and sale of bonds and stocks they are hitting only "Wall street," only a handful of stock brokers and bankers and plutocratic individuals. Apparently they have failed to learn that the number of bondholders and stockholders in America today total the equivalent of two out of every three families in the land. Apparently, too, these purblind Misrepresentatives gave not even passing thought to the tragic fact that securities have already suffered a shrinkage of 75 per cent in value within the last 30 months. Within five days of the indorsement of the new tax on securities, the market value of issues dealt in on the New York Stock Exchange alone shriveled $3,500,000,000, or more than the total United States deficit.

APPARENTLY these same Misrepresentatives have been entirely untouched and unimpressed by the tragic shrinkage in dividend disbursements, otherwise it is inconceivable that they would have singled out dividends for further tax punishment. Probably they were under the hallucination that dividends are distributed only to a limited number of the rich, not to many millions of thrifty families of moderate means, families whose savings and investments enabled the United States to attain first rank among industrial countries of the world and first rank in national wealth.

Do these same Misrepresentatives imagine, too, that they are penalizing only the wealthy men they single out for special taxation such things as home refrigerators, radios, phonographs? Are they so utterly out of touch with modern social conditions that they do not know such possessions are now enjoyed by many millions of families of modest income?

The financial troubles now afflicting the government, as a matter of fact, are largely due—in addition to gross extravagance and waste—to the length our lawmakers went in their shortsighted eagerness to "soak the rich." Had taxation been broader-based, had there been less dependence on huge receipts from big individual and corporate incomes—always an uncertain quantity—our tax leviers would not have been the menace they today have become.

It is late, but not yet too late, to turn to the thinly-spread sales tax, the discarding of which has plunged the country to new depths of depression and destruction, not to say despair.

SEA LIGHTS DISCLOSE CONTACT

Shore Cottages Searched; Police Trace Owner of Disabled Carrier Pigeon

International News Service.

OAK BLUFFS, Mass., April 8.—A mysterious airplane, which swooped down from a darkened sky and landed beside an unidentified vessel in Vineyard Sound, raised the belief today that another possible contact had been made between the kidnapers of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., and the negotiators for his return.

The hum of an airplane motor aroused residents early today. Lights were observed twinkling in the sky far off shore. Suddenly the lights descended, and came to rest on the water beside a ship whose lights were glowing. Shortly afterward the lights went out.

PROBE PIGEON CLUE

This unusual incident, coupled with a report that a mystery plane had been observed last night over Falmouth, once again aroused the belief that Vineyard Sound, with all its isolated islands, was the focal point of representatives of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in carrying on negotiations with the kidnapers of his baby.

Following the report of the mystery plane over Falmouth, a detail of police and Customs Agent William J. Fitzgerald, of New Bedford, started a search of the cottages along the Falmouth waterfront.

Police Chief William A. Mercer discovered an exhausted carrier pigeon on the roof of a cottage on Hidden Beach, Wild Harbor. The owner of the pigeon was sought. The registration band was No. MPC 10831F31.

AIDES AWAIT PARLEY

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 8.—(AP.)—Three intermediaries seeking the kidnaped Lindbergh baby awaited a new summons to parley today, while in Hopewell optimism ebbed.

The three—Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, John H. Curtis and the Very Rev. H. Hobson-Peacock, all of Norfolk—have not abandoned hope of getting Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., back through a person who approached them and represented himself as a go-between for the kidnapers.

All three were in Norfolk, pursuing a watchful waiting policy, while police who express skepticism about that angle of the search went on with the endless task of checking and rechecking leads.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, disclosed in today's bulletin that an investigation had been launched into the origin of the brush fire which endangered the Lindbergh home last Tuesday, and said Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor suitor of Nurse Betty Gow, had been turned over to federal immigration authorities.

Guzik Rides to Pen In Private Coach

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 8.—(AP.)—Jack Guzik, reputed business manager for Al Capone's Chicago underworld syndicate, entered the federal prison here today to begin serving a five-year sentence for income tax evasion. He arrived in a private railroad coach which he chartered.

The prisoner displayed no emotion as he walked through the gates of the prison where his brother, Sam, is nearing the end of a sentence imposed for income tax dodging.

Trainmen said the gangster was "very liberal with his money" on the trip from Chicago.

JUNKET TO SIGN BONDS HALTED

Bond signing jaunts to New York, in vogue by county officials for years, were called off today by the County Commissioners.

Instead of traveling by airplane or train to the metropolis to affix their signatures to bonds which have been sold, the Commissioners and Controller, whose minimum expenses are estimated at $300, will sign here with a multiple machine of the Republic Bank Note Company.

A representative of the company informed the commissioners that the cost would be one cent a signature, the same as is charged by the New York firm.

Controller R. G. Woodside, who was brought into the conference, said he was willing to accede to the wishes of Commissioners Barr and Mansfield, and sign bonds hereafter in Pittsburgh, thus saving the county expense money.

Hoover Takes Own Advice, Buys 11 New Autos

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(INS.)—Believing in the ancient policy of practicing what he preaches, President Hoover had 11 glistening new automobiles in his garage.

Several days ago, the President urged the public to buy the new spring models being displayed by the auto manufacturers.

The White House limousines are furnished by three companies under yearly contracts whereby all of the old models are turned in as soon as the new ones are available, plus a small cash payment.

Nine of the new machines are passenger cars and two are trucks.

Two of the cars are for the President's use, one open and one closed model. Another is for Mrs. Hoover. Each of the four secretaries has a car allotted for his use, and the secret service has two.

REED, FESS BLOCK PLAN TO FORCE HOOVER ECONOMY MOVE

BYRNES MOTION HELD UP IN SENATE

Parley Between President, House Members Expected To Disclose Program

International News Service

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Republican leaders of the Senate today blocked action on a resolution calling upon President Hoover for a specific program of economies Congress can effect by reorganizing the government.

When Senator Byrnes (Dem.) of South Carolina, asked for consideration of his resolution to this effect, Senator Fess (Rep.), of Ohio, and Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, objected. Fess said:

"All this information is likely to come from the meeting tomorrow morning between the president and members of the House Economy Committee.

PLANS ASKED

Byrnes, asserting that Mr. Hoover has dealt in generalities, said the President should inform Congress what laws are providing functions "not absolutely essential for the present," what departments and bureaus can be merged and "what specific legislation should be enacted to establish a complete national program of economy."

At the conference with the congressmen scheduled for tomorrow Mr. Hoover, it is understood, is prepared to submit specific recommendations for abolition or curtailment of bureaus to meet the demand of House Democratic leaders.

The economy committee, on the other hand, is ready to accede to the President's request for cooperation with the executive department on a non-partisan basis.

WAR DEVELOPS

Meanwhile, the tax war in the Senate was developing today into a campaign to make the multi-millionaire carry a heavier share of the taxpayer's burden in balancing the budget.

Over administration protests against "soaking the rich," Democratic and insurgent groups indorsed a tentative program to increase the taxes on huge incomes and swollen fortunes beyond the new high rates adopted by the House.

It appeared likely this coalition would support the new Connally rates, fixing a maximum tax of 50 per cent on incomes in excess of $3,000,000 a year. The House maximum was 40 per cent on incomes in excess of $100,000.

TARIFF LINKS OPPOSED

A new move to strike all tariff duties from the new tax bill was made today when Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, sponsored a resolution directing the Senate Finance Committee to report a tariffless measure.

If the Senate adopts the resolution, it would eliminate the cent a gallon tax on imported gasoline and oils and the $2 a ton tax on imported coal as adopted by the House.

Tydings said the inclusion of tariff rates in the revenue bill would mean "many months of interminable debate and delay of its final passage." Each month of delay, he added, would cost the government $90,000,000 in lost revenue.

CONVICT KILLER NEAR DEATH

Under heavy guard, James Gordon, 33, of Philadelphia, long-term convict who stabbed to death two other convicts in the yard of Western Penitentiary during the morning exercise period yesterday, hovered between life and death in the prison hospital today.

Meanwhile homicide detectives were endeavoring to establish definitely how Gordon received a stab wound in the right lung and on the left wrist. They were believed by sleuths to have been inflicted by the same improvised dirk with which Gordon killed Martin Connelly, alias Conroy, 29, and Michael Ferraro, 22, the latter serving a life term for murder.

Efforts to question Gordon as to how the wounds were inflicted proved futile, Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the homicide squad, declared.

Gordon was said by prison officials to have leaped at Connelly and Ferraro 10 minutes after he had been released from solitary confinement for previous arguments with the two convicts.

Ferraro's body was claimed by his sister, Mary Octavi, of 616 Chianti street, and was taken to her home for burial.

Mrs. Octavi, in her claim affidavit, gave Ferraro's age as 19 years 10 months, which would make him 15 when he was committed to life imprisonment for his part in the "thrill murder" of Edward Flynn, 68-year-old hospital watchman, in an East End holdup.

BRIDE LEAVES BOXER BAER

OAKLAND, Cal., April 8.—(AP.)—Max Baer, California heavyweight boxer, at various times a trial to his managers, admitted today Mrs. Baer, the former Dorothy Wells Dunbar, had become a trifle exasperated with attempting to manage him.

The fighter said Mrs. Baer, whom he wed in Reno last summer after losing a decision to the Basque woodchopper, Paulino Uzcudun, had gone away on a trip. He insisted her departure was "not for keeps." He said:

"She went away to shake me into my senses and to make a real fighter out of me."

Meanwhile, it was learned Baer has been having difficulties with his manager, J. Hamilton Lorimer, and has attempted to buy his release.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 8.—(AP.)—Twenty years of patching shoes have brought financial independence to Felix Lee, 70, and he and Mrs. Lee are celebrating with a trip to Europe. A brand new 12-cylinder motor car will go with them so they can tour the continent leisurely.

Lee, without money or experience, started a shoe repair shop here after his fiftieth birthday anniversary.

TUBELESS RADIO TALKED HERE

Radio engineering experts here today at the annual meeting of the Institute of Radio Engineers were non-commital upon the development of a tubeless radio set by Ernest Patrick, 21-year-old Kentucky inventor. Several were frankly skeptical over the invention, but admitted that it might revolutionize the radio industry.

The tubeless radio, according to its inventor, snatches sounds from the air by means of a new hook-up. Static, Patrick claims, is practically eliminated. It operates on alternating electric current.

Featuring this morning's session of the three-day meeting which has attracted technical experts from all parts of the United States was the first introduction of five new radio tubes, perfected by engineers of the RCA Radiotron Company. The tubes—three amplifiers, a new out-put and a rectifier—were described by J. C. Warner, engineer of the RCA Company of Harrison, N. J. The new tubes increase volume, improve sensitivity and selectivity and reduce noise. They are not interchangeable in present receiving sets, however.

Bandits Rob Man In Parked Auto

County Detectives and Turtle Creek valley police are searching for three masked and armed men, who robbed Frank Burevich, of 404 South Third street, Duquesne, of $13.50 as he sat in a parked auto on the East Pittsburgh, East McKeesport road late last night.

Pursued Officer Turns, Traps Dog in Box

A mongrel dog, frothing at the mouth, which was chasing pedestrians and snapping at their heels in Grant street, near Diamond, early last night, also chased Motorcycle Patrolman Jack McClelland, who alighted from his motorcycle to investigate.

The officer fled into the courtyard of the morgue, where he obtained a box. The chase reversed and the officer shot the dog after throwing the box over it. The head of the animal will be examined for rabies at the West Penn Hospital.

WOMEN TO AID RELIEF DRIVE

Officers of many women's organizations in the county were expected today at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel, when the leaders were to discuss plans to further the family-help-family plan of State Senator Frank Harris. The meeting was scheduled for 2 p. m. in the English Room.

Mrs. F. C. Irish, chairman of the women's division, said hundreds of invitations had been sent to the governing heads of organizations. She said all women are invited to attend, even though invitations may have been delayed.

Mrs. Karl Kaufmann is vice chairman of the women's group. Serving on the executive committee are Mrs. Harry J. Miller, Mrs. William B. Schiller, Mrs. Francis A. Keating, Mrs. Albert C. Lehman, Mrs. William Frew, Mrs. Saul Levine and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith.

Harris Warns Canvassers Talbot Bill Will Fall Far Short of Needs in County

declared that it would be used for direct relief work and would be distributed the same as the $260,000 authorized by City Council two weeks ago. The city appropriation is being distributed along with a similar amount set aside by the County Poor Board, through the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

Figures from Harrisburg indicate that the share due Allegheny County is $1,729,258, or slightly more than what Senator Harris estimated.

S. E. Claney, relief director of the emergency association today said that he was hopeful that the city and county would use the same method now in force for the distribution of the two appropriations of the city and poor board. Mrs. Rauh has indicated her willingness to use the emergency association.

COUNTY PLANS

H. H. Dixon and Mrs. W. L. Henderson, county poor directors, said they had not yet agreed on how the funds would be distributed. They expect to make definite arrangements within the next few days with the return of Maj. J. Clyde Miller, third member of the board, who is resting in Michigan.

Today at noon the workers in the family-help-family plan will hold their first report luncheon in William Penn Hotel. Daily luncheons are to be held all next week, excepting Saturday and Sunday. Those to attend the luncheon are members of the advance guard under Taylor Allderdice, the central brigade under D. M. Craig and the left wing under W. B. Rodgers. The right wing workers will not enter the campaign for another few days. However, they are to launch their drive under the direction of Thomas Fitzgerald in 115 outlying communities in the county.

CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

The campaign got under way yesterday morning at the breakfast in William Penn Hotel. Workers immediately took to the field and were scattered in all parts of the city by the time the average business man arrived at his office.

Registration is still under way at the headquarters of the Thrift Garden Committee of the Emergency Association, 516 Grant street. D. J. Broderick, chairman of the Strip district of the Community Council of the Emergency Association, announced that application blanks for thrift gardens are available at the Council offices in the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street. Residents of the Strip district are requested to make their applications for garden spots at this office.

Mills at Braddock To Operate 10 Days

Questions on Subway Project Answered

Four questions propounded by persons doubtful of the wisdom of constructing a downtown street car subway are answered herewith by the public officials and the utilities officials involved.

The questions deal with the legality of the $6,000,000 bonds already authorized by the people, the placing of costs for moving sub-surface utility equipment, the adequacy of $6,000,000 to do the job, and the question of a satisfactory agreement, in advance, as to terms for operation.

The questions were presented by E. N. Hunting, Pittsburgh engineer.

His statement, with the questions and answers, follows:

"We are all in agreement on one point and that is, the necessity of promoting public works to the limit of our ability to pay in order to furnish work. However, in this promotion of public works it is quite obvious that a selection of the type of work should be made that will give work to the greatest number of men per dollar expended. Subway construction being largely done by machinery will bring but little relief to employment; not over 30 per cent would be dispersed to direct labor.

"If the promoters of this scheme can give us acceptable answers to these questions and present a good business-like agreement with the Pittsburgh Railways I shall be pleased to withdraw my objections to this project.

"If such acceptable answers cannot be given I, for one, will say that the whole scheme is the height of folly, and not worthy of further consideration.

"Further, I wish to say that there are many large public works projects to be offered that will use a much larger proportion of men per dollar expended than any subway scheme."

Question No. 1—Operation

Question—Can you assure us, as a business proposition, that a satisfactory arrangement can be made with the only possible user, the Pittsburgh Railways Company, before any action is taken to proceed with the work?

(Philadelphia, with one hundred millions already expended, under a perfect working, well-oiled machine government—unable to make a satisfactory agreement with the traction company—is fast approaching bankruptcy. Cincinnati, with its idealistic city manager form of government, its subway completed and not a car running in it, is unable to make a satisfactory agreement with the tractions. Gentlemen, I say, let us profit by these mistakes and get a contract signed by the Pittsburgh Railways on a good sound business basis first.)

Answer—Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh Railway Company:

"I cannot answer yes or no to the question as to whether or not a satisfactory agreement can be made regarding the subway operation, because I represent only one interest of the two involved.

"I believe that if a subway is built, the Pittsburgh Railways Company will operate it.

"The cost of operation may be in excess of the present cost of operating the surface lines. The Railways Company will pay the city an amount represented by any economies that may be achieved through use of the subway.

"No written agreement on the subway now exists between the Railways Company and the city."

Herron Sees Accord

Answer—John S. Herron, president of City Council:

"Yes. They have agreed to co-operate in every way with the city."

Answer—Norman F. Brown, former director County Department of Public Works and promotor of subway plan.

"Yes. Positive assurances can be given that the Pittsburgh Railways Company will operate the subway when completed and meetings to that effect will be held within the next few days.

"Conferences will be held by the city with the Railways Company with this idea in mind. They have been advised of these plans and are making a study of same at the present time with an idea of future operation."

Question No. 2—Moving

Question—Can you settle the question of who is to pay for moving the present utilities in the street before we get started on something we can't finish?

(This same question held up the great Pennsylvania Railroad passenger terminal development and it is still held up and unsettled).

Answer—E. C. Stone, assistant to the president of the Philadelphia Company.

"The question of who shall pay for moving utility properties under the streets is governed by local ordinance as well as by valid exercise of police power. I know of no case locally where a legal decision on a similar question has been rendered.

"All Pittsburgh utilities are involved, and the moving of existing lines will be very costly. No agreement has been made with the city as to who shall bear the expense."

Up to Companies

Answer—Charles A. Waldschmidt, City Solicitor:

"I have not looked into the matter yet. As a general rule, I would say the expense of moving the lines to make way for a public improvement is up to the utilities.

("In the case of the Pennsylvania Railroad development, a different question is involved. The utilities there contend that the improvement in the widening of Penn avenue and the closing of other streets is being made solely for the benefit of the Pennsylvania Railroad and not for the city.")

Answer—John S. Herron:

"Our franchise ordinance provides that when the improvement is made the utilities must take care of their equipment. (In connection with the proposed improvement at the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal, the utilities contend that the move there was made in the sole interests of the railroad.")

Answer—Norman F. Brown:

"The public service lines under the streets will have to be moved where they are in contact with the subway and arrangements have been made with the engineers of the City Department of Public Works to estimate and take care of this removal, which estimate they have made. It is well within the amount of money which we say is available for the entire construction, as per the figures already furnished the City Council."

Question No. 3—Bonds

Question—Can you assure us that the $6,000,000 bonds approved by the voters of Pittsburgh 13 years ago are still valid and that the voice of the majority is the same as it was nearly a generation ago?

Answer—Charles A. Waldschmidt, City Solicitor.

"The action of the voters in approving $6,000,000 in bonds for the subway is still valid. Some of the bond money has already been used for engineering so that work has been done on the project right along.

"The matter of selling the remainder of the bonds is a question of the market and has nothing to do with the legal side of the case."

Answer—John S. Herron.

"Yes. We have the assurance that the bonds are all right."

Answer—Norman F. Brown.

"The bond issue approved by the people 13 years ago is still valid and is a liability against the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh at the persent time.

"The bonds must either be sold and the money used for subway or canceled and the problem of building the subway forgotten."

Question No. 4—Funds

Question—Can you prove by plan, detail and estimate that the amount of the bond issue is sufficient to do the work and pay the damages, and furnish a satisfactory subway ready to operate by the Railways Company?

Answer—John S. Herron.

"Yes. We have estimates that show the work can be done well within the appropriation. Unless the contract for the complete subway is within the appropriation, it cannot and will not be let."

Answer—Norman F. Brown.

"A complete plan of the subway loop has been made which is approximately 2,000 feet longer than that proposed in 1918 when the people voted on the bond issue. The estimates for the cost of this construction have been carefully analyzed during the last seven or eight years and revised recently to meet present day costs for both labor and material.

"The total cost of the subway for physical construction is $1,440,000. These figures have been furnished to the City Department of Public Works and to the Transit Commission body and these engineers have checked the figures, found them accurate and are making a recheck of same for verification."

Honor Student Kills Self by Inhaling Gas

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—(INS.)—Charles Hankins II, 34-year-old father of two children and honor student at the night sessions of the Wharton school of finance of the University of Pennsylvania, ended his life today, police reported, by inhaling illuminating gas.

He was to have been graduated in June after completing in less than four years a course re- than four years a course re- overwork was given as the reason for the act.

TALBOT FUND DISTRIBUTION DELAY SEEN

$10,000,000 Technically Available; State Parley Will Precede Action

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—The state treasury of Pennsylvania today held $10,000,000 earmarked for poor relief, while poor directors of the political subdivisions were asking themselves "—But when will we get it?"

The Supreme Court decision which sustained the validity of the Talbot bill, passed by the 1931 special session of the General Assembly, made the money technically available now. Under the act, $9,000,000 was to have been distributed by April 1, and the remaining $1,000,000 on May 1.

The four months' legal test, however, left a much-tangled state of affairs to be ironed out at a conference of state officials. Until this conference is held, close observers said today, the time and basis of the initial distribution of the money will continue in doubt.

WAIT ON PINCHOT

The conference may take place tomorrow upon Gov. Pinchot's return from a campaign tour with Gen. Smedley Butler, but no one at the capitol today would say so. Gov. Pinchot has refused to comment on the possibility of an extra session of the Legislature.

As matters stood today, there was no accurate indication of the exact amount which would be available for the 67 counties.

The act provides that all distribution of money shall be based on the ratio of the county unemployment totals to the state aggregate. The first payment of $1,000,000 was due December 1, followed by four payments of $2,000,000 each and a final distribution of $1,000,000 on May 1. The December payment, the act stated, was to be made on the basis of the unemployment survey made by the Department of Labor and Industry last July, which showed a total of 969,000.

FLEXIBLE BASIS

Further provision was made that "the basis of allocation shall be changed from time to time as new tables are issued by the Department of Labor and Industry which shall be at least every two months. The "new tables" specified were not compiled during the litigation with the exception of a single survey, the unemployment totals of which have not been revealed. It was announced recently that this survey would show more than 1,000,000 unemployed, but the detailed figures were withheld pending release through the office of the Governor.

FIRED COLUMBIA EDITOR TO SUE

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—Reed Harris, expelled student-editor of the Columbia University Spectator, plans to sue the institution.

The suit, in the nature of a test of the right of the universities to expel students, will demand about $100,000. Attorney Raymond L. Wise said the figure would be approximately that sum in announcing the suit last night. He added:

"We are motivated by the principle of the freedom of the press rather than any desire to get Harris back into the university."

Harris, whose editorials have aroused bitter controversies, was expelled after he attacked the food and management at John Jay Hall dining room. A protest strike of students Wednesday caused a riot. Arthur J. Lelyveld has been named editor to succeed Harris.

Vermonter Urges G. O. P. Act on Rum

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP.)—Expressing dissatisfaction with existing conditions under prohibition, Earl Kinsley, Republican national committeeman from Vermont, said inan interview today he thought the wet and dry question should be aired at the Republican convention in Chicago.

Gibbons on Tour to Keep U. S. Out of Asia's Wars

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 8.—(INS.)—The greatest problem in the Orient is the possibility of disturbing the peace of the world, Will Rogers' contribution to letters is the greatest in our generation.

The greatest racketeers are Europeans and Americans who are in the employ of Japan for military purposes.

Japan looks upon China as a geographical division only.

There were among the statements being pondered here today following the talk given in the Mormon Tabernacle last night by Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent for International News Service during the recent Chinese-Japanese hostilities.

Gibbons declared that the purpose of his speaking tour was to keep the United States from sending soldiers to Asiatic wars.

The wrecking of the Manchurian Railroad was only a pretense for the Japanese invasion, Gibbons declared, as the rails were only scratched at the place where the damage was asserted to have been done.

Japan is ready to fight Russia or the United States, he declared.

The presence of American troops in Asia did much to keep the United States out of the recent conflict, according to Gibbons, who said:

"Treaties have failed in the past few months. We should be prepared to meet any emergency."

Gibbons was greeted on his arrival at the local airport from San Francisco by officials of the University of Utah, under whose auspices his talk was given, and a crowd of several hundred persons. He will leave at 7:40 a. m. today on a Western Air Express plane for Los Angeles.

MELLON, WELCOMED TO LONDON, DENIES DEBT MISSION

HAS NO SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS, HE SAYS

New Envoy Indicates He Will Serve Liquors; Arrival Creates Stir

LONDON, April 8.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon, new American ambassador to Great Britain, took advantage of the first opportunity that offered itself today to say that he did not come to Europe to solve the reparations and war debt problems.

Hardly were welcoming ceremonies at Southampton and London over before the former Secretary of the United States Treasury got right to work at the American Embassy. One of his first acts was to receive British and American correspondents there.

Then the new envoy called upon Sir John Simon, Great Britain's secretary for foreign affairs, to find out about arrangements for presentation of his credentials to King George.

DENIES DEBT MISSION

When the new ambassador submitted to questions of the correspondents, their queries ranged over his social plans and incidental matters until a reporter for one of the big London dailies told Mr. Mellon that Europe regarded him as a special Ambassador on war debts and reparations.

Mr. Mellon asked quietly:

"Who did you say invented that story? I have no special instructions to deal with financial questions.

"I realize I am fortunate in coming here at this time. Relations between our two governments were never better, and, while we both face problems of a most serious nature, arising largely out of the war, these problems are not insoluble and must disappear if we approach them frankly with an effort to understand each other's difficulties and a firm determination to be of assistance where we can.

"It will be the greatest satisfaction to me if I can be of any help in promoting such a working understanding between this country and my own."

TO SERVE LIQUOR

As for court dress, which the late Ambassador Harvey made famous by not wearing, Mr. Mellon said he had not devoted much thought to it, but would wear whatever was appropriate.

Asked whether liquors would be served on the table at the embassy, Mr. Mellon said he probably would follow the custom of the country. He said:

"I haven't any as yet, but I suppose it is obtainable, which is not the case in my own country."

The British press has given more attention to Mr. Mellon's arrival than it has to that of any American ambassador since the World War, many papers featuring his great wealth and interpreting his long career in business and politics in great detail.

The former Secretary of the Treasury arrived this forenoon and was given an ovation. He was welcomed by another Pittsburgher, Benjamin Thaw, who is first secretary of the embassy.

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure stretches from Eastern Ontario southward over the Ohio Valley states to the Gulf, with centers over Western New York and Tennessee. It is causing cloudy weather over all the states east of the Mississippi and light to moderate rains over the Ohio Valley states and Tennessee. Another low pressure area in the form of a long narrow trough extends from Saskatchewan southward over the Rocky Mountain states to Arizona. This low is causing cloudy weather over most of the country west of the plains states. Relatively high pressure over the plains states is attended by clear skies and moderately cool weather. While there was a marked drop in temperature over the central valleys and plains states since yesterday, there are no freezing temperatures reported except over Canada and along the border.

GIRL AWARDED $10,000 BALM BY JURY

Alliance (O.) Business Man Loses Suit Brought by Pittsburgher in U. S. Court

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, April 8.—A verdict granting Miss Grace Priehs, 30-year-old Pittsburgh woman, $10,000 heart balm was returned by a federal grand jury here this afternoon in the woman's $100,000 breach of promise suit against Arthur H. Geiger, Alliance (O.) businessman.

The former beauty parlor employe charges Geiger promised to marry her, but broke the promise in 1930.

Tears streamed down the face of the plaintiff as her attorney, Leo J. Ritter, of Pittsburgh, made an eloquent plea for her in his closing argument.

GEIGER ON STAND

Geiger spent most of yesterday afternoon on the stand. The defendant, speaking in an even and low tone, made a sweeping denial that he ever had proposed marriage to the girl. He said:

"The only time marriage was ever mentioned between us was shortly after I met Miss Priehs in 1926. I told her I wasn't the marrying kind and that if she was at all serious about our relations, we should part immediately. She said that suited her fine."

Geiger related how and when he and Miss Priehs parted and the circumstances. He said:

"She came to see me at Alliance after she had moved to Pittsburgh. I met her on a street corner in answer to a phone call and she demanded $5,000 so that I would never have to bother about her again.

THREAT CHARGED

"We went riding and I told her I couldn't get the money, or even $500. Then she said: 'Well, if you don't get it, how would you like to see your name in black print spread all over the papers?'

"I asked her if she was attempting to blackmail me and she told me I could call it what I wanted to, but that she had to have the money.

"The next I heard about her was when a newspaperman called me about the suit she had filed."

Previously, Geiger had told of buying Miss Priehs a diamond ring which he said was a Christmas present in 1928.

There was nothing said about it being an engagement ring, he testified.

Geiger admitted taking Miss Priehs on several trips to Cleveland, Canton, Toledo, Jeffersonville, Ind., and Pittsburgh, as had been brought out in the girl's testimony. He said she asked to accompany him each time.

HOME DAMAGED IN WILD DASH OF TRUCK

Woman Imprisoned in Basement as Wrecked Car Demolishes Living Room

With a crash that could be heard for blocks, a truck, after colliding with a coupe, injuring two men, smashed into the front of the home of Harry Garner, 613 Noblestown road, today, demolishing the living room and knocking the dwelling a foot out of plumb.

Mrs. Ora Garner, 50, in the basement kitchen at the time, was showered with plaster and imprisoned in the kitchen for several minutes by inability to open the door, which had jammed.

William Lange, who occupies the adjoining dweling, at 611, was standing in front of his home and leaped when he saw the truck plunging toward him. He escaped injury.

Ross Hinderman, owner and driver of the coupe, and his companion, Harold Johnson, both of Washington, Pa., suffered lacerations. They were treated by a nearby physician and Hinderman later removed to Allegheny General Hospital.

The steering gear of the truck, loaded with empty bottles, broke when the collision occurred, causing the machine to swerve over the sidewalk. Andrew Popvich, of Duquesne, the driver, told police. He and his helpers, John Novis, of Duquesne, and Earl Schwartz, of the North Side, escaped injury.

The truck broke a pole, bringing down wires. Police kept a large crowd of school children and others away while repairmen cleared the wreckage.

MASSIE TRIAL HELD TEST OF HONOR CODE

Protection of Womanhood At Stake, Head of Good Government Group Says

(Editor's Note—At the conclusion of the fourth day of the Fortescue-Massie trial during which a jury was finally chosen, Mrs. Anne Kluegel, who organized the Honolulu Citizens' Organization for Good Government, and whose protests led to the Department of Justice investigation of the islands, wrote the following article for International News Service.)

By ANNE KLUEGEL

Written for and copyrighted, 1932, by International News Service, Inc.

HONOLULU, T. H., April 8.—Human drama as inexorable as Greek tragedy stalked across the courtroom of Judge Charles S. Davis as a jury was chosen to try Grace Fortescue, mother, and Lieut. Massie, husband, of Thalia Massie, who was brutally and heinously attacked.

They, with Albert Jones and E. J. Lord, are being tried for second-degree murder of one of the alleged unpunished attackers of Mrs. Massie, an "honor killing" because of the outraging of fundamental principles of civilization—the purity of womanhood and the maladministration of justice.

All other laws may fail and the race progress, but if woman's honor is trampled undefended all is lost in chaos.

EPITOMIZES WOMANHOOD

Grace Fortescue epitomizes womanhood in Hawaii and the United States. Not only is she standing for woman's position in Hawaii, but for American standards of womanhood and motherhood everywhere.

Thomas Massie is standing at her side to right a cruel wrong perpetrated upon his defenseless wife.

Two American men of the Navy are standing trial for upholding the honor of the Navy and its attitude toward American women.

The weak link in this human chain is whether or not the dead Kahahawai was guilty of assault that dreadful night last September.

The most striking impression of this courtroom scene is that the wrong defendants are on trial.

In this particular instance, the guilty is the community of Honolulu and this community should be sitting in the seats of the accused.

The community of Honolulu drove Mrs. Fortescue and Lieut. Massie to their activities, whatever they were, on January 8, when the crime with which they are charged was committed.

STANDARDS ON TRIAL

The community of Honolulu, acting as steward for American principles both for protection and prosecution under the law, failed in its trust and by its apathy, avarice and greed, apparently drove the crazed mother and husband to take the law into their own hands.

Above all, the community of Honolulu failed by this apathy in which it is still continuing toward proper legal and moral attitude toward sexual offenses.

The American flag flies over the islands, but women are not treated according to American standards in Hawaii.

That standard is now on trial in Judge Davis' courtroom—not the guilt or innocence of Mrs. Fortescue and her co-defendants.

HAWKS TAKES CRASH BLAME

WORCESTER, Mass., April 8.—(INS.)—As plastic and dental surgeons examined X-ray pictures of his fractured jaw in the medical battle to save him from facial disfigurement, Capt. Frank M. Hawks at City Hospital today took full responsibility for the crackup of his airplane yesterday. The speed king of the airways told newspapermen:

"It was my own fault. I have no alibi to offer.

"I realized the turf was soft. I felt I could make it. I was in a hurry to get back to New York because I wanted to make preparations for my flight to Porto Rico next week."

The interview was delayed by hospital authorities to give Capt. Hawks time to recover from a slight relapse following the taking of the last X-ray picture on the right side of his face.

A City Hospital bulletin said the airman passed a good night, his condition was satisfactory, he was cheerful and optimistic and his pulse and temperature were normal.

Unidentified Body Found on Railroad

Efforts were being made at the county morgue today to establish the identity of a man about 45, whose body was found on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at West Noblestown last night. The man was believed to have been struck by a train. The body was discovered by John Zilaunes, of Noblestown.

ST. JOHN'S RIOT PROBE ORDERED

ST. JOHNS, N. F., April 8.—(INS.)—Riots against the government of Sir Richard Squires will be investigated by a royal commission to be appointed by the Governor of Newfoundland, Sir John Middleton.

This, at least, was the interpretation placed today upon an announcement by the Governor that he would appoint such a commission to pry into "certain occurrences at the colonial building."

Meanwhile Squires remained at his post, declaring he was determined not to resign. It was the announcement of his resignation at the height of the riots Tuesday, presumed at the time to have been official, which quieted the demonstrators.

4 Rescued as Fire Threatens Home

Three men and a woman were led to safety early today as smoke from a fire in an adjoining storeroom filled their rooms above the Eighth Avenue Restaurant, East Eighth avenue, Homestead. They were John Porshak, proprietor of the cafe; his wife, Mike Popkik and Jack Dolan. The fire was in a haberdashery at 349 East Eighth avenue.

Wins $2,600 Verdict Against Miller Show

G. A. Fisher, steelworker, of Roanoke, Va., was awarded $2,600 by a jury in court today against Zack Miller, owner of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show for injuries suffered July 6, 1930, when he was attacked by a buffalo on the North Side.

Sunday Amusements Proposed in Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—(AP.)—An ordinance to permit Sunday amusements of all kinds in Philadelphia providing that 25 per cent of the gross gate receipts be paid to the city was introduced at a Council meeting yesterday by Councilman William W. Roper, former Princeton football coach.

Street Car Wage Conference Resumed

Discussion of a new wage contract to replace the one expiring May 1 was to be resumed today by representatives of motormen and conductors and the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Company officials, it was said, are insisting on a reduction of wages. Operators of two-men cars now receive 70 cents per hour, while those of one-man cars are paid 80 cents.

FINGER TRACED IN PLOT NOTE

CLEVELAND, April 8.—(AP.)—A severed human finger, sent to John H. Wilberding, financier and sportsman, with a grim extortion note, was traced by police of Cleveland Heights today to a Northern Ohio medical school.

Police Chief Edward Barrows, of Cleveland Heights, said the finger—the index finger hacked from a dead man—had been stolen from the school. He declined to name the school.

The finger was traced, the chief said, by officials of the Western Reserve School of Medicine, who analyzed the preservative used.

Police also revealed they waited in ambush at Wilberding's home last night, the time named in the letter for the financier to turn $3,000 in small bills over to a messenger. The extortionist, however, failed to appear.

The weird extortion plot, police said, obviously was the work of a certain type of underworld character.

Comedian Periled By Mystery Illness

HOLLYWOOD, April 8.—(AP.)—Seriously ill from a strange malady believed to have resulted from drinking water while on a South American tour, Snitz Edwards, 70-year-old stage and screen comedian, was to be removed from his home to a private hospital today.

Edwards has been ill more than a year, his physicians on several occasions holding out little hope for his recovery.

MIXED MASSIE JURY PICKED

be tried for second degree murder—charged with taking a man's life to balance the scales against a woman's honor.

They are charged with the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, Hawaiian half-caste, alleged ringleader of a gang of five who brutally attacked pretty Thalia Massie, daughter of Mrs. Fortescue and wife of Lieut. Massie.

MIXED JURY

The jury that will hear the case is a miniature Honolulu, half white men and half men of varied races.

The even balance of the jury may be fraught with great significance. Unconsciously the defense must address itself to the Caucasians on the jury and just as assuredly the prosecution must plead its case primarily to the remaining six of varied race and color.

The jury is composed of the following:

John F. Stone, white, former secretary to Gov. Farrington; Olaf Sorenson, white, Danish ancestry, employe Oahu Railroad and Land Company; Shadford Waterhouse, white, bank clerk; Charles H. Strohlen, white, pump engineer; Theodore Bush, white, civil engineer; Willy Beyer, white, German ancestry, food manufacturer; Charles Akana, Chinese, Hawaiian accountant; Edward Goeas, Portugese, clerk; Theodore Char, Chinese, accountant; Walter Napoleon, part Hawaiian, mixture five races, meat cutter; George D. McIntyre, part Hawaiian, clerk steamship company; Henry S. Y. Chang, Chinese, clerk.

DARROW SATISFIED

With this strange setting, Clarence Darrow, champion of the oppressed and the most brilliant defender of modern times, prepared his case. The veteran attorney said:

"I am satisfied with the final selection of the jury. How favorable it will be to our side must be determined later."

This was his only comment on the mixed panel. Prosecutor John C. Kelley said significantly:

"The prosecution is certainly unable to find any objections to the trial jury, particularly as racial questions are not to be introduced."

Darrow's defense plans continued a closely guarded secret, but a dramatic turn was given to their preparation with the arrival today of two eminent psychiatrists from the mainland to associate themselves with the defense.

They were Drs. Edward Huntington Williams and James Orbinson, of Los Angeles. They were uncommunicative as to why they had been summoned.

The prosecution firmly believes it was learned, that the mental condition of Mrs. Fortescue will have an important part in the trial. They believe their theory is borne out by the attitude of the American society matron in court. She has been entirely unconcerned in the proceedings. Differing from her three co-defendants who have watched with lively interest every move in the selection of a jury.

She has been the enigma of the trial. Her patrician face showing the suffering she has undergone, she has seemed a lone figure as she sat at counsel table. Usually gazing straight ahead she had seemed entirely listless despite an apparent forced attempt to take an interest in her surroundings. Frequently her sister, Helen Ripley, sitting by her side has patted her hand as if in encouragement.

She never quits her chair during recess, but remains in court conversing quietly with her sister, brother and Mrs. Darrow.

When the proceedings resume her attitude again becomes one of complete detachment.

Close observers today predicted the government would complete its case in a week. Taking of testimony was put over until Monday in deference to the health of Darrow, an elderly man, unaccustomed to the tropical heat.

Hospital Inmates Riot During Strike

CHICAGO, April 8.—(INS.)—Unruly inmates of the Cook County Psychopathic Hospital today taxes the capacity of a skeleton staff on duty during the strike of 45 regular orderlies and attendants. Three patients became violent during the night. A student nurse was bitten on the hand and arm in attempting to quiet one of them. Meantime, the strikers picketed both the Psychopathic and the Cook County General Hospitals.

Aimee Considers Angeles Temple Sale

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—(INS.)—Negotiations today were underway for the sale by Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist, of Angelus Temple, to the Rev. Paul Rader, another evangelist.

The pair have conducted many private conferences. Rader is to make a $50,000 down payment, it was understood. Mrs. McPherson values Angelus Temple and adjoining properties, including the radio station, at $1,000,000.

Seek Fortune Teller In $207 Robbery

Center avenue police today were searching for a fortune teller, believed to be a Gypsy or an Indian, who looted a trunk in the home of Mrs. Rose Edmundson, at 634 Belinda street, of $207 late yesterday, according to a police report.

When the seeress left Mrs. Edmundson's home, the latter discovered that cash which she kept in the trunk had been replaced by a wad of paper. The fortune teller learned where Mrs. Edmundson secreted the money by telling her good luck would follow if the money was blessed, police said.

Uchida Resignation Disturbs Cabinet

TOKIO, April 8.—(INS.)—The Japanese cabinet was thrown into a serious position today by the resignation of Count Yasuya Uchida as president of the South Manchurian Railway. Count Uchida telegraphed his resignation because the government dismissed an official under him whom it wished to replace.

The cabinet hastily wired Count Uchida to reconsider his action and keep his post. A strong opposition, however, led by Minister of War Araki and backed by a strong element of the press, attacked the cabinet.

KOPPERS CHIEF HEADS COUNTY JOB CANVASS

Rust Accepts Chairmanship Of Legion Drive to Open Here Soon; Explains Delay

Henry B. Rust, president of the Koppers Company, today accepted the Allegheny County chairmanship of the industrial division of the state campaign of the American Legion to create permanent positions as part of the nation-wide drive to put 1,000,000 men and women to work.

Mr. Rust

The announcement was made by Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Company, who is serving as the state chairman. At the same time Robert K. Cochrane, Jr., secretary of the Builders' Exchange, was named county chairman of the house-to-house section which has already been started in several sections and which will be revised on a "man-a-block" plan at the opening of the state campaign.

F. R. Dravo, chairman of the board of the Dravo Corporation, has volunteered his services as a sponsor, Weir said. He will serve in the Western Pennsylvania group that includes Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, A. W. Robertson and John B. Tomkin.

The chief objective of the campaign, scheduled to officially open late this month, will be to urge large industrial employers to establish the stagger system of employment in their plants. This will provide immediate employment for the greatest number of workers, Weir declared.

Chairman Rust will invite the leaders of each industry in the district to appoint an executive to serve on his committee.

Delay in starting the campaign in this state, Weir explained, has been due to the desire of not conflicting with relief campaigns. When the Harris Plan drive nears its close, the Legion canvass will open to find work for unemployed and thus stay the necessity of additional aid from the relief funds, he said.

INDEPENDENTS AGAIN HIT VARE

Independent Republican speakers, at a noon meeting in headquarters, Magee Building, Fourth avenue, today continued their attacks upon the Philadelphia organization, alleging it was attempting to secure control of the state through the re-election of Senator James J. Davis, the nomination of Frank Baldwin for Auditor General and the endeavor to defeat Judge Joseph Stadtfeld for the Superior Court.

Alderman Jacob Yeager, of the Nineteenth Ward, veteran Independent, urged the election of Gen. Smedley D. Butler to the Senate, Ralph Flinn of Allegheny County, as Auditor General and Judge Stadtfeld. He reviewed the history of past successful Independent movements, particularly the judicial campaign of 1927, when Judges James H. Gray and the late Richard W. Martin were elected despite organization opposition. He declared that similar success can be attained this year in the fight for Judge Stadtfeld.

Butler's prohibition stand was praised by Yeager, who said the General would be a consistent dry.

Henry O'Neill, candidate for alternate delegate to the Republican national convention from the Thirtieth District, also spoke.

McKeesporter Freed In Auto Fatality

Theodore Knutson, of McKeesport, was acquitted of involuntary manslaughter in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge O. C. Kent, of Crawford County, in connection with the death of Michael Matto, 31, 709 East street, McKeesport. Matton was walking in O'Neil boulevard, December 13, when he was struck and killed by Knutson's automobile. Evidence satisfied the jury it was an accident, without negligence on the part of Knutson.

Reconciled

MRS. DELPHINE HEIMERT

SCREEN SINGER, MATE REUNITED

Beautiful Delphine Heimert, of the moving pictures, and her husband, Harold Heimert, Pittsburgh businessman, are speeding back to Pittsburgh today, their separation of two years ago forgotten.

Their differences over her career apparently have been patched up. Mrs. Heimert left Pittsburgh where she was well known as a soprano of radio fame, and went to Hollywood two years ago. Her voice won her a position with one of the major producing firms as a substitute for non-singing stars in the talkies.

At the Heimert home last night it was said the couple had already left California and was expected here next Tuesday.

Regulars to Hold Two Rallies Tonight

Regular Republican candidates for statewide primary nominations will speak their pieces before crowds at two mass meetings on the South Side tonight. Senator James J. Davis will be the principal speaker. Frank J. Baldwin, candidate for Auditor General; Charles A. Waters, candidate for State Treasurer, and Congressman Harry A. Estep also will speak.

The meetings are scheduled for Maennerchor Hall, Mt. Washington, and Turner Hall, South Side.

Davis, Slate Allies Speak Here Tonight

Regular Republican state ticket candidates, headed by Senator James J. Davis, will visit Pittsburgh tonight to fill two speaking engagements, one in Turner Hall, South Side, and the other in Maennerchor Hall in Mt. Washington.

Others on the speaking program are Auditor General Charles A. Waters, State Treasurer candidate; State Senator Frank F. Baldwin, candidate for Auditor General, and Congressman Harry A. Estep.

Ellenbogen Urges Vote War on Gangs

Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-third District, last night urged Twelfth Ward citizens to end gang rule. He spoke at a mass meeting in the Lemington School, Lemington avenue.

He urged federal aid as the only means of relieving the nation's hungry millions, because local relief can come only through additional real estate taxation, which already is excessively high.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—To prove his inability to write poetry, Gen. Theodore Roosevelt composed some blank verse. A quarterly devoted to poetry published it.

CITY REJECTS UTILITY OFFER OF RATE CUT

Duquesne Light's Proposal Held Insufficient After Council, Solicitor Confer

City Council today rejected the Duquesne Light Company's offer to reduce its charges on an average of 10 cents a month to the average consumer, as insufficient in proportion to present conditions.

Council members and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt met today and studied comparative rates gathered by Waldschmidt from other cities. While this conference was in session, President of Council John S. Herron came from behind its closed doors and made the following statement:

"After a thorough discussion and consideration of the public utility rates by the members of City Council and the city law department, it is the consensus of opinion that a more substantial reduction should be granted by the Duquesne Light Company.

"Mr. Waldschmidt and the members of Council will confer again with the officials of the company in the hope that this can be brought about.

"It is our intention to use every honorable effort with the company to avoid litigation and yet obtain what in the judgment of Council are rates more nearly fitting the present situation."

P. S. C. Bans Hearings In Light Rate Quiz

Commissioner Samuel Walker appointed on the Public Service Commission's committee to investigate rates on electricity, with special attention to the charges levied on domestic current, says the committee does not contemplate holding rate hearings.

Asked concerning the method of procedure he said:

"Data no doubt will be asked for on the rate question. After it has been obtained, the probabilities are that efforts will be made to bring about adjustments. The committee has not yet organized, nor has it mapped any program."

Shaler Township Group To Protest Rates

Objectives in the fight against laws governing public utilities and excessive rates will be explained tonight before voters of Shaler Township at a public mass meeting in the Glenshaw Community Church, Glenn avenue, off Mt. Royal boulevard, Glenshaw.

The meeting will be addressed by President Harry Bastow, Secretary C. V. Shoup, and Dr. A. L. Lewin, of the Allied Boards of Trade. The principal discussions will be devoted to the fair rate question and the objectives of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association. The meeting is being sponsored by the Civic Association of Shaler Township. President C. Leroy Beet will preside.

1,400 Women Pay Respects to Hoover

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(INS)—Fourteen hundred small and perfumed handkerchiefs were waved in greeting President and Mrs. Hoover today by as many women members of the Philadelphia Federation of Women's Clubs and allied organizations, here on a one-day pilgrimage.

The women marched into the south grounds of the White House and the President and Mrs. Hoover greeted them from the south portico.

Pittsburgher Named To Centennial Group

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP)—Appointment of Harry Holiday, of Butler, as one of the 150 members of the Greater Pennsylvania Council was announced by the Governor's office.

Benno Janssen, of Pittsburgh, was appointed a member of the Chicago Centennial Anniversary Commission to succeed Robert G. Simms-St. Martini, whom the Governor removed from the commission. No reason was given for the removal of Simms-St. Martini.

MARITAL STRIFE WINS DIVORCE FOR STUDENT

Tech Man Relates ory Of Hysterical Conflicts; Three Others Air Woes

His wife objected to his work as Sunday school principal and as a result suffered hysterical spells during which she drank a cleaning fluid, which made her very sick, William A. Vensel, 26, of 1230 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, mechanical draftsman and student at Carnegie Tech, testified in Common Pleas Court. He was granted a divorce from Helen Bond Vensel, 28, of 902 Lincoln avenue, by Judge Harry H. Rowand.

They were married June 14, 1928, and she left Vensel's home July 23, 1931, when he went away on a week-end fishing trip after having left him on four previous occasions, he testified. He said she would pout for days at a time and they ate their meals in silence.

MOTHER-IN-LAW BLAMED

Margaret M. Nolan, 29, of 5868 Hobart street, would not live with her mother-in-la and therefore parted with Raymond J. Nolan, 33, of Grand Rapids, Mich., from whom she was granted a divorce by Judge Frank P. Patterson in Common Pleas Court. They were married July 4, 1923, and separated January 10, 1926.

Bernard I. Huber, of Webster Hall, charged he lost his butcher business on Walnut street, East End, as the result of the conduct of his wife, Lulu A. Huber, 7017 Hermitage street, in a bill of particulars in his divorce suit in Common Pleas Court.

They parted on their nineteenth wedding anniversary, February 8, 1927, after he had suffered three years of nagging and humiliation at her hands, he said. She flew into fits of rage almost daily, during which she would rip the clothing from his back, threaten his life and call him names, he asserted. They were married February 8, 1908.

ACCUSED OF JEALOUSY

His wife became hysterical when he kissed his mother, because she was so jealous, John E. Chambers, 1020 Davis avenue, testified in his divorce suit against Gertrude Chambers, North Craig street, heard by Judge Thomas R. Marshall in Common Pleas Court. Chambers declares she asserted only babies kiss their mother, and wanted to fight his mother.

Her jealousy caused her to shoot at him twice in September, 1926, shortly after their marriage, and on another occasion she plunged a kitchen knife through his coat, he testified.

Potlikker Placed On Senate Menu At Long's Plea

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(INS)—Potlikker is at last a national dish. Senator Huey Long (Dem.) of Louisiana announced yesterday after arranging with the Senate restaurant to serve the Southern dish.

Long said corn pone would be served with it for "dunking purposes." He remarked:

"The only serious stride thus far made in the Capitol during this session is the entry of potlikker to the Capitol."

HOME BUILDING DRIVE PLANNED TO AID IDLE

Chamber of Commerce Will Sponsor Campaign; Relief Appeal Support Pledged

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce last night decided to sponsor a campaign of home building and house reconditioning in the Pittsburgh district as a means of stimulating business and increasing employment. A special office where activities in the campaign will be centered, will be opened soon in the chamber building, Seventh avenue and Smithfield street.

The chamber will work with such organizations as the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange, Pittsburgh Lumberman's Club, Plumbing Contractors' Association, Concrete Products Association, Electric League of Pittsburgh, Employing Painters of Pittsburgh, Plumbing Contractors' Association, Heating and Piping Contractors' Association, and other groups.

Deeming that the question of the proposed downtown subway was of "outstanding importance," the directors recommended the appointment of a committee to make a study of the matter and report as soon as possible. President Thomas A. Dunn stated he would select the committee members within the next two days.

Indorsement of the chamber was given to the Harris family-help-family plan, which yesterday opened a drive for funds. The trade group pledged support to the campaign.

Heinz Veterans Hear President at Dinner

The annual dinner of the Heinz Veteran Employes Association was held in the auditorium of the H. J. Heinz plant, Progress street, North Side, last night. The principle speaker was Howard Heinz, president; John Aldinger, president of the association, was toastmaster, and Miss Mary L. Knox offered the invocation. A playlet was presented by Miss Catherine Ferl and C. S. Bennett.

West End Pupils Guests of K. of C.

Pupils of Langley and Crafton high schools and parish schools of the West End, Crafton, Carnegie and Corliss district will be guests at a complimentary dance tonight, sponsored by Chartiers Council, Knights of Columbus, in the newly remodeled building of the council in Crafton. The formal housewarming will be April 15. John McAvoy and F. A. Roney head the committees.

MISSION MEET RESUMED

Members of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Presbytery of Pittsburgh met today in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, continuing the annual meetngs of the two groups whch opened yesterday.

Services today marked the sixtieth anniversary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. Speakers scheduled were Miss Gertrude Schultz, executive secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions; Mrs. J. L. Hooper, of the Philippine Islands, and Dr. Frank W. Bible.

Yesterday's sessions marked the fiftieth anniversary of the Women's Home Missionary Society. Speakers were Mrs. F. S. Bennett, vice president of the Board of National Missions; the Rev. David Waggoner, of the mission boat Princeton, Alaska, and Mrs. W. P. Barker.

Lighting Economy At State Capitol

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(INS)—John L. Hanna, Secretary of Property and Supplies, has given orders through which he hopes to make a 30 per cent reduction in the cost of lighting the Capitol group of buildings. Instead of all lights burning in corridors, alternate fixtures will be used. Hundred-watt bulbs are being replaced with smaller sizes.

County in Ohio 'Broke,' Issues I.O.U.'s

STEUBENVILLE, O., April 8.—Jefferson County, broke, is giving I. O. U's in exchange for grand jury duty and testimony this week. The warrants will be redeemed when county funds become available. There is no money to pay county employes. However, indications are that May will see the situation relieved.

Priest Officiates At Mother's Rites

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., April 8.—The Rev. Stephen Yantko, pastor of the Catholic Church at Barton, conducted funeral services for his mother, Mrs. Mary Yantko, 73, in Marguerite, Pa., yesterday. Mrs. Yantko died Tuesday in the priest's home at Barton.

P. R. R. Plans Cut In Ohio Service

BELLAIRE, O., April 8.—The Pennsylvania Railroad, which has been operating one train each way daily between Steubenville and Powhatan, will cancel them April 24. Lack of patronage, due to construction of the Ohio River highway, is blamed.

Lullaby ..... Geni Sadero
Come Unto These Yellow Sands ..... Frank La Forge

A vast audience in Syria Mosque responded gloriously to the singing of Rosa Ponselle last night. All sensational newcomers fall into the shade when this soprano begins, for I doubt whether there has ever been such a magnificent natural voice which has had the good fortune to find such flawless training.

Mr. Lissfelt

Year after year this voice has grown in lusciousness, in brilliance, in ease and expression. Ponselle herself has matured musically, and one exquisite nuance follows the other with such speed and grace that we are left dazed at the wonder of it all.

Whether it is a simple belcanto lyric, as "Star Vicino," or the florid air from "Semiramide," the sentimental "Lullaby" of Sodero, the gay "Chanson de la Cigale," or the folk melodies of America and Italy, Ponselle seems to say the final word. She has sentiment, gayety, tragedy, wit, impertinence, coquetry at the tip of her tongue, and life penetrates into all her interpretations. Vocally no other can approach her.

As always she was as generous as the audience and gave us many encores, that haunting "Night Wind," "Shoes" of Katherine Manning, Widor's "Contemplation," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," a startling new song of Tadesco "Caliban" the "Habanera" from "Carmen," and the inevitable "O Sole Mio."

Stuart Ross was once again her able accompanist and gave a group of modern piano numbers, all amusing trifles. He, too, was well received and responded with Grovelez's "Hunting Song."

J. FRED LISSFELT

TRAFFIC GROUP BACKS WHARF PLAN HERE

$600,000 River Project Approved in Principle; Subway Parley Postponed

The Better Traffic Committee has approved in principle the idea of the Snodgrass-Brown river front improvement plan for the Allegheny River wharf between Stanwix and Ninth streets. The committee postponed a hearing on the subway until April 21.

The cost of this improvement is estimated by Norman F. Brown and Edward Snodgrass, Jr., at $600,000. The engineering and planning details were left to the Department of Public Works and the City Planning Commission.

The report of Winters Haydock, Transit Commission engineer, on the cost of the Snodgrass-Brown subway probably will be submitted to the Transit Commission today or tomorrow, and be ready for City Council Monday.

LOWER COST SEEN

It is rumored that the report will place considerably higher cost estimates on the Grant street loop than those submitted by Brown. The Transit Commission's Smithfield street subway loop, with considerably reduced costs, will be recommended, it is understood.

George S. Davison, chairman of the Transit Commission, was to confer today with Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, on the viewpoint of the railways executives on subway operation. The subway route and the car lines to use it are vital points in the determination of any rental payment by the railways company, it is pointed out.

The wharf improvement plan would involve the construction of two levels, the lower for use of navigation interests and the upper, a space of the same elevation as Duquesne way, to provide parking space and more street area.

LOADING FACILITIES

The platform of the upper level would be supported by an arched wall and by columns. Moveable cranes are planned for the outer wall to take care of loading and unloading river freight.

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, declared a section of the river wall should be built to show the citizens of Pittsburgh its advantages. If one section is constructed, the improvement of the entire waterfront will follow, he predicted.

The plan has been placed before government engineers with the assurance that it involves nothing to interfere with navigation. Director Lang said. The entire improvement could be completed in two months after the contract was let, Lang said.

Frederick Bigger, member of the committee, suggested that the same amount of money contemplated for the wharf plan would build a belt highway on the riverfront on two sides of the triangle. He did not vote on the motion to approve the Snodgrass-Brown plan.

Bridesmaid-Bride Seeks to Divorce Cannon Kin

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Naise Ernestino Virden Cannon, daughter of the late Charles E. Virden, packing magnate, filed suit for divorce here yesterday against William D. Cannon, nephew of the late "Uncle Joe" Cannon.

Mrs. Cannon charged cruelty. She asked no alimony, but requested a division of community property.

The couple married in Chicago, February 11, 1924, just after Miss Virden had acted as bridesmaid at the wedding of a friend. As the guests departed from the church, she and Cannon remained behind and surprised the pastor by presenting a marriage license.

Cannon, formerly in the banking business in Chicago, has been engaged in the brokerage business here.

FAVORS TRACED IN N. Y. QUIZ

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—William J. Flynn, Bronx Commissioner of Public Works, was the object of an attempt before the Hofstadter investigating committee yesterday to show that he proffered official favors to clear his record of accusations of misuse of power.

Counsel Samuel Seabury sought through questioning of Flynn and Dr. Charles Norris, medical examiner, to prove the Bronx official had offered to "do all he could" with the Board of Estimate to improve Dr. Norris' budget, in return for affidavits showing Mrs. Anna Willard, wife of a Bronx businessman, died of natural causes, not from suicide.

Dr. Norris admitted Flynn had called on him last Monday in company with his attorney and obtained affidavits he insisted did not materially alter the Willard verdict, but he resisted attempts to demonstrate that Flynn's proffer of aid had influenced him in reopening the case.

Uninvited Guest Shot, Man Arrested

NEW CASTLE, Pa., April 8.—Jim Aiello, Wampum, is in Jameson Memorial Hospital with a fractured right arm sustained when shot by Michael Degetano as he entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Sense as an uninvited guest. Degetano admits shooting, claiming he thought Aiello was about to shoot. He is out under $500 bond pending the outcome of Aiello's injuries.

In April .....Whelpley

The Music and Art Committee of the Twentieth Century Club presented the club choral in the final concert of the season with Mrs. Thomas K. Cree directing. Once again we experienced the wonderful acoustics of that beautiful auditorium and how both chorus and soloist could profit by such excellent conditions.

Mrs. Cree's singers are now passing through the stages where all choruses show their shortcomings and their ultimate possibilities. In the two years of their organization there has come into their softer tones a mellowness and ease which speak well for their rehearsing. MacFadyen's "Cradle Song," Mrs. Rohrer's pretty "Sleepy Song" and McIntyre's "When Twilight Comes" showed just those characteristics and were very pleasant music. Sustaining the mood to the end of a song and the tone towards high registers are still problems of the chorus.

Henry Harris was soloist and played a very smart group of piano works which fitted admirably into the music of the chorus. In the resurrected "Ecossaises," and C sharp minor "Scherzo" of Chopin and the "Naila" waltz, without reservation we can hand this young man laurels for having made as delicately ravishing tone as has been heard in our concert halls all during the winter. He was less the virtuoso and decidedly the maturing musician. Enthusiastically received, he responded with a Henselt etude as encore.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

TRUCK PERMIT ARGUED HERE

C. A. McFeaters, of Grove City, who has operated five freight trucks for three years between Pittsburgh, Grove City, Oil City and Meadville without a state permit, for which he is now applying, appeared before Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker yesterday and testified he had violated the law unknowingly.

J. P. Canny, of Cleveland, counsel for the Erie Railroad, which, with the Pennsylvania and the Bessemer and Lake Erie railroads, is opposing the application, sought to show how far McFeaters would go in competing with the railroads. Asked if he would transport 50 tons of bituminous coal from Pittsburgh to Meadville for $92, the approximate railroad rate, McFeaters said he would, plus 10 cents a ton. He said he would not transport 100,000 tons of pig iron, which is sixth grade freight.

Harold Brumbaugh, of Grove City, a former employe of the Bessemer, now engaged in the trucking business between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, testified that up to 1929, when he left the railroad, less than carload lots of freight were discouraged by the railroads, which fact led him to enter the trucking business. Brumbaugh was a witness for McFeaters.

PITT POLLED BY DEMOCRATS

University of Pittsburgh students voted Democratic by a majority of 382 in a poll last Friday, according to a compilation of figures today by the Pitt Weekly, which conducted the canvass to determine sentiment on possible Democratic and Republican nominees for President.

Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, led, with former Gov. Al Smith a close second. Among the Republicans, Gov. Pinchot received the most votes, with President Hoover a close second.

Democratic runners-up were Speaker Garner, Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland; Gov. Murray, of Oklahoma, and Newton D. Baker. Republican runners-up were Senator Norris, Senator Borah and Charles G. Dawes, who were tied.

The poll was restricted to the two parties because the Weekly wanted to determine student sentiment on candidates who stood a chance in the November election, according to Robert McChesney, editor of the paper. The candidates were selected by political science department faculty members.

BATHING POOL FEES UNPAID

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(INS)—Owners of public bathing places are failing to comply with the state law which requires inspection and payment of standard fees according to location, Dr. Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health, says.

The department estimates that there are at least 1,200 places which must be licensed before they may open for the present season but only 219 have complied with the law which was passed by the last session of the Legislature.

Owners of pools who fail to pay the fees before June 1 will be prosecuted.

BALLOON RACE IN OMAHA

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—President Hiram Bingham of the National Aeronautic Association has announced the 1932 national balloon race will be held at Omaha in connection with the second annual Omaha air races, May 27-30 at Omaha municipal airport.

Following the long-standing custom the winner of the race will have the opportunity of becoming one of the balloon team to represent the United States in the international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett cup to be held September 25 at Basle, Switzerland.

Drivers of Trucks Cause Few Crashes

Faith in Salvador Regime Expressed

EL SALVADOR, San Salvador, April 8.—(AP.)—A statement signed by 50 business men of El Salvador, expressing confidence in the regime of Provisional President Maximiliano Martinez, was sent to President Hoover yesterday.

"The United States government has withheld recognition from administration of President Martinez, which seized power by a coup last December 2, on the ground that it has not been constitutionally reorganized."

The statement said Salvadoreans were "fighting against an economic crisis, "but had faith in overcoming it.

GREENVILLE, Pa., April 8.—Greenville school teachers will donate two weeks of their salaries in 1932-33 to the Board of Education. The board has reduced the tax rate one mill to 16 mills.

FRAUD CHARGED TO CANDIDATE

EASTON, April 8.—(AP.)—Everett Kent, of Bangor, former Congressman in this district and candidate for the Democratic nomination to the same office, has been charged by a state bank examiner with defrauding the Bangor Trust Company and its depositors of $11,200.

According to a complaint made before Alderman John R. Chidsey yesterday by George S. Summers, of Harrisburg, chief examiner for the State Department of Banking, Kent is alleged to have withdrawn that amount from the Bangor Trust Company on or about October 1, 1931, the day the bank closed.

The complaint is made under an act of Assembly which provides for a penalty for that director or employe "who shall for the benefit of himself, as an individual, draw checks with intent to injure or defraud such institution."

Suit for $4,000,000 Estate Transferred

ST. LOUIS, April 8.—(INS.)—The suit of Mrs. Gladys Catania, of New York, who claims she is the adopted daughter of the late Nathan Frank, former St. Louis congressman and capitalist, and asks his entire estate of nearly $4,000,000, today had been shifted from Probate Court to Federal Court.

The claim was transferred to Federal Court on account of diversity of citizenship. Four other suits, three of them filed by women, are pending against the estate.

Cuban Mob Attacks U. S. Bank Branch

HAVANA, April 8.—(AP.)—About 40 men carrying red banners stoned the Galiano street branch of the National City Bank of New York here, breaking all plate glass in the front of the bank.

Leaving their banners behind them, the demonstrators fled before police reserves arrived. Authorities said they believed the men were Communists.

Choking Baby Dies As Operation Begins

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 8.—Elizabeth Billitdeaux, 3, daughter of Vincent Billitdeaux, of Cresson, Pa., died while being placed on an operating table in Memorial Hospital yesterday by doctors who sought to dislodge a bean from her throat. The parents of the child told hospital authorities that she swallowed the bean while playing in her home.

KIN OF VERONA SEEKS OFFICE

John D. (Kokey) Scorza of the Third Ward, a nephew of Alderman John J. Verona, has announced his candidacy for member of the General Assembly from the First Legislative District, giving priority in his platform to a pledge to work for repeal of the prohibition laws. He stated:

"I am firmly convinced that the Eighteenth Amendment cannot be enforced, that it is working a hardship on the people. If elected, I will work for the repeal of the amendment, and in the meantime I will support all legislation favorable to the repeal of the Volstead act so that Congress may make a broader interpretation of the alcohol content of beverages.

"I will work for laws that will insure fair utility rates, with the reservation that the utility companies are entitled to a reasonable profit. Further I am for the repeal of the blue laws and am in favor of legislation that will insure a bonus for former service men, unemployment relief and protection for bank depositors."

Congress Candidate Argues for Repeal

John Burke, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Thirty-third District, has announced his platform, stressing his position on the prohibition problem. He said:

"As a total abstainer, I have been a keen observer of conditions in the liquor business for more than 40 years, and I believe the country now is ready for a change. I believe the prohibition question beclouds all other issues at the present time, and if elected will vote for the repeal of the Volstead law."

Candidate Opposes Seizure for Taxes

Lula Bosby, running for the Legislature in the Fourth District, has issued a statement claiming she is the first candidate to declare for direct relief for property owners and the repeal of legislation which would permit the selling of delinquents or the selling of their goods for county taxes. She said:

"Such legislation is vicious and a disgrace to the state and should immediately be repealed."

CLUB INVITES CANDIDATES

The Seventh Ward Community Club and members of the Allied Boards of Trade are sponsoring a political rally at 8 o'clock tonight in Liberty School, Ellsworth avenue.

Assistant District Attorney Roy Clunk, chairman of the meetings and speakers' committee of the Regular Republican organization, has invited the heads of the state ticket to appear. They are United States Senator James J. Davis, seeking a full term; Auditor General Charles A. Waters, running for State Treasurer, and State Senator Frank E. Baldwin, candidate for Auditor General.

Other scheduled speakers include State Senator James J. Coyne, running for another term; Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, candidate for Congress, and Mrs. Gertrude Boyle, candidate for delegate to the Republican national convention. James Porter and Arch Loney will preside.

DELAY PUPILS' THEFT HEARING

Hearings for more than 21 North Boroughs school children, accused of looting a Bellevue novelty shop of articles valued from $700 to $800, were postponed last night when police said several more were to be questioned.

The children, among them several girls and ranging in age from 7 to 17 years, are accused of entering the Leathercraft Shop at 630 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, Saturday and Sunday nights.

Police said evidently a small group entered the shop, closed since January 1, Saturday night, and carried away several articles. The news spread, police said, and others flocked to the store.

They will be given hearings before Justice of the Peace John Nixon Thursday night.

Society Women Turn To Pipe Smoking

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—Park avenue ladies are "hitting the dudeen." The fifth Earl of Gosford showed them his miniature briar pipe, made for smoking between the acts. Now a lot of women are smoking them.

Peach Blossoms Attract Tourists

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 8. The peak of the peach tree bloom, first of the beautiful landscape delights in this section, should be seen over the week-end, E. C. Sherwood, state spray specialist, said after a tour of orchards. The bloom has been unfolding slowly on the earlier-maturing varieties, and the full-bloom time should coincide with the week-end. The occasion annually draws thousands of visitors to the section.

Sharon High School Debaters Unbeaten

SHARON, Pa., April 8.—Sharon High School has one of the best debating teams in this section. Under the direction of Prof. J. I. Reaney the team, made up of 16 students, is undefeated and recently won from Ravenna High, producers of one of the best teams in Ohio.

Long Absent Man Returns, Stranger To Children

TORONTO, April 8.—(INS.)—Three children of John Joseph Kearns, 62-year-old diamond mine prospector, missing for 12 years, refused to admit an elderly stranger who knocked at the door of their home yesterday.

Mrs. Kearns, when summoned, nearly fainted at sight of the man. It was her husband, on whose life she had collected insurance in 1920. The children, young when he disappeared, did not recognize him.

Kearns explained his absence as the result of a lapse of memory lasting nine years, while he was employed in a Montreal hospital. Recovering his memory, he decided to go home, taking along a $500 diamond ring he had bought for his wife while working in Europe prior to the memory lapse.

E. Huntingdon High Wins Debate Tourney

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 8.—Repeating its 1931 feat, East Huntingdon Township High School debating team defeated its opponent, Mt. Pleasant High School, to win the finals in the Westmoreland County debating contest. The victors will represent Westmoreland County in the southwestern district competition to be held soon.

Legion Post Leader Made Game Warden

KINGWOOD, W. Va., April 8.—Hubert Lenhart, American Legion post commander, yesterday announced his acceptance of appointment as game and fish warden for this section of the state. Lenhart succeeds Leland S. Whetsell, who resigned because he is a candidate for Preston County sheriff on the Republican ticket.

Noted Scientist, Wife Burned During Sleep

EL PASO, Tex., April 8.—(INS.)—Dr. Dimitry Sinitsin, 61, noted Russian scientist, and his wife, were seriously burned here when a gasoline-soaked bed on which they were lying in a tourist camp, was ignited. Mrs. Sinitsin may not recover, physicians said.

Dr. Sinitsin came to the United States from Russia eight years ago. He is internationally known for his discovery of "flukes," a parasite which attacks sheep. He has been employed for some time in the Animal Husbandry Bureau at Washington.

Beaver Falls Pastor Tenders Resignation

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., April 8.—The Rev. C. B. Jones, pastor of the First Baptist Church for more than three years, has tendered his resignation to take effect immediately.

Dill Demonstrates Wooden Money To Colleagues

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP.)—Chips of wood being circulated as money in Tenino, Wash., because the banks there are closed, were exhibited to the Senate yesterday by Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington.

More than $5,000 of this kind of money is now in circulation, Dill said, adding it demonstrates gold is not the only basis for money.

The chips, issued in the value of 25 cents, 50 cents and $1, are made of domestic spruce and printed by a Tenino newspaper. Printed on them is a statement that they are redeemable by trustees of the Tenino Chamber of Commerce from the dividends of a bank now closed, when it becomes solvent.

Relief Combined With County Work

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 8.—Co-ordination of public relief work in Greene County with township and county highway improvements was started when a force of men receiving aid for the county went to work removing a large slip from a township highway three miles west of Waynesburg, in Franklin Township.

Muldowney Backed In Congress Race

The Eleventh Ward Republican organization has met with Alderman Harvey A. Lowry, presiding, and indorsed Councilman M. J. Muldowney, candidate for Congress and Attorney Ben Giffen, running for the Legislature. Speakers included Councilman William J. Soost, Republican city chairman.

McDonald Campaign Headquarters Open

The committee supporting G. Malcolm McDonald for chairman of the Democratic county committee has opened headquarters in 1115 Plaza Building, Sixth avenue. Officers include John M. Henry, C. Gregg Llewellyn, Carl D. Smith, Thomas H. Hester and Paul C. McClelland.

INDEPENDENT PLEA RADIOED BY M'GOVERN

Commissioner on Hospital Bed Urges Support For Butler, Flinn, Stadtfeld

Chairman C. C. McGovern, of the Board of County Commissioners, propped up in his bed last night in Sewickley Valley Hospital, where he is convalescing from a broken ankle, broadcast over the radio an appeal for support of the candidates on the Independent Republican ticket. He said:

"I would like to say a word to my constituents in Allegheny County. I just want to report to them as one of their county employes that this is the first time I have been off the job in many years.

"Now about the claims and counter-claims in the political warfare going on throughout the state. The issue in this campaign is whether the people—the plain, common people—or organized wealth, represented by public utilities, special privilege seekers, professional political bosses and racketeers—shall rule the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

RAPS PHILA. MACHINE

"The issue is reduced to the basic question of whether the vicious Philadelphia political machine, which has bankrupt that great city, shall dominate the politics of Pennsylvania or whether a democratic or representative government by and for the people shall prevail. The people of this great state by their ballots will decide on April 26 some vitally important problems.

"First, they will decide whether they will be represented in the United States by James J. Davis, who prates about his love for the common people, of his devotion to the cause of union labor, and his sympathy with the struggles with the mass of the people, while at the same time practicing political servitude to the Vare political machine, to special privilege and public utilities, or whether the people will elect Smedley D. Butler, who rose from a private in the United States Marine Corps to a major general, and whose great administration in a period of more than 30 years advanced our laws and our flag in many of the downtrodden countries of the world; a great soldier with a record of service in the administration of many troubled countries."

BOOSTS FLINN, STADTFELD

McGovern said the next important problem confronting the voters was the selection of an auditor general. He made a plea for "Capt." Ralph E. Flinn, of Allegheny County, opposing State Senator Frank E. Baldwin. Continuing, McGovern said:

"Another exceedingly important office that belongs to Allegheny County is that of one of the Superior Court judges. Allegheny County furnishes more than 50 per cent of the business handled by the Superior Court in Allegheny County and this county has had a Superior Court judge from the inception of this court, the office being held now by Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, a lawyer of marked ability, unquestioned honesty and established independence.

"The Philadelphia 'war board' recently issued orders that Allegheny County was no longer to have a Superior Court Judge and the place was to go to Arthur H. James, of Luzerne County, recommended by the Vare machine.

"If the discredited Philadelphia gang is permitted to place Arthur H. James on the bench, the courts of Pennsylvania will unquestionably be degraded and discredited for the reason that the test of ability to serve in the courts of our state will be servile service to political machines and public utilities rather than admitted legal ability, fairness and independence."

32 STATES VOTE OVER 2 TO 1 ANTI-DRY

Kansas Still Stands Alone For Prohibition; Test Shows Women for Repeal

Thirty-two states representing a combined population of over 85,000,000 are voting from 2 to 1 to 6 to 1 anti-dry as more than 4,000,000 ballots are tabulated in this week's returns of the Literary Digest's nation-wide prohibition poll, according to figures published in the magazine tomorrow.

Nine states with a total population of over 19,000,000 register a dry sentiment of 40 per cent or more. Of these states Kansas alone gives a definite majority for continuance of the Prohibition Amendment.

The Pacific Coast states are voting slightly over three to one anti-dry, about the same as those states in the upper Mississippi Valley.

WOMEN'S VOTE SHOWN

A total of 4,009,499 ballots are tallied this week, of which 1,046,113, or 26.09 per cent, vote for continuance of prohibition, and 2,963,386, of 73.91 per cent, are for repeal.

As an answer to charges that the poll does not represent the women of the nation, The Literary Digest tomorrow will publish returns of a special referendum of all registered voters of Portland, Me., which was selected, it is stated, because it was one of the oldest prohibition centers in the country.

The canvass was so arranged, announcement is made, that the ballots returned by women voters could be distinguished from those returned by men voters and still remain secret ballots.

REPEAL FAVORED

Fourteen thousand five hundred and ninety-eight ballots were mailed to men and 11,958 ballots were mailed to women, the total of which constituted the entire registered electorate of the city.

Of 3,981 replies returned by men 970, or 24.36 per cent, voted dry and 3,011, or 75.64 per cent, voted anti-dry.

Of the 11,958 ballots mailed to the women 1,126, or 38.45 per cent, voted for continuance of the Prohibition Amendment and 1,802, or 61.55 per cent, voted for repeal.

TABULATION BY STATES

The eighth report of the Literary Digest's 1932 poll classified geographically shows:

Quickest Way to end COLDS

A hot mustard foot bath will do more for a cold than all the drugs in the world—but a hot mustard tub is even better.

Just add four heaping tablespoonfuls of Colman's Mustard, mixed to a smooth paste in a little cold water, to your regular bath. In the morning you'll wonder where the cold has gone. Fine for children's colds, too. Always keep a tin of mustard in your medicine chest—and be sure it's Colman's.

ENGINEERS END SAFETY MEET

Nearly 200 safety experts from Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio were in Pittsburgh yesterday for the ninth annual safety engineering conference at Fort Pitt Hotel, under the auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council. Safety problems were discussed by a score of speakers, followed by a round-table discussion.

The meeting ended with a dinner last night at which Thomas Fitzgerald, president of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, presided. A. P. Huckestein, supervising inspector of the Department of Labor and Industry, presided at the afternoon session and J. A. Cartel, chief of the safety bureau, Carnegie Steel Company, at the morning meeting.

TECH CLUBS GIVE CONCERT, DANCE

The combined glee clubs of Carnegie Institute of Technology will present a concert and dance tonight. The concert will be held in the Arts College Theater, and the dance in Thistle Hall.

The Women's Glee Club will be under the direction of Dorothy Morse, student director, and the men's under Ronald C. Teare with Amelia Miller and Fred Latham as accompanist. The "Skibo Song" by Latham, will be sung. Carl Malcherek will conduct the combined number. Elida Schweitzer and Teare will be in charge of the dance program.

Wilkinsburg Pupils Studying Religion

The first of two sessions of a program of religious education, in which 13,000 school children are enrolled, will open in Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, tonight. The second session will be held next Friday night. The programs will be under auspices of the Protestant churches of Wilkinsburg. They will be supervised by Miss Amy Clowes, a teacher of religious subjects.

Campaign Here Most Drab in Years

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mark Shields

It is a long time since we have had in Allegheny County a political campaign so drab as this one, as far as the heads of the ticket are concerned. This is a campaign by and of professionals, both regulars and independents in the Republican party.

Certainly the independents have their professionals, just as does the organization.

So far there have been none of the rabble-rousing thrills that marked the mayoralty campaign of 1929, the two gubernatorial campaigns of 1930, and the county campaign of 1931, to go but a short way back in memory. There has been none of the civic enthusiasm which leads to barricades in the streets, hand-to-hand fighting, and a big and zealous vote by the general public.

This is due solely to the failure of either faction to put fire into the battle. Theoretically, the electorate should need no stimulant to send it to the polls in swelling numbers. Citizens should study questions and vote their convictions as a matter of duty and as a protection to their interests. But they don't.

This year the regulars have a campaign designed principally to get their workers busy marshaling the normal organization vote. The directing heads of the campaign seem to believe in that form of strategy. It means, of course, a solid vote, a mustering of the full organization strength, but it is not aimed at the average man and woman.

There has been not a single mass meeting, though two are scheduled for tonight, and a final hurrah will be made the Saturday before election in Motor Square Garden. The stranger coming into town would not realize that Pennsylvania is picking a United States Senator, an Auditor General, Superior Court Judges, legislators and Congressmen.

* * *

Independent Drive Sags After Rousing Meeting

The Independent campaign also has failed to click thus far. There was a rousing meeting last week, with Gen. Smedley Butler drawing the crowd, but there has been a sag since. The Independents have two cannon on the vocal firing line, Butler and Gov. Pinchot. But, without any intermediate calibers, they abruptly drop in political armament from cannon to air rifles. There is not the dash and vim there was last year or two years ago.

The chief issue raised by the Independents is that Vare, Philadelphia boss, seeks to control the state, and has ignored Allegheny County in the formation of a statewide slate, particularly in attempting to shunt aside Judge Joseph Stadtfeld as a candidate for Superior Court. It is an issue which could be used to spur the vote.

Yet at a big meeting a few days ago one of the Independent spellbinders, boosting Butler above Senator James J. Davis, advanced the strange thought that Pittsburgh should not have both United States Senators. The two theories simply don't jell.

What has been said applies to the state ticket. The regulars are organizing for the local tickets. Evidently the Independents are endeavoring to do the same. Ultimately that may prove a good system, for organization is necessary. But Independents being less disciplined, having a smaller certain vote reservoir on which to draw, must have as a plus always the attachment of voters not affiliated with any faction, but drawn to the polls in behalf of some principle which must be dramatized. And that the Independents have not done so far in this campaign.

ELECTION SIGNS ORDERED FROM TREES, POLES

Clark Directs Arrest of All Persons Violating Law; Police Held Responsible

Acting on orders from Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, 1,000 patrolmen today started out to eliminate from poles, fences, trees and other public and private property cards and posters of candidates for the spring primaries.

Clark directed that police tear down all such literature, and arrest those violating the law by posting them in forbidden places. Police will be held responsible for election printing matter on their beats, he said.

ASKS PENALTIES

In announcing the order, the director said he had consulted police magistrates, and asked that they fine or imprison all persons arrested for violating the law.

The State Act of 1903 provides for a fine of not less than $5 or more than $20 for tacking or pasting political notices on public or private property. The only notices exempt are those on billboards. Clark said:

"My attention had been called to the fact that candidates are commencing to violate the law again by placing their posters, cards and literature on street poles, trees and private property, so I have decided today to issue a new and strict order to all the police officers to enforce the law and arrest all parties guilty to violation thereof, and to tear down and destroy all cards, placards and literature so placed.

STREETS DISFIGURED

"The public should not be subjected to this violation which disfigures our streets and highways, and the time certainly has arrived when candidates should be educated to conduct their campaigns in accordance with the law.

"I myself, am a candidate for delegate in the Thirty-third Congressional District, and any person who places any cards, placards or literature with reference to my candidacy on any pole, tree or fence, will be arrested and prosecuted just the same as all other guilty parties."

Drys Stage 3 Raids, Two Men Arrested

Prohibition agents reported arresting two men in three raids yesterday. John Batz was arrested in a building in West Main street, Carnegie, where liquor was confiscated, the agents reported. In an alleged speakeasy in Second avenue, Freeport, a gallon of moonshine was found and Rocco Nucua arrested, according to the agents. A speakeasy in Jane street, South Side, yielded the agents five gallons of wine, 30 pints of whisky, three pints of gin and a pint of kummel, it was reported.

Motor Club Reveals Traffic Light Faults

Traffic signal lights not adjusted according to provisions of the state motor vehicle code, have been reported to officials of Pittsburgh, Etna, McKees Rocks, Crafton, Homewood, Munhall, Elizabeth, and West Newton by the highway safety committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 8.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This Ogden Mills that is now Treasurer of the deficit, nobody has accused him of being "the best

Will Rogers

Treasurer since Alexander Hamilton." But I have heard Jack Garner himself say that Mills was "a mighty able and conscientious man." Congress bases her estimate of the budget on "what the people ought to make in 1932." Mills says: "Yes they ought to make that much, but who are they going to make it out of?" Word just come that Frank Hawkes was hurt. Frank is like one of our family, but the hospital tells me that it's not dangerous. He is a fine, intelligent fellow. I have never met a "dumb" aviator.

Yours, WILL.

HONOR RETIRING HEAD OF HOME

Directors and friends of the Gusky Orphanage, Perrysville avenue, will tender a banquet to A. L. Solomon, retiring president, in the Concordia Club tonight. Guests will be children of the orphanage.

Solomon has been head of the orphanage 21 years and a member of the board of directors 27 years. He will be succeeded by Attorney Louis Caplan, who was reared in the institution.

Speakers at the banquet will be Leo Lehman, toastmaster; Arnold Dentelbaum, orphanage superintendent; Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, Dr. L. B. Bernstein, and Attorney M. Barney Cohen.

A portrait of the retiring president will be presented the orphans.

VOTE MACHINES RULED OUT OF PRIMARY

Ballots Printed at Cost of $20,000 Useless; Eighth Name Crowds Devices

No voting machines will be used in Allegheny County at the primary election, April 26, the County Commissioners announced today.

Chet Cooke, of the Poole Engineering Company, told the Commissioners the entrance of an eighth candidate for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention so crowded the machines it would be impossible to use them anywhere in the state for the coming election.

Expert vote machine demonstrators, recently hired, would be laid off, it was indicated. Ballots already printed at a cost of $20,000 will have to be destroyed and new ballots printed, the Commissioners were informed by the Pittsburgh Printing Company.

Observers in the County Building pointed out that with the destruction of the ballots and the removal of ballot boxes, voting booths and other election paraphernalia from the Courthouse back to the various districts, this election will be the most expensive in the history of the county.

The boxes and booths were ordered into the Courthouse by Director John W. Vickerman, of the Board of Elections, and Director Ray Sprigle, of the Department of Property and Supplies. Ordinarily, the equipment remained in aldermen's offices between elections, but because of the plan to use the machines, it was taken to the Courthouse.

East End Store Damaged by Fire

One hour after East Pittsburgh firemen extinguished the blaze in the cellar of the building at 834 Linden avenue, early today, fire broke out in the hardware store of Henry Waltman, recalling the firefighters. The damage was estimated at $1,000 by police. The two unoccupied apartments on the second floor of the building were slightly damaged by smoke.

Neighbors Betray Burglary Suspect

Sam Snider, 21, of 2327 Sherbrook street, who was captured by police in the darkened home of G. G. Lobdell, 204 South Braddock avenue, last night, faced arraignment today in East End Police Court.

Police, summoned by neighbors, who became suspicious when they saw the ray of a flashlight in the house, arrested Snider, who had several skeleton keys in his pocket. A window was jimmied.

GROCERY STORE WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Six Hurled From Beds, Score Of Families Aroused in District; Blamed on Gas

A score of families was awakened and windows in the neigsborhood shattered when an explosion and fire wrecked the grocery fronting the three-story residence of Frank Nanci, former pugilist, 2113 Collingwood avenue, Swissvale, early today.

Nanci and a companion were dining in a Swissvale restaurant. After following the fire engines, Nanci found his grocery in flames.

The impact of the explosion wrecked the one-story grocery and partially damaged the three-story building which it fronts. The blast was followed by a fire which Swissvale volunteer firemen battled for an hour.

The cause of the explosion could not be learned definitely, although Peter McGurk, the fire chief, said he believed it was caused by gas. He estimated the damage at $3,000.

The front door of the residence of John Donofrio, 2112 Collingswood avenue, was blown from its hinges, and Donofrio, his wife and four children, Thomas, 8; Nicholas, 6, and Carmella, 4, were rocked from their beds.

The family of Ernest Jackson, Negro, next door to the grocery, was also forced out.

Windows in several houses in the neighborhood were broken, firemen reported.

BENNING QUITS, AIDS WUERTHLE

John J. Benning, Fifth Ward today withdrew as a Republican candidate for the State Senate in the Forty-third District.

Withdrawal of Benning opens the way for Independents to concentrate behind E. J. Wuerthle in an effort to defeat Senator James J. Coyne for re-election. Benning has been looked upon as a partisan of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern while Wuerthle has been supported by McGovern's colleague, C. M. Barr.

Barr has been working for several days to bring about the withdrawal of Benning. In a statement Benning said:

"As a citizen interested in good government, I am submerging my personal ambition for the public good. In a three-cornered fight Coyne might win, but Wuerthle can and will beat him with united support. I am for E. J. Wuerthle and am asking all my friends to support him."

Danube Parley Ends Without Agreement

LONDON, April 8.—(AP.)—The four-power conference called by Prime Minister MacDonld to consider means of extending financial aid to the nations on the Danube ended shortly before noon today without an agreement.

A communique issued by the Foreign Office after the close of the conference, said each of the four governments, Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy, agreed to address to the other three as soon as possible a statement of its views on points reserved and on the best means of further advancing the proposals considered.

FASHION SHOW HELD IN STORE

Employes from various departments of Meyer-Jonasson & Co. were shown the new feminine spring styles at a fashion show in the store last night, under the direction of Miss Grace Ely, art consultant from the research bureau of the retail training department of the University of Pittsburgh.

Store officials explained that the fashion show was held to familiarize the employes with the fashions in other departments so that they could help customers make selections. Girls who modeled the garments were also from the store and each picked her own costumes.

Miss Ely, in describing the various wardrobes, told the employes of the trend in women's clothing fashions, described as a tendency to make the waist and hips narrow by placing emphasis above the waist line. Combination business and evening garments, sports models, semi-formal gowns and various frocks were displayed.

Brokers Can't 'Take It' Now--It's So Different

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

The government tax on stock sales is making the Wall Street mob howl like a wolf at the full moon.

The brokers claim it will ruin their business.

What business?

Two years ago they shook us out of the market and it wasn't malaria. They took it.

The government hands 'em one. And they can't take it.

We earned it and donated it freely. We got some more and dished it up with certified parsley.

And so on and so out.

It was a chain. But it wasn't daisies.

The brokers were as happy as a picture bride before she sees the bowlegged bridegroom waiting on the wharf.

But now the romance is over.

STATE MEDICAL FIGHT BASED ON PAYROLL

Fired Director Brands Foe's Accusation of Political 'Overloading' as Untrue

The furore over Gov. Gifford Pinchot's dismissal of Dr. John R. Conover, county medical director, on recommendation of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, broke into open warfare between the two principals today.

McGovern, whose nephew, Dr. Eugene A. Conti, was appointed to Conover's place, issued a statement from his bed in the Sewickley Valley Hospital, charging that Dr. Conover had kept his office filled with appointees in sinecure positions and permitted them to hold county jobs at the same time they were employed by the state.

CONTRADICTS M'GOVERN

Conover replied by contradicting the statement, declaring that only one such instance ever existed in his administration and that it was corrected by him after a conference with McGovern. He said:

"There was only one such instance during my administration. After the hearing to which Mr. McGovern refers, and I had been informed that such an arrangement was impossible, the man resigned his county position and devoted his entire time to his state duties.

"Mr. McGovern knows that the county medical director does not have the power to either hire or discharge employes in his department."

Conover's discharge was followed by a widespread remonstrance to Gov. Pichot, health and civic organizations leading the protests.

FIRM ON OPINION

The Commissioner said:

"Almost a year ago, on May 13, 1931, I recommended to the Governor the removal of Dr. John R. Conover as county medical director for this county and nothing has happened since to make me change my opinion.

"Four years ago, when I was County Controller and Gov. Pinchot had just finished his first term of office, I called Dr. Conover before me and he then publicly admitted under oath that he had been carrying men on the state payroll of his office as full-time health officers, who were at the same time full-time employes on the Allegheny County payroll.

"Dr. Conover in the same breath admitted that he communicated with these health officers mostly by correspondence, that the positions were sinecures and that the principal duties which these employes had was to draw their salaries.

"Shortly after Gov. Pinchot resumed office last year, on the strength of Dr. Conover's own public admissions to me under oath, I recommended his removal to the Governor. I do not know why the Governor deferred action on this recommendation as long as he did.

HOLDS BACKERS MISLED

"I do not now care what action he now takes on the matter.

"If the Governor and all the medical societies in Pennsylvania want an administration of the office of the county medical director which makes that office a resting place for political hanging on, that will not suit me, but there probably is nothing I can do about it.

"I am positive that those most active in the interests of Dr. Conover have been misled and misinformed about his qualifications; and I stick to my original opinion of him and of his administration of his office, which I formed more than four years ago when Gov. Pinchot had finished his first term and had no prospects of being elected again."

OVERFLOW SEEN FOR MOTORS EXHIBIT

Force of Attendants Increased To Care For Record-Breaking Crowd

Expecting the largest crowds of the week to be in attendance today and tomorrow at the exhibit of General Motors 1932 products at Motor Square Garden, East Liberty, officials were assigning additional attendants and salesmen to serve the public for the final two days.

The exhibit, which is one of 55 being staged simultaneously throughout the country to stimulate employment revival in the industry, will close tomorrow night at 11 o'clock. The show opens daily at 10 a. m. The same closing time will be in effect tonight.

Presentation of a gift automobile, electric refrigerator, vacuum cleaner and car accessory kit will be a feature at 8 o'clock tonight. An overflow crowd is expected and special preparations have been made for handling visitors. The presentations will be made from a specially arranged truck in Beatty street, between Baum boulevard and Center avenue. Amplifiers will be erected in the Garden to carry the announcements and proceedings to the thousands who will be inside at the time.

FATHER GUILTY IN LOTTERY

Joseph Bahn was found guilty and four others were acquitted by a jury today, on charges of conducting a lottery at 512 Mulberry street, McKeesport, which was raided by state police, March 8.

Troopers of the Greensburg barracks testified they had confiscated $360 cash, two bushel baskets of stubs and records, and three adding machines. Thirty-five alleged pickup men forfeited $15 each by failure to appear for a hearing following their arrest, they said.

Those freed were Sidney Bahn, son of the convicted man; William Reddington, John Mulligan and Paul Whalen. Joseph Bahn was to be sentenced late today by Visiting Judge William T. Darr.

POWELL TO ACT IN CAGNEY FILM

A movie contract with Warner Brothers has been awarded Dick Powell, Stanley Theater master of ceremonies, and the crooner will leave the Pittsburgh theater this month to appear with James Cagney and blonde Joan Blondell in "Blessed Event."

The contract was the result of the screen test made two weeks ago at the Vitaphone studios in Brooklyn. In his first movie effort Powell will be a radio crooner.

After coming here from Indianapolis where he directed an orchestra in a dance hall, Powell has tripled his salary in three years. He will be given leave of absence from the Stanley where he will return after completing his picture.

Marriage of Film Couple Annulled

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—(AP)—The Tia Juana marriage of Nethalie Margoulis, motion picture actress, and Charles Horton, actor, was annulled here yesterday. Miss Margoulis testified they failed to comply with the Mexican marriage laws as to length of residence, saying:

"We were married last June 5. As soon as I learned the ceremony was not entirely legal, I left my husband."

She received custody of their infant daughter and Horton was ordered to pay $25 a week toward the child's support.

Pitt Students at Training Institute

Members of the freshmen, sophomores and juniors women's classes at the University of Pittsburgh are attending the closing sessions today of the Institute for the Training of Student Leaders at the Heinz House. Subjects discussed at the institute include "The Meaning of Leadership" in a university.

Two Boys Burned While Fixing Auto

Two McDonald boys were in Mercy Hospital today, one seriously burned, as a result of their efforts to repair their auto in Valley street, McDonald, last night, when a pan of gasoline was exploded. John Carroll, 19, was reported in serious condition. John Love, 19, was less seriously burned.

To Investigate Relief Recipients

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 8.—Demand that the Washington County Poor directors investigate persons receiving aid, was made by the Washington Chamber of Commerce, which declared a private survey had shown 280 undeserving persons receiving aid.

Included among these, the chamber asserted, were eight bootleggers, two gamblers, 112 who are working, 18 who receive compensation or pensions, 15 duplications by various names, two repeatedly intoxicated in public places, 14 owning their own properties, 12 in business, 12 driving their own cars, two operating trucks, two operating coal yards and 18 giving fictitious addresses.

Auto Injures Boy, 3, Police Trail Driver

Three-year-old Lawrence Huren, of 7104 Churchland street, suffered cuts and bruises when struck by a hit-and-run motorist in front of his home last night, according to a police report. The boy was treated by a physician. Police are searching for the motorist, whose license number was obtained by pedestrians.

FIRE EQUIPMENT FOR MAYVIEW PROPOSED

Modern System to Protect Lives, Property Urged by Smith After Council Tour

Recommendations that a modern and efficient fire alarm system be installed at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview were made today by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, following a visit to the institution. Smith accompanied City Council on its annual inspection tour there yesterday.

Smith also recommended to Council and Public Welfare Director Mrs. Enoch Rauh that a new fire truck be purchased. The present equipment is obsolete, having been in service more than 20 years.

Discussing the present fire prevention activities at Mayview, Chief Smith said:

"The millions of dollars invested in equipment and buildings there, as well as the lives of the hundreds of inmates and employes, should be protected. Council should take steps to do so at once. Men could be trained in the fire school here to form the nucleus of an efficient institutional department. The cost would be small and the results overwhelming."

Councilmen expressed themselves as "well pleased" with conditions at the home. All buildings and equipment were inspected.

Those who made the trip included Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Director of Public Welfare; Chief Clerk Joseph P. McDonough, of the Welfare Department; Budget Controller Robert J. Alderdice, City Clerk Robert Clark, Assistant City Clerk Edward Lindsay and Councilmen John S. Herron, Clifford B. Connelley, William J. Soost, P. J. McArdle, W. Y. English and Harry A. Little.

Superintendent and Mrs. James S. Hammers entertained the visitors at luncheon.

Officer Naps While Man Wrecks Home

Edward Jacks, 25, no home, arrested after he was alleged to have wrecked furnishings in the home of Patrolman John H. Reese, at 236 Smith way, Mt. Washington, while the officer lay asleep in a second floor bedroom late yesterday, was being held for arraignment in Mt. Washington Police Court today.

Jacks, who, police said, had been drinking, walked into the patrolman's home, smashed china and other furnishings before neighbors, attracted by the noise, summoned police. When the officers arrived they said they found Reese still asleep and arrested Jacks, who was walking up Smith way, carrying a pair of children's "rompers."

Carnegie Slaying Suspect Captured

Located in Washington County where, police said, he fled following the fatal shooting of Joseph Brooks, 22, Negro, of Vine street, Carnegie, during an altercation over a card game, Richard Bell, 39, Negro, of Jane street, Carnegie, was held today for questioning by police.

He was returned last night by Carnegie police and Constable Michael Robb, of Smith Township, Washington County. Brooks was shot as he walked in Jane street, Carnegie, Saturday night.

Score Reported Dead In Damascus Riots

JERUSALEM, April 8.—(AP.)—Several persons were killed and many others injured in election rioting at Damascus, according to unconfirmed reports reaching here today. The reports said the public square was barricaded and the city closed to traffic.

RAID ON SHIP YIELDS DOPE

NEW YORK, April 8.—(INS.)—Five packing cases containing cocaine and other drugs with an "addict valuation" of $1,440,000 were seized by government agents today aboard the French liner Ile De France.

The dope was masquerading as a shipment of "toys." Customs officials said only four larger seizures of drugs had ever been made in this country. The cases contained cocaine, morphine, heroin and codeine. Total weight of the contraband was 24,000 ounces, valued by the agents at $60 an ounce.

A man was arrested in connection with the attempted smuggling as he was about to board a train for Montreal.

Assessment Ruling Will Aid Chicago

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 8.—(AP.)—Escape from the tax tangle that had kept Chicago from collecting money from property holders to meet municipal expenses was made easier by a decision of the State Supreme Court today. The justices held valid the 1929 tax assessment in Cook County.

LEAPS TO DEATH AT NIAGARA

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., April 8.—(AP.)—Overpowering a reservation patrolman, an unidentified man leaped into the Niagara River near Prospect Point today and was carried over the American Falls to his death.

A hat found on shore bore the label of a Cleveland department store, and reservation officials think the man may have come from that city.

4 Men Injured As Autos Crash

Four men were injured, three slightly, when the cars of Louis Scanlon, of Willock and Sam Barchfield, of Clairton crashed on the Clairton road at Option last night. Barchfield was taken to St. Joseph hospital. Henry Mulholland and Ernest Sherman, of Clairton, passengers in Barchfield's car, and Scanlon were slightly injured.

Death of Woman To Be Investigated

Deputy coroners said they would investigate the death of Mrs. Mary Pocapko, 60, of 927 Talbot avenue, Braddock, yesterday in the Braddock Hospital, where she had been a patient for four weeks. According to the Coroner's report, the hospital was unable to establish the cause of death, because the relatives of the woman refused to permit an autopsy.

Police Hunt Asked For 2 Missing Boys

Police have been asked to search for Norman Gallagher, 12, of 44 Hallock street, and his cousin, William Parfitt, 12, missing from home since yesterday morning. The boys did not report at St. Mary's of the Mount school yesterday, and sent word to the sisters at the school that they were ill, according to police.

Squirrel Hill Man Arrested in Lottery

Saul Lang, 45, of 6328 Douglass avenue, Squirrel Hill, was arrested early today after Sam Snider, of Sherbrook street, a burglar suspect, told police he was selling baseball pool tickets for him, according to a police report.

Snider was arrested in the home of G. G. Lobdell, 204 South Braddock avenue, police said. In his pockets the officers said they found baseball tickets and skeleton keys.

MEYER JONASSON'S

LIBERTY AT OLIVER

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Kik Roberts should change her name and avoid the hounding she is experiencing . . . She was given a soft deal in one of the hotels not in the Broadway belt—when they recognized her . . . After several weeks of paying her fees and being a goody . . . If she hadn't spoken the other night I wouldn't have known her . . . She has paled so—and thinned a lot—and she features a huge pin spelling her nickname on her frocks—to help those who may have forgotten to remember her name . . . She was such a cute little kid two years ago—or whenever it was before she switched environments and became a front-page "star."

The day has its aches . . . The passing of Deegan leaves me melancholy . . . He was one of the wealthies . . . Wonder how some of the lads starring in the pantheons at huge wages get away with their so-called big-time talent? . . . No wonder that most audiences are getting so fussy . . . I hope that the chap who gets an entire act out of a bearded anecdote is saving his currency . . . He will need it before another season unfolds . . . The mother of that kid who furnishes the amusing comedy relief in Mary Pickford's newsreel episode has a gold mine in him . . . Leave it to the fast workers to cash in on the theory that one should get the gravy while one can—and the devil with the fellow who comes in second . . . Now comes a volume purporting to be the true story of the Lindbergh drama . . . True? . . . Meaning what? . . . Wonder if James Durante, too long absent from our feverish midst was disappointed . . . I mean when he returned to the Broadway he shelved for the movie colony and found it so empty.

The ousting of Editor Reed Harris from that university gazette irks me . . . He exposed or tried to at any rate some of the messy happenings that were giving the school a foul odor—and for serving them so faithfully he was rewarded with expulsion . . . Well, from the demonstration on the campus the other day there must be something to the chap . . . I trust he is vindicated soon and returned to his editorial desk . . . And that all the encouragement from the town's rags doesn't go to his knees . . . Wonder what Martin Beck thinks about as he hugs the rear rail of the Palace and watches the proceedings . . . And if he thinks that there is much Big Time—any more? . . . The husband of that former "Follies" dolly thought the wildest things when she didn't come home all night . . . That she had run off with another was his first fear and he grieved so . . . All the time she feared letting him know where she was—painfully injured in a nearby hospital after a motor crash . . . She didn't want to distress him, she said later . . . There is no reasoning—when a man loves a woman the way he adores her—and when she imagines things . . . The more a man loves the more he suffers . . . There is no deep love without jealousy.

I wish there were more spots to make on Broadway . . . Oh, I mean places where the routine changes now and then and breaks the monotony . . . There seems to be little ambition left in those who are holding down the best pews . . . They are so content with themselves . . . And so they decay . . . It is depressing to hear them and their theories on why things are as they are . . . They will say that business is so listless because money is scarce, yet the auto show appears to be enticing a heavy amount of it . . . And gambling is catching on again—and the girls appear to be in style with the costliest looking frocks . . . It isn't that bad that money isn't being used for diversion, any more . . . The trouble remains with the Barnums who won't try to elevate their investments—or at least dust them off . . . One of these midnights some chap—with a little spark in him—will come to Broadway and lap up the gravy, which is there . . . Anyone can achieve things on Broadway . . . The Big Idea is to survive it!

In "Grand Hotel," where you will not be able to sleep in the Alvin next week, Sam Jaffe portrays a man whose doctor has told him he has but a few weeks to live. Yet he is the life of the party. Mr. Jaffe thought he'd ask his co-actors what they'd do if the doctor told them that. Eugenie Leontovich said she'd play "Camille" at once—at least once. Siegfried Rumann expressed a wish to swim in a lake of beer. Paula Truman would just go on. Alfred Van Dekker would visit all the friends he could. And Sam Jaffe? Well, Sam said he'd get another doctor.

Norman S. Carroll, general manager for Earl Carroll, will come to Pittsburgh from New York Saturday. The anniversary of the death of his mother, April 10, is an occasion of an annual visit to her grave by the children. Two will be missing this year—Earl, now in Nice, France, and James H. Carroll, now on the Pacific Coast with the touring "Vanities" that was here earlier in the season. The tribute to the memory of their mother will be paid Sunday by Norman Carroll and his sister Mrs. Franz Schneider, wife of a New York financial editor.

Blaze in Hospital Routs 180 Patients

LAKELAND, Ky., April 8.—(AP)—One hundred and eighty patients at Central State Hospital, here, were routed late last night by a fire on the third floor of the men's ward.

The fire, believed by hospital authorities to have been caused by defective wiring, was discovered by attendants and was extinguished by automatic sprinklers and Louisville and Anchorage firemen.

The Blushing Columnist In Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 8.—Newsiest lot in Hollywood today is R-K-O, where David Selznick has six pictures working and several more scheduled for an early start. One of these is the Broadway columnist story, "Is My Face Red?" And it was just decided today that Helen Twelvetrees will have the chief feminine role, that of a show-girl.

Ricardo Cortez

Helen is very busy these days. She'll go into the part immediately after completing "States Attorney" opposite John Barrymore.

The columnist story, which grew out of a one-act play by Ben Markson and Allan Rivkin, will parade a flock of well-known R-K-O players. To mention some: there are Ricardo Cortez, Robert Armstrong, Phyllis Clare and Arline Judge.

Originally this playlet ran at the Writers' Club in Hollywood, where it created quite an impression. Later, when all the studios started clamoring for columnist stories, the two authors expanded it. One of them, Ben Markson, was promoted from the R-K-O publicity department so that he could do the screen treatment.

William Seiter will direct.

GOSSIP

Phillips Holmes is in the Good Samaritan Hospital for an operation on the twisted ligament in his knee. If he recovers in time, he may play in Constance Bennett's new picture Due to conflict with "The Bird of Paradise," Joel McCrea will not get that lead after all . . . Hollywood is sorry about the trouble between Buster and Natalie Keaton. They've been a devoted couple for so long . . . Aileen Pringle will be receiving her divorce one of these days. Her husband, Charles McKenzie Pringle, has sent the necessary papers from the West Indies and it only remains for the Mexican court to be notified at Juarez . . . Clark Gable would like to know the person who painstakingly chopped up pencil shaving and mixed them with his pipe tobacco . . . Greta Nissen and Weldon Heyburn were at the Fox studio taking bows today . . . As I rumored some time ago, Ben Lyon will play opposite

Phillips Holmes

Joan Bennett in her new Fox picture, "Week-Ends Only" . . . Director Norman McLeod and his wife were painfully injured when their car was wrecked Sunday morning on Ventura boulevard. They were returning from a location trip.

JOAN'S NEW JOB

Joan Marsh, one of Hollywood's prettiest blondes, will go to Fox to play in the picture that once was known as "Precious." On the day the deal was made, R-K-O also tried to borrow her for the lead opposite Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "Hold 'Em Jail." Joan is under contract to M. G. M.

Another blonde actress, Myrna Loy, also has a new assignment. She'll play the siren in the Chevalier picture, "Love Me Tonight."

Doctor Now

Richard Barthelmess is seen as a great surgeon who goes back to the farm in "Alias the Doctor," coming to the Enright screen for three days tomorrow.

Children's Theater Opens Tomorrow

The Children's Theater will make its debut tomorrow afternoon in the Pitt, where it will give one performance of the fantasy, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." The cast is composed of more than a score of local amateurs and professionals, society folk and talented youngsters. Mrs. Jerome Katz is directing the production and assisting her in the organization work is Mrs. Frank Weberman.

Helen Sisenwain will play the title role and others in the company will include Frances Heckert, Stephanie Diamond, Virginia Bialas, Lydia Patterson, Alfred Smith and Arthur Dimling.

Nagging Wife And Radio In Film

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Are You Listening?" opened yesterday on the Fulton screen. It is a drama of a nagging wife and the radio. What an inspired combination!

The star is William Haines, smart alex of the screen. But in this one he cuts out much of his clowning and goes in for portraying the more serious type of young man. Which may make him more sensible, yet not as interesting.

The story is laid against a radio background, and, while the title may sound a bit flippant, the plot takes a melodramatic twist and drags in a murder and a manhunt.

STRAYING HUSBAND

Incidentally, the picture has as many "complexes" as a wild razzberry bush has sprouts. There is a sister act, with playboys who don't mean what they say when they promise to marry the little girl. There is a Five-Star-Finalish touch, with unscrupulous editors and that sort of thing. There is "the other woman" and, in this case, she is the heroine.

The main theme concerns Haines, who, married to a nagging wife, strays from the hearthstone. Of course, after you hear Karen Morley, as the wife, "bawl" him out, you don't blame him a bit.

UP THE RIVER

Madge Evans is the girl he strays to. Others in the cast include Neil Hamilton, Jean Hersholt, Anita Page, Wallace Ford, Joan Marsh and John Miljan.

The film, based on J. P. McEvoy's story, has its chief claim for amusement in its backstage-of-radio atmosphere. And we suppose the ending is happy enough, provided Miss Evans doesn't get tired waiting for Mr. Haines, who is sent up the river for three years. Anyway, Hero Haines takes it philosophically. He says:

"Maybe the depression will be over by the time I get out."

We certainly hope so, Mr. Haines.

On the Jury

Edna May Oliver has the leading role in "Ladies of the Jury," which opens a three-day engagement in the Sheridan Square with a special preview showing at 10:55 tonight.

Two Screen Actors in Person

Two Hollywood actors open in person here today.

The Penn presents on its stage Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, who also is to be seen on that theater's screen in "The Passionate Plumber." Polly Moran and Buster Keaton are in the cast.

The Stanley stage features Regis Toomey, former Pittsburgher, who in the last few years has come into a prominent place on the talking screen. The photoplay is "Play Girl," starring Loretta Young.

OPENING TODAY

"Girl Crazy," with a cast including Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Dorothy Lee and Eddie Quillan, opens on the Warner screen today.

Helen Twelvetrees is the star of "Panama Flo," which comes to the Davis today for a week's engagement.

The Harris, beginning tomorrow, will feature Chester Morris in the aviation drama, "Cock of the Air."

OTHER BOOKINGS

"Alias the Doctor," starring Richard Barthelmess, opens for three days in the Enright tomorrow.

The Sheridan Square, beginning tomorrow, will present "Ladies of the Jury," starring Edna Mae Oliver.

The German film, "A Waltz by Strauss," will be seen all next week in the Avenue Cinema.

Peaches Browning will open a week's engagement Sunday midnight in the Academy in the burlesque, "Peaches of 1932."

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

BY MARK HELLINGER

In Which a Customer Does the Work

"DEAR MARK:" writes "Scotty," the Hollywood cameraman, from Los Angeles. "Here is a little story that I've been wanting to get off my chest for some time.

"There isn't much chance that you'll remember me, but I was one of the many news hounds who shot your picture with the missus when you were out in Hollywood several years ago. I warn you that I'm far better behind the lens than in back of a pen. But my story is authentic and from the heart—and that might cover a multitude of bad paragraphs.

"A number of years ago, when I was a cameraman for the Neely Vanderbilt rag out here, I had to come down to the office three nights a week.

"On one occasion I walked into the office and found a job that plenty of my eastern pals would have found to their liking. A group of girls had just been chosen by an organization as those feminine motion picture players who were most likely to become stars. And it was up to me to picture them individually and collectively.

"As I say, plenty of the boys would have liked that job—but I guess maybe I've grown a trifle callous. I looked the dames over and, if you'll take my word for it, they were the crummiest-looking bunch of femmes I ever saw in one group. And that's saying a whole lot.

"There was but one gal in the mob who looked like anything, and she stood out like a million bucks. Her heels were run down, there were plenty of runs in her stockings, and the balance of her ensemble could have used an expert cleaning and repairing job. But her personality was a honey, and I liked her immediately.

"She proved to be an inquisitive sort of cuss, and she insisted on following the course of my flashlight pictures through to the finish. As we stood in the dark room—and I want none of your misunderstandings — she told me much of her life and her plans. You know exactly what she said, Mark. Better, probably, than I.

"Well, I just couldn't help myself. She was such a dog-gone likable kid that I volunteered to help her from then on. I was far from a big shot, but I could get her a photo break every now and then. And the very next day I used her in a gag photo that I had to shoot every time the picture editor was shy on art.

"A short time later she acquired a manager-press agent. He was a hard-working disabled World War veteran who turned out cheese poetry and didn't know what the news or movie racket was all about. But he worked as hard and conscientiously as ever a man could for a girl. Naturally, I helped. And, together, we planted art on her until the picture editors all over town refused to see us again.

"I quit Vanderbilt's paper about this time and started with a photo syndicate. Now I was able to get her some real breaks; pictures that would help her nationally. Meanwhile, she was doing very little—and both she and her manager-press agent could only pray for the one break that would lead them both to fame and fortune.

"Although neither of them knew it, that break was just around the corner. She had just completed a tiny part in a film that was destined to become one of the biggest successes of the year. I don't think she drew more than 15 or 20 feet, but that was enough. Her rise was absolutely meteoric. Almost overnight she became a big shot in the movie world.

"A funny thing about the situation, Mark, was that, just a few days before, I had given the girl and her manager the first square meal they had eaten in two days. More than that, I split a five-spot between them and told the girl that I only wished I could help her a little more. And did those people fall on my neck! The promises that girl made are still ringing in my ears.

"'Scotty,' she said, 'you're the best pal anybody ever had. That break is going to come some day and, when it does, you're going to share it with me. I'll buy you the finest home in Hollywood and the best car you ever saw.

"'Just you wait and see. I never forget kindness. And you've been swell beyond belief.'

"It all sounded fine to me, Mark, and when I heard the big news only a short time later, I'll bet I was almost as happy as she was. I wanted to see and congratulate her immediately, but she had moved into the Ambassador as soon as she signed the important contract, and I knew she was very busy. So I merely sent her a wire and let it go at that.

"About a week later came very disturbing news. The manager-press agent walked into my office and cried like a baby. If he didn't have a broken heart, he'd certainly do until a guy with a broken heart came along.

"'She kicked me out, Scotty,' he told me. 'I did everything a human being could do for her, and now she wants no part of me. I can't reach her by phone and they throw me out of the lobby when I try to get in. Why is life like this?'

"I certainly couldn't answer that question, and I never saw the other man again. He had believed in the girl's honesty and sincerity, and he had never dreamed of asking her for a contract. He had no claim of any kind, and his humiliation was so great that he left town the next day.

"The girl couldn't be stopped. She sailed on into the great fame she now holds. Eventually she met the boy she loved. She married him. And today she is supremely happy. . . .

"In my bruising around in the business of shooting pictures I was recently assigned to a children's hospital, and there met a little girl who is a hopeless cripple. I talked to the child and she told me that, of all the stars in the movie world, she loved my old companion the most. The kid also said that if she could only get an autographed photo of her she'd be the happiest girl in the world.

"I felt very sorry for the child. I told her I would get her a picture; not the regulation studio kind, but one that would be autographed directly to her. And when I saw that cripple's face light up, I already felt more than repaid.

"I hadn't seen the star in several years, but I dug up her address and went out to the house. It took considerable argument on my part to convince the butler that Scotty was one person who would surely be welcome. He finally left somewhat dubiously and returned with the celebrated mistress of the household.

"I felt somewhat silly as I told her who I was, and explained the mission on which I had come. In a few seconds I felt still sillier. She said she vaguely recalled having met me somewhere before, but that she was quite certain that she would not be interested in signing photographs for strangers. And she slammed the door in my face.

"You know what I did, Mark? Something that's against the law. I signed the star's name to an affectionate message on a photograph and gave it to the crippled kid.

"And it all worked out great, too. The child loves the star more than ever now." . . .

"Bee" BRAND Liquid Spray

Prudence Penny's Recipes

WHOLE WHEAT CHOWDER—2 cups diced carrots, 1 pint boiling water, ½ cup diced salt pork, 4 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 pint milk, 2 cups cooked whole wheat, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

Cook the carrots in the boiling water until tender. Fry the salt pork until crisp, remove it from the fat and cook the onions in the fat. Stir in the flour and cook a few minutes longer. Mix all ingredients in the upper part of a double boiler, stir until well blended, and cook about 10 minutes.

* * *

WHOLE WHEAT AND BEEF—2 tablespoons fat, 4 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 pound beef diced, flour, 3 cups water, ¼ of a chili pepper, salt, 2 cups cooked whole wheat.

Melt the fat and cook the onion for a few minutes, then add the meat which has been lightly rolled in flour. When the meat has browned somewhat add the water. Partly cover and simmer until the meat is tender. Stir in the chili pepper and the wheat, and add salt to taste.

* * *

MEXICAN RICE—1 cup salt pork or bacon diced, 2 large onions sliced, 1 cup rice, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 cups tomato, 1 cup chili sauce, 2 cups hot water, ½ teaspoon chili powder.

Cook the salt pork or bacon in a large frying pan until crisp. Remove from the fat; add the onion, brown it in the fat, and remove. Wash the rice and drain it thoroughly. Place it in the fat, stirring until it is a golden brown, then add the salt, tomato, chili sauce, and water. Cover and cook until the rice has absorbed all the liquid and is tender, adding a little more water if necessary. Season with the chili powder, and the salt pork or bacon, and serve hot.

* * *

DATE KISSES—Two egg whites, ⅔ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup chopped almonds, ½ package sliced dates.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; beat in sugar gradually. Add salt and vanilla. Fold in dates and nuts. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls on well-oiled baking sheet or inverted pan. Bake in slow oven, about 30 minutes. Remove from pan with broad bladed knife.

* * *

PEAR SALAD WITH GINGER MAYONNAISE—Three cups diced pears, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons chopped preserved ginger and syrup, ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup cream, whipped.

Sprinkle pears with lemon juice and salt. Toss lightly together with dressing made by folding ginger and mayonnaise into the whipped cream. Serve on crisp lettuce. Serves six.

* * *

MACAROON PUDDING—1 pint of milk, ½ cup of granulated sugar, 2 tablespoon of vanilla, 5 egg yolks, 1¾ pounds macaroons, ¾ cup raisins, 28 almonds, 1-3 box of granulated gelatine, water, 5 stiffly beaten egg whites, whipped cream.

Put the milk, sugar, and vanilla together in pan and let boil. Then remove from fire and pour mixture very slowly over the beaten egg yolks, being sure to stir every single minute while doing this. Then beat mixture until it has cooled. Next, add the macaroons, raisins, almonds, gelatine, which has been soaked in a little cold water and strained, and add all to the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Make Glasses and china
Sparkle brilliantly

LIKE DISPLAYS IN FINE SHOPS

REALLY there is no secret how fine shops make glasses and china sparkle brilliantly . . . like costly jewels.

Just add a teaspoon of Climalene to your dishwater. Then use only ¼ the amount of soap or soap flakes you now use. Wash your dishes in the soft, lasting suds. Rinse with hot water. And you will find that they "gleam" and "sparkle" the same identical way. Climalene softens the water and so takes away that greasy feeling that is so annoying in dishwater. It's the grease that makes your glasses "streaked" and dishes "dingy." Use it wherever you use water for cleaning, in the kitchen, laundry and bathroom.

Your grocer has Climalene. Ask him for it today. It's in a bright, shiny, blue box in two sizes, 12 ounces for 10c, and 2 lbs. for 25c. The Climalene Company, Canton, Ohio.

BREAD AND CAKE PUDDING—8 thin slices of bread and butter, 4 thin slices of left over cake, 4 eggs, 1 quart of milk, 2 dessertspoons of sugar, ¼ teaspoon of salt, a few grains of cinnamon, currants or candied lemon.

Cut off the crusts of the left over bread and divide each slice of bread into four squares. Cut the pieces of cake into same sized squares as the bread. Then arrange pieces of bread and cake in layers in a well greased baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with currants, or if the cinnamon is omitted, the candied lemon. Beat the eggs, add the sugar, to which has been added a few grains of cinnamon, if you care for it. Also add the salt and milk and stir until dissolved. Pour gently over the bread and cake in baking dish. Let mixture stand for an hour so that the bread and cake may have become soaked and then bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for an hour. If the cinnamon is used for flavoring it is advisable to use the candied lemon for additional flavor. Serve with the following sauce: Stir in 2 tablespoons of flour and keep on stirring until perfectly smooth. Then add ½ a cup of sugar gradually. Scald 1 cup of milk and add to first mixture, stirring constantly as milk is added gradually. When mixture has thickened add 2 slightly beaten egg yolks and cook in double boiler for three minutes. Then add a banana which has been peeled, scraped and pressed through a strainer. Stir mixture well and set aside to cool. Put in just a few grains of salt, and last of all, fold in a cup of whipped cream. If you do not care for the banana flavor use a teaspoon of vanilla extract instead.

LIVER A LA KING—1 pound liver, 2½ tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 pimentos cut in small pieces, 1 tablespoon green pepper, minced, 2½ tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon milk, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¾ cup button mushrooms, halved, 1 tablespoon onion, grated.

Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and blend well; then gradually add milk, stirring well until thick, then add green pepper. Let cook slowly 5 minutes. Scald liver. Remove skin and membranes from

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Girl Step Out If Fiance Is Broke?

Is Juliet a gold digger, just because she'd like to step out now and then, even though Romeo's broke and can't take her?

G. M. asks this. His purse was getting thin, so shows and parties and nifty dinners were out; and the girl of his dreams was a little tired of chummy strolls past movie palaces and snooty restaurants. Added to that, other gents—old friends of hers—wanted to take her to the palaces G. M. couldn't.

"And why shouldn't I go now and then?" she asked. "I do love you. Truly, I do. But I'd like a little fun, too. I'd rather go with you, of course, but since you're broke." And so the argument was on, with G. M. feeling plenty sorry for himself and doubting that she cared a whoop for him.

So he asked us what was what, and we put it up to the gang. Was she doing him dirt? Or wasn't she? Should he be a good sport and let her go without a row? Or shouldn't he?

JUST A GOLD DIGGER

"She is—and he shouldn't," snorts Jack. "I always try to be fair," he goes on, "but my idea of this girl is just simply zero. Just because he can't take her out, she wants to go out with someone else, and he's simple enough to believe that she loves him!

"If she wanted to go out with girl friends, I'd say okay. But my opinion is that she's just a plain gold digger.

"I have met her kind lots of times, but I never was simple enough to love one of them. Thank God I have one who takes the bad with the good. Good or bad, she's the same. And that is real love.

"And here's a bit of advice for old G. M.

IS SHE SELFISH?

"If she isn't willing to sacrifice a little fun now, when you are down, then you are far too good a man to waste your time on her when you get on your feet. Get some backbone.

"If she loves you, she won't be selfish about a little pleasure, nor expect you to endure what she most certainly wouldn't endure if the tables were turned."

Believe that stranger? Think the gal's just a li'l' bandit? Think she's selfish to want fun even if G. M. can't give it to her?

Gloria doesn't; and she's right here to tell us all about it. Listen.

"May I say a word to G. M., and also tell my story?" she asks.

"Let your girl go out with your approval, G. M., and be thankful that she's honest enough to tell you about it. Her wanting to doesn't mean she doesn't love her. It only means she is human. I am a girl myself, 22, and engaged to a man who loves me just as you do that girl of yours. But I'm tired of sitting home night after night, too, with only a walk or an occasional movie.

My fiance has been out of work for eight months. For six I was on the level with him, then I began to lie about where I went. I went to a party and met some one else who loves parties and fun as I do.

"Why did I lie about it? Because I didn't dare tell Bob the truth. He is the silent, steady, one-woman type, and is terribly sensitive, and he would have made a terrible fuss and been frightfully hurt. Now, maybe you think I am rotten or unfair—or anything.

INTENDS TO CONFESS

"But I do want some fun. I guess I am doing wrong, but do you blame me? I'll tell Bob about it all some day, when he is on his feet again. I'd tell him now if he were working, but he is too down, so I won't.

"If your girl has told you fairly and squarely the way she feels, and still says she loves you, take her word for it, and don't keep her from having a little fun now and then. If she's regular, she'll love you all the more for it. Don't be selfish, or that may lose you her love."

Who's right?

Is G. M.'s gal just a lightweight, as Jack thinks, because her young feet long to prance now and then? Is she being selfish when she asks him to let her step out once in a while?

Or is he selfish to object because she wants to?

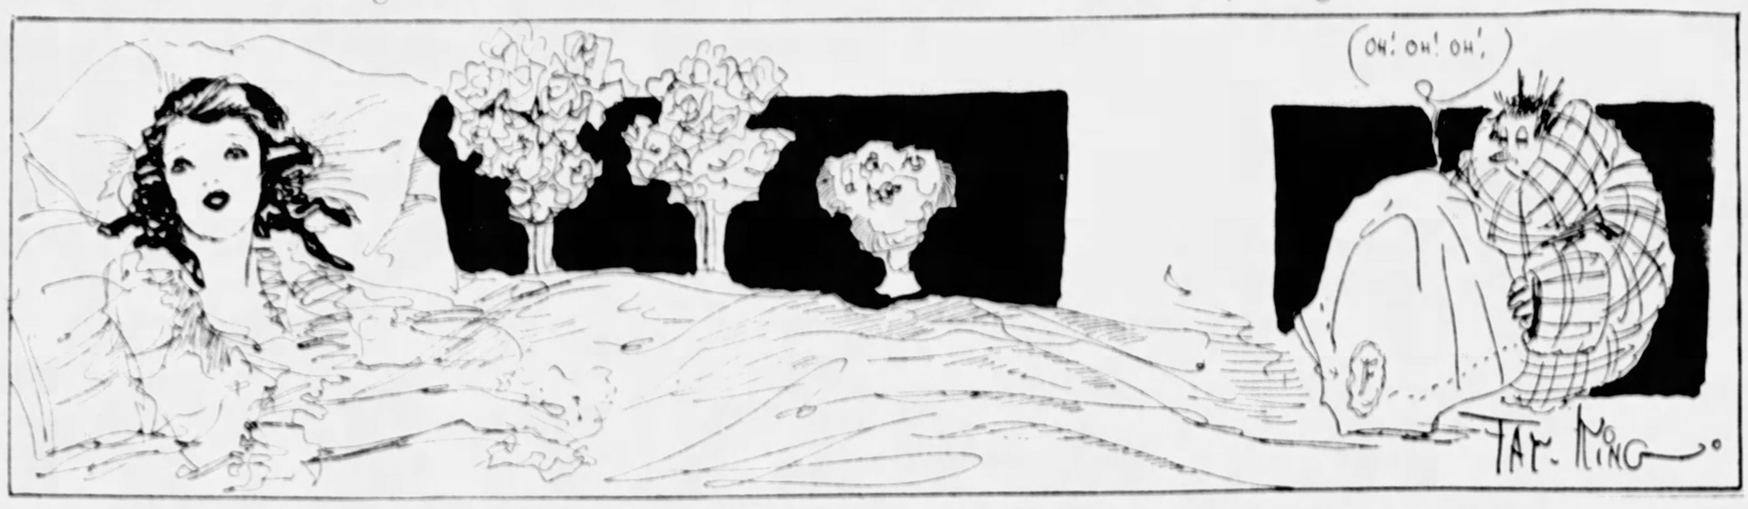
Looking Beautiful When You Have a Cold Is an Art, Fay King Asserts



By FAY KING

It has been my observation that those who like to have visitors when they are sick know perfectly well that they can be bilious and beautiful at the same time.

You call and find them cuddled in a heap of snowy pillows. They are so angelically pale, and smile so wistfully, sympathy is easy.

But those of us who find it hard to sympathize with ourselves, we look so funny when we are sick with a cold in the head, don't want to see anybody or have anybody see us.

When my poor nose takes on the proportions of an Alpine peak, and I am wearing two sweaters and a plaid bathrobe, and manipulating man-sized handkerchiefs, I don't want a gallery!

Katherine Again Refers to Baby Faith as "My Baby"

We paid no attention at first to Katherine's assertion that she had to get something straightened out before she went any further. We were so anxious to hear the news from the sick room that our voices sounded like one as we plied her with questions concerning the condition of the sick room.

"Who can tell—yet?—" she answered a bit impatiently. "He's alive, that's the one thing we know, and he seems to have enormous amount of vitality concealed somewhere in that frail body, but I didn't come up to discuss his vitality with you."

Harry Underwood gravely drew a chair forward for her.

"Sit down, Katrina," he said, "and relieve the alleged mind."

"I can't stay long enough to sit down," Katherine protested, but Dicky deftly took her by both arms and put her in the chair.

"That's all right," he said, "but Harry and I refuse to be kept standing for more than five minutes."

"Unfortunately I was brought up a lady," Katherine said, "or I'd give you the right answer to that. Also I haven't time to waste on you. I want to know if you expect me to keep on attending this man over in the library?"

"Who else?" Harry Underwood countered. "You're the best nurse in the country—don't waste time in taking a bow—you're on the spot and we don't want to put strangers on this case—too much talkey talk."

"I can understand that last," Katherine said, "and I guess you all know that there is a distinct thrill to me in getting hold of a real surgical case again, but there's some thing else far more important. Have you thought of what's to become of my baby while I'm doing sentry go over this wounded Chinese?"

JEALOUSY FLAMES AGAIN

"My baby." The words caroned around my heart, bruising at every stop. I knew that Katherine had used the words playfully, and was unconscious of their having any effect whatever upon me. But I also was sure of something else—that she was equally unconscious of the strength of her own feeling toward my tiny daughter.

Junior was the same to her as a beloved nephew, but Faith had been in her sole care since birth. I knew the haunting tragedy of her life, her thwarted motherhood, and had watched with jealous uneasiness, of which I was deeply ashamed, the unconscious adoration she was lavishing upon my child.

What was the matter with me, I wondered, that I could not control this jealousy of mine whenever my supremacy in either my husband's heart or those of my children seemed to be questioned? It was like a demoniac possession. I told myself wretchedly. Twice within the last few minutes it had stirred within me, once at Dickey's reference to Edith Fairfax, and now in much greater degree at Katherine's words.

I had but one gleam of comfort. No one knew of my feeling toward Katherine—which did not effect my very genuine love for her—and no one guessed the strength of my aversion to Edith Fairfax. I wondered drearily if perhaps many other women were not carrying about with them similar burdens, and tried to comfort myself with the sophistry that if I could control my thoughts so no one could guess them, I was doing no one but myself any real harm.

FORCES LAUGHTER

But I started as if at a blow when Katherine said solicitously,

"Madge, this has been too much for you. Come over here and lie down, and let me fix up something for you."

I knew what was the matter. The struggle to keep from betraying myself had made my cheeks pallid and my eyes strained. But her anxiety was a challenge to everything worth while within me, and I forced my lips to light laughter as I caught her by the arms and shook her slightly.

"You old fuss budget!" I said affectionately. "You're imagining things! I never felt better in my life except for a little nervousness over that poor chap over in the library—That—and—and a certain fear—" I skirted the threat under which we were all living— "sometimes give me a qualm for a second or two, but otherwise I'm perfectly all right. And if you have to take care of that wounded man, I'm sure I can manage to take care of Baby Faith and finish that fourth act, too, without neglecting her."

Present for a Baby

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to have your advice concerning a present for a two months' old baby. I have a pair of hand-made silk booties that I bought while I was in Japan. I would like to send the baby something else, as his mother is a very dear friend of mine. Would a silver loving cup or a silver rattle with his name engraved on it be too much?

THANK-YOU-FOR-HELP-ING-ME-BEFORE.

Any of these presents would be charming and appropriate, and since the mother is such a dear friend of yours, not too much. The silk booties would be an especially lovely present, I think and so unusual that I am sure the mother would be delighted with them.

Silver Initialing

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Inform me, if you will please, which is the correct initial to use on silver . . . that is, the first name or the last name. I have been told that the initial of the first name should be used, but in my case this is a bit confusing, since I am always called by my middle name, M. A. C.

Usually all three initials are used, forming a monogram, or as separate initials. Wouldn't this conventional use of the initials be especially important to you, and especially sensible? If you do not use the three initials or a monogram made of them, then by all means use the initial of your last name.

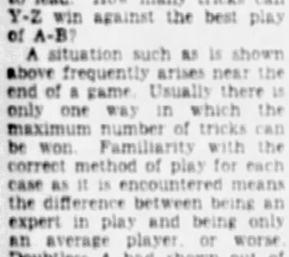
End Play Problems

Below is Problem No. 4, and its solution.



Diamonds are trumps. Y is to lead. How many tricks can Y-Z win against the best play of A-B?

A situation such as is shown above frequently arises near the end of a game. Usually there is only one way in which the maximum number of tricks can be won. Familiarity with the correct method of play for each case as it is encountered means the difference between being an expert in play and being only an average player, or worse. Doubtless A had shown out of trumps before the present situation arose, so that the declarer knows that B holds the 9-5 of trumps. Certainly Z knows that dummy holds two top clubs and that the K of spades is worth a trick. Z has only to carefully plan his play to win all five of the remaining tricks.

A moment's thought will convince Z that the duffer's method of playing off two winning cards from dummy, and then trumping the third trick, will cause Z to lead trumps up to B so that a diamond trick must be lost to the adversary. The grand coup must be employed. This consists of shortening trumps, so that Z will hold no more trumps than B. Then the third lead coming through B will oblige B to play a trump before Z, enabling the latter to pick up the adverse trumps without loss of a trick.

The solution of the problem lies in playing the hand as follows: Lead one of Y's top clubs. Discard thereon one spade from Z's hand. Lead Y's second good club. Z must trump, in order to shorten his diamonds, so that he can pick up both of B's trumps later on. Z must lead his last spade, winning with the K. Lead a spade from dummy. B must trump and Z will pick up both of B's diamonds.

PROBLEM 5

Hearts are trumps. Y is to lead. How many tricks can Y-Z win against the best defense of A-B? The solution will appear next week.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Early Care May Cure Cancer

A quarter of a century ago, cancer was considered a hopeless disease. I am glad to say that this is not the attitude of doctors today. Extensive study and research have made it possible the early recognition of cancer, and when it is recognized early, many cases which heretofore were considered fatal are cured.

Dr. Copeland

The cause of cancer is one of the mysteries of medicine, yet tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of this terrifying disease.

Since the cause is not known and prevention is not possible, cancer is fatal when overlooked or neglected, for when cancer is left to itself the "hopeless" stage of treatment is soon reached. Then it is too late to apply modern knowledge to its removal, but if early treatment is given the hope of recovery is very bright.

Regardless of age and condition of health, it is necessary for everyone to heed the first warnings. Too often the importance of the early symptoms is overlooked and resort is had to home remedies. It is strange that while most persons will seek the advice of a physician if they have pain around the heart, the same individuals will neglect stomach disturbances and attribute them to indigestion. Too many succumb to cancer of the stomach or intestines because they ignore the first warnings.

Please bear in mind that persistent and recurrent indigestion requires more than a home remedy. Often a simple X-ray picture will reveal an unsuspected cancer. When recognized early, before the growth spreads, the diseased tissues can be completely and safely removed.

Cancer is rare in children. When malignant disease is found in youth it is usually sarcoma—a rare form of cancer—and I am sorry to say that most of these pathetic cases are usually recognized too late. If parents would always remember that any persistent lump a child has may be the early stage of a malignant trouble the disease would be taken care of at a stage when there is every prospect of cure.

If a child complains of pain or soreness of a joint or bone the family doctor should be consulted. Remember that there is no such thing as "growing pain," and that all pains are not rheumatism.

Whenever you are in doubt, consult with a doctor. No better health investment can be made than prompt examination when pain is present. Periodic health examinations of every adult should be made, regardless of the state of health.

the liver and cut into half-inch squares. Cook liver 15 minutes in boiling water. Add to prepared sauce, add salt, pepper, pimentos, mushrooms and onions. Mix well and bring to a boil for about 2 or 3 minutes.

* * *

PORK LIVER, COUNTRY STYLE—4 slices salt pork, ½ pound sliced liver, 1 tablespoon flour, cornmeal, salt, pepper.

Fry the salt pork until golden brown; remove to a platter to keep warm. Wipe the liver over which boiling water has been poured and let stand for 10 minutes, roll in cornmeal, and fry until nicely browned. Season to taste with pepper and salt. Remove to a platter, add the flour to fat in pan and stir until it thickens and is smooth. Season, and pour over the liver.

* * *

RHUBARB PIE 1932—1 recipe plain pastry, 3 cups rhubarb (diced), 1 cup (½ package) dates (sliced), ⅔ cup sugar, 1½ tablespoons flour and 1 egg. Mix sugar and flour; add to beaten egg; mix with rhubarb and dates. Put in a pastry lined pie plate and cover with strips of pastry. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) for 25-30 minutes. Six servings.

* * *

FRESH PINEAPPLE AND STRAWBERRY SALAD—1 pint fresh strawberries, hulled and halved, ½ tablespoon lemon juice, 1½ tablespoons confectioners' sugar, ¾ cup fresh pineapple, diced and sweetened, or ¾ cup canned pineapple, diced and drained, ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup cream, whipped.

Sprinkle berries with lemon juice and sugar. Add pineapple. Arrange on crisp lettuce. Serve with dressing made by folding mayonnaise into whipped cream. Sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts, if desired. Serves six.

* * *

PANTRY SHELF SALAD—3 cups shredded cabbage, 1 cup diced pineapple, ¼ package dates, salad dressing, lettuce.

Soak cabbage in cold water until crisp. Drain thoroughly. Add pineapple (fresh or canned), slice the dates and add to French dressing or mayonnaise. Toss with two forks until well mixed. Serve in a cup of lettuce leaves. Six servings.

Plenty of Water Needed to Maintain Good Health

Every person should drink from six to eight glasses of water daily, according to noted physician.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner, New York City.
United States Senator from New York.

Though water is really a food, it is rarely considered as such. As a matter of fact it is a food that is essential to life. Without water everything belonging to the animal and vegetable kingdom would disappear. Yet its importance is not appreciated.

Its nutritional value is slight, of course. However, water is of tremendous importance in that it is the vehicle which carries nutrition to the cells and tissues of the body. It also regulates the temperature of the body and aids in removing the waste products.

Under normal conditions, an accurate water balance is maintained. When more water is passed from the body than is taken in, thirst is produced and instinctively water or fluids are desired. Likewise, when large amounts of water are taken, the output is increased. It is important that the water content of the body be kept at a definite level, otherwise the salt balance in the blood and tissues will be damaged.

This balance is influenced, too, by the atmosphere, age, occupation and the general condition of health. Heavy manual labor, or strenuous exercise, increases the heat production of the body, and this, in turn, causes a great loss of water. The water is lost in the from of sweat. The body loses water when the temperature is high and the humidity great.

Under normal conditions the amount of water passing through the kidneys depends upon the quantity consumed and what is passed through the skin, lungs and intestines. Lack of water injures the kindneys and causes a marked disturbance in the mechanics of the tissues and organs of the body. Many minor, as well as serious disturbances, of the body are caused by lack of sufficient water.

All solid foods contain water. Some foods contain more than others. The ordinary mixed diet furnished two or three quarts of water daily. Vegetables carry a good deal of water. Cucumbers, lettuce, wax beans, celery, asparagus and tomatoes contain about 90 per cent water.

Every person should drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily. Good health can not be maintained without liberal quantities of it. In disease, the value of water cannot be overestimated. It aids in diluting and removing accumulated poisons. It promotes kidney function and aids in the prevention of constipation.

Bear in mind that growth and normal development of the body can only be maintained by an adequate supply of water. A disturbed water balance lowers the resistance of the body to disease and infections.

JOHNSON REJECTS COME-BACK PLEAS

THE LURE OF the dollar sign may bring back the Dempseys and the Willards of the prize ring, and faded stars in other sports may return from over the hill to seek again the glare of the calcium and the roar of the crowd, but there is one who cannot be tempted. No matter how hard they try, they cannot induce Walter Johnson, pitching king of yesteryear, to fall for that comeback stuff. He is too sensible to attempt it seriously, and too honest and conscientious to lend himself to any circus stunt of the kind for the sake of fattening the gate receipts.

Walter Johnson

Frequently efforts have been made to get Johnson to appear on the slab once more before Washington fandom. Often he has been urged to step in and pitch a few innings. But always he has declined. This week he has again made it clear that he means it. Players and friends pleaded with him to try a comeback in an exhibition game which the Senators are to play with the Buffalo International League club in Washington next Sunday, but the attempt failed, like all the rest.

IT IS NOT that Walter lacks condition. He is in excellent physical shape and has been pitching to the Washington batters in practice almost every afternoon. Only a few days ago in Chattanooga he smoked them into Pat Gharrity's glove for 10 minutes at a rate that caused a group of his own players to gather around to watch him.

The Senators agree that, properly warmed up, Johnson would stop any club for two or three innings. But once the old fire ball lost its zip the hitters would get to it and whale it all over the park. Walter knows that. He also knows fans. He knows that cheers greeting his appearance in the box soon would be followed by cries of "Take him out." The fan is full of sentiment only until the ball game starts to slip away. So there will be no coming back by Johnson. He knows he is done and never again will he pitch in competition.

IT WAS JUST a case of preferring in an emergency the experience and steadiness of a washed-up old-timer over the greater speed of younger minor leaguers available that the Brooklyn club brought George Kelly back from Minneapolis to plug the hole at first base.

Kelly, nearing 35 and commuting between the majors and minors to such an extent that Brooklyn is the fifth National League club for which he has played, has long since been done as a big leaguer as far as regular work over a long stretch is concerned, but should serve to hold the Dodgers together for a time.

PITTSBURGH WAS ONE of the four clubs in the National for which Kelly played previously, and in his short trial here his showing was one of the most disappointing in Pirate records. Before sending George to Rochester in the International League in 1917, the Giants sold him to the Buccaneers on 10 days' trial, starting August 3. Kelly went through five straight games without getting a hit, and in eight games all told he made only two safeties in 23 times at bat for the sickly average of .087. He was turned back to the Giants as soon as the 10 days were up.

John S. Hammond

BASEBALL, FOOTBALL, BOXING, horse racing and some other sports may have felt the strain of the times, but according to Col. John S. Hammond, president of the New York Rangers, hockey is one pastime upon which the depression has had no effect. In fact, he reports that his club's receipts for the 1931-32 season were greater than in 1930-31.

"Before the season started I believed our club would lose money," Hammond said. "All other sports had decreases in gate receipts and it was natural to believe that hockey would suffer, too. But it did not suffer. Our intake for this last season slightly exceeded the total for the preceding year."

HOCKEY'S PROFITABLE SEASON saved some of the Rangers from cuts. Hammond revealed that those newly signed had contracts providing for salary reductions if receipts went under the figures for 1930-31, but stipulating that the men were to receive their former wages if the intake was as good or better.

The head of the Rangers also made it known that three members of the team now battling the Toronto Maple Leafs for the Stanley Cup and the world championship will be missing next season. He did not divulge the names of those to be dropped, but admitted that he is so well pleased with the work of his three rookies—Ott Heller, Cecil Dillon and Earl Seibert—that they figure prominently in his rebuilding plans.

RECEIPT OF A request from Wayne D. Brenkert, former Washington and Jefferson halfback, now head of a light projection company in Detroit, for a picture of a part of the action in the W. & J.-California Tournament of Roses football game on New Year's Day, 1922, leads Paul Lowry, Los Angeles scribe, to recall that Brenkert was the main actor in a dramatic 35-yard run to a touchdown, which was disallowed. The play was called back because Russell Stein, W. & J.'s captain, calling signals from his position, stepped offside, though he did not actually participate in the play.

THAT GAME WAS the famous battle to a scoreless tie in the mud at old Tournament Park. Lowry remembers among the sidelights that the W. & J. players kidded all-America Brick Muller by wiping their muddy hands on his clean jersey.

The W. & J. team was one of Greasy Neale's creations. Previously it had won all of 10 games played during the regular season of 1921. Among the outstanding players, in addition to Stein and Brenkert, were Kopf, Erickson, West, Konvolinka, Basista, McLaughlin, Crook Neal, Widerquist and Vince.

ONE OF THE biggest collections of college boxers ever to meet in a tournament is assembled at Penn State for contests today and tomorrow that will decide the individual collegiate championships of the country in eight weight divisions, and incidentally to try to qualify for the Olympic tryouts to be held in July.

Al Lewis

A number of the 74 entrants, representing more than 30 institutions and including six from the Pacific Coast, saw action recently at Carnegie Tech in the tournament of the New Eastern Conference, and many others boxed against Western Pennsylvania teams in the dual meet season.

TWO OF THE leading contenders are residents of Washington, Pa., these being Al Lewis, Penn State's 145-pound champion of the Eastern Association, and Pete D'Alessandro, of Temple, one of the little fellows to win in the Eastern Association title bouts here. Several entrants boast unusual records for young boxers. For instance James P. Connell, of Springfield (Mass.) College, has won 45 out of 46 bouts in a five-year stretch as an amateur and college boxer. Most of his boxing was done in the Youngstown (O.) area. Syracuse has entered Anthony Balash, a half-brother of Steve Halaiko, former Olympic team fighter. Two of the officials will be Pittsburgh men, Al Greyber and Red Robinson, who will divide the work of judging and refereeing about 75 bouts with Bryan Hayes and Frank McCracken, of Philadelphia.

Rangers at Toronto

FORT ERIE, Ontario, April 8.—(AP.)—The Buffalo Bisons went into first place in the International Hockey League championship playoff series last night, defeating the Detroit Olympics 4-0 in a hard, fast game.

Capt. Carl Voss started the scoring in the first period on a pass from Martin in front of the net. In the second period the Bisons added two more goals in the closing minutes after the Olympics had tried desperately to earn the equalizer. Carr, second line winger, tallied the second bison goal after a solo dash, while Gross and Martin teamed up for the third. Buffalo made it four early in the third period, Gross counting on a pass from Voss.

TECUMSEHS LOSE

LONDON, Ont., April 8.—(AP.)—The Windsor Bulldogs shut out the London Tecumsehs, 3-0, here last night and jumped into second place in the International Hockey League's championship playoff series.

Buffalo, which turned back Detroit last night, 4-0, leads the field with eight points. Windsor has seven, London six and Detroit five.

LEAFS ROUT RANGERS

BOSTON, April 8.—(AP.)—The Toronto Maple Leafs last night strengthened their claim on the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world professional hockey championship, by blinding the New York Rangers with speed to gain a 6-2 victory on the neutral Boston Garden ice.

This victory made the Leafs two up on their American division rivals for the Canadian entry took the opening clash, 6-4, in New York Tuesday night. The teams will continue the title struggle at Toronto tomorrow.

MAX ARRIVES BACK IN U. S.

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, arrived from Germany today to begin an exhibition tour preparatory to a defense of his title against Jack Sharkey, of Boston, in New York, June 16.

Tanned darker than his usual Teuton cast and weighing only 194 pounds, two above his usual fighting weight, Schmeling appeared ready to step into the ring tomorrow.

He was asked to comment on the question of foul blows and the referee, since the fight is to be held in New York, where fouls are not a cause for disqualification and where the referee is selected without consulting the preferences of the boxers.

"I will not be fouled," Schmeling said, "I have protection against that. As to the referee, the best referee I can have is this fist," and he exhibited his formidable left hand.

Schmeling won his title on a foul from Sharkey in the final bout of an elimination contest staged in New York in 1930. The legislation against fouls has been enacted since then.

The German champion will make an exhibition tour of the country, and then will go into training near Kingston, N. Y., on May 10.

Shannon Team Wins Night Soccer Fray

The Castle Shannon booters defeated the Heidelberg eleven, 1-0, in a night soccer contest, at South Park. The contest was the first nocturnal soccer tilt to be staged here and was well attended.

R. McMonigle scored the lone goal in the first half. The lineup:

Castle S.		Heidelberg

Score at half time, 1-0. Goal scored by R. McMonigle. Referee, Curtis.

ALLDERDICE VICTOR

Taylor Allderdice defeated Peabody, 15-13, 15-12 in the senior scholastic volley ball tournament and today will tackle Fifth Avenue for the title. In the junior division Allderdice won over Baxter, 15-10, 15-10. Peabody took Oglethorpe, 15-13, 15-12, 15-11, and Allegheny won over Oliver, 15-9, 15-13. South downed Langley, 15-2, 15-6.

THE NATURAL MUMMY—Chuquicamata is a copper mining district in the desert of Atacama, Chile. The mummified body of the miner was found in the Restauradora mine in a small drift, six feet below the surface. He apparently had perished in a cave-in of the mine and the dryness of the atmosphere, which was saturated with copper salts having a preservative quality, brought about the mummification by natural means.

YALE GOLFERS DEFEATED

PINEHURST, N. C., April 8.—J. M. Robbins, of Merion, Pa., former Princeton captain, is playing M. P. Warner, Pine Orchard Conn., and Halbert J. Blue, Aberdeen, N. C., is opposing J. B. Ryerson, Cooperstown (N. Y.) veteran in the semi-finals of the North and South amateur golf tournament here today.

Dick Wilson, the medalist, was eliminated yesterday, when all of the Yale threats with the exception of Warner were eliminated.

No Trace of Poison Found in Phar Lap

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—(INS.)—While preliminary chemical tests of the stomach of Phar Lap, great Australian race horse who died on the Ed Perry ranch here, failed to disclose any trace of poison, Dr. Karl F. Meyer, of the University of California, said today the tests would be continued "until a thorough examination of the vital organs of the horse had been made."

The chemical analysis was ordered by David J. Davis, owner of the thoroughbred, to determine the exact cause of the horse's sudden death.

It probably will be five weeks, Dr. Meyer said, before definite results are obtained.

Woman Star Bowls Sixth 300 Game

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., April 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Loretta McCutcheon, Pueblo (Col.) bowling star, rolled a perfect 300 score in an exhibition match here last night.

It was her second 300 game of the season and the sixth of her career.

The OLYMPIC GAMES

By Lawson Robertson

Lawson Robertson—Head Coach American Olympic Teams

CHAPTER XV.

It is most unfortunate that Jules Ladoumeque ran into difficulties with the Amateur Athletic authorities in France and has been declared ineligible for the 1932 Olympics.

One of the most spectacular Olympic duels of all time was in prospect had Ladoumeque competed against Gene Venzke and other great ones over the 1,500 meters or the one mile route at Los Angeles.

Until Venzke hung up new records this winter for both the 1,500 meters and the mile, it was generally felt that the French speed marvel had the 1,500-meter event at his mercy. Then Venzke rose up as not merely a threat, but a definite menace to Ladoumeque's ambitions. Now Ladoumeque is out of it because of alleged expense account irregularities.

AHMED NEW THREAT

Ladoumeque is credited with doing the mile in 4 minutes 9 1-5 seconds. Venzke ran once in 4:11¼, breaking the old approved record of 4:12, and then hung up 4:10. That, of course, is a bit slower than Ladoumeque's time, but Gene wasn't sorely pressed when he stepped in 4:10. I feel he can do better.

Almost at the same time that Ladoumeque was ruled out, word was received from Karachi, India, that Gaizar Ahmed had run a mile in 4:08 2-5. He was rated a prospective member of the Olympic team prior to making his run and the tremendous speed credited to him makes him a certainty, provided India goes through with its plan to send a squad to Los Angeles.

BETTER OLD MARKS

If Ahmed was accurately timed and goes into action against Venzke and the others, the 1,500 meters run will be a sizzling thing. But how much more remarkable it would be if Ladoumeque were in there, too, thus tossing into the field three men who have, within a few months, gone the mile in 4:10 or better—marks that Nurmi, Ray and all the other great ones couldn't approach in countless tries.

Dempsey Ordered To Rest Three Weeks

RENO, Nev., April 8.—(INS.)—Jack Dempsey, one-time heavyweight champion of the world, today was bothered by a severe cold.

Physicians advised that he rest at least three weeks before resuming training for a projected fight here this summer.

Dempsey looked considerably thinner and tired than he did when he left here several weeks ago on an exhibition tour.

However, he found pleasure riding in a new 16-cylinder automobile which his friends said was "the largest one in Reno."

DALLAS, April 8.—The Pittsburgh Pirates are ready for the stretch run of their annual spring exhibition campaign. The Bucos enter the stretch today by tackling the local team of the Texas League, and after today's battle, have only two more contests to get by. Tomorrow and Sunday they play the Memphis Chicks, of the Southern Association, in Memphis.

Yesterday, the Pirates lost a ball game, formally signed one of the most promising rookie performers of the entourage and released a pitcher, young Jimmy Bivin. The rookie to affix his name to a Bucco contract was Floyd Vaughan, sensational shortstop. The ball game was lost to Fort Worth, another Texas League entry, by a 10-9 count in 10 innings.

Bivin, a promising young hurler, is in need of more experience and was sent to the Tulsa club, of the Western League, where he will be able to work regularly. He was purchased from the Wichita club, of the same league, last season.

VAUGHAN BRIGHT STAR

The purchase of Vaughan, who was also a member of the Wichita club last season, was expected. Vaughan, considered by many to be the most likely looking youngster to enter the National League in years, has been displaying sensational ability during the exhibition tour. Sent into the lineup at the start of the exhibition tour to replace Tommy Thevenow, who was resting an injured ankle, Vaughan came through in fine style.

The Bucs board a train immediately after the game today for Memphis, where two games will be played with the Southern Association team of that place in the next two days. Sunday the Corsairs will entrain for St. Louis, staging a drill in Sportsman Park, the home of the Cardinals, Monday, and opening the National League season there the following day.

LOSE IN TENTH

Three safe wallops in the tenth inning enabled the Fort Worth Panthers to nose out the Pirates yesterday, the defeat being the third in succession for the Pittsburghers. Ervin Brame started on the mound for the Pirates, but left the contest after the fifth inning. The Panthers had collected a dozen safe hits and six runs. Bivin relieved him and finished the game, being charged with the victory, for before he threw a ball, the Pirates had tied the score at six-all.

A pair of Fort Worth hurlers, Whitworth and Terry, were able to keep the Pirates sufficiently at bay to enable their team to win, although they were hit freely.

Braves to Sport Numbers This Year

BOSTON, April 8.—(AP.)—The Boston Braves, President Emil Fuchs announces, will number their players for the coming National League baseball campaign.

Although the American League teams numbered their players last season to enable spectators to identify the men more readily, the Braves are the first and only National League team to adopt the idea.

Detroit Girls Set New Swim Record

DETROIT, April 8.—(AP.)—A Detroit Yacht Club team of girl swimmers bettered the American record for the 150-yard relay in an exhibition swim here last night by doing the distance in 1:36.6.

COLLEGE BOXERS SET FOR OLYMPIC TESTS

DISTRICT STARS TO COMPETE AT STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 8.—More than three score college boxers, the cream of the 1932 intercollegiate crop, are primed for the opening competition in the national collegiate Olympic boxing tryouts, which will get under way here this afternoon and continue tomorrow.

The first round of the tournament will get under way this afternoon, with 15 fights scheduled. Twenty-five or more bouts are on the program for the second preliminary round tonight. Nearly all of the first arrivals among the visiting boxers engaged in light workouts yesterday afternoon to keep in top condition.

Boxers from Washington State, Tulane, Louisiana State, Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Duquesne, West Virginia, Washington and Jefferson, Virginia, North Dakota University, South Carolina, Florida and Columbia University were numbered among the first to appear on the scene. Competition to reach the semi-final round should be particularly keen, since four men will be selected from each weight division to take part in the final tryouts for the American Olympic team in San Francisco in July. A trip to the Pacific Coast looms for thos' passing these preliminary brackets.

Capacity crowds are expected for the four programs, advance ticket sales giving rise to the belief that the largest crowd ever to witness a college tournament of this nature will be on hand for the championship finals tomorrow night.

Included in the early arrivals were Dyless Hill, Tulane heavyweight, and Chandler Page, Mississippi 160-pound ace, both of whom are Southern Conference champions. Both engaged in workouts before a large crowd of admirers here yesterday afternoon.

BACK TO ALMA MATER

JOCK SUTHERLAND — REGIS TOOMEY

Back in the days before Regis Toomey became famous as a screen actor he attended the University of Pittsburgh and served as a student football manager. Yesterday he returned to the scene of his former labors, Trees Field, to visit his old friend, Coach Jock Sutherland, and watch the current edition of the Panthers go through their spring training paces. He even donned a uniform. Toomey is making a personal appearance at the Stanley Theater. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

TIGERISH HOLT TO BOX ROSE TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

It may be just another fight to a lot of folks, but Billy Holt, Negro welterweight, of Homewood, and his manager, Jess Miller, regard Holt's windup battle with cagy Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, at the Kapphan Arena tonight as the turning point in Billy's career.

This is the night Billy steps out. To date he has been strictly a counter-fighter, parrying blows and waiting for openings until the latter rounds. But now Miller has talked him into becoming aggressive and forcing the battle, and he says he'll start in doing that little thing at the opening bell tonight.

READY FOR BEST

"I believe Holt is ready right now to set out after any of them," Jess said this morning. "He is young and strong and can hit, and he is sufficiently seasoned to be able to take care of himself. I am certain that after tonight's fight he will be considered qualified to go after Jimmy Belmont, and we are looking ahead farther than that. After we whip Belmont we want Ted Yarosz, now the local cock o' the walk in the welterweight class. Just watch Billy tonight. Were taking the hobbles off him."

Holt always has appeared to have the makings, but he has been too cautious. His manager has placed the finger on his weak spot, and, if he can change him into a rip-tearing fighter, he need have no fear that Billy won't get a chance against the Belmonts and Yaroszes and others in the division. But first he'll have to beat Rose tonight. Billy has appeared here a number of times and never has failed to give a pleasing exhibition. He is a fine boxer and a busy worker.

SLUGGING SEMI-FINAL

The fans who like lusty punching ought to get their fill in the semi-final, between Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., who stopped Jack Tracey at the Moose Temple a few weeks ago, and Dick Evans, Youngstown veteran, who always was noted as a socker. Patsy Wallace, highly-touted Negro, of New York, makes his local bow against Carl Montebano, Braddock middleweight, in the second bout, and Anson Green, of Homestead, meets Russell Powers, of Youngstown, in the opener, at 8:30 o'clock.

Between Rounds

The coming of Jim London, the heavyweight champion wrestler, to Motor Square Garden next Tuesday night is doing much to take the play away from boxing shows these days. The fans are talking about sitting in on the champion's stunt and the office of the Pittsburgh Wrestling Club in Fourth avenue is being besieged for good tickets. Hundreds of Greek admirers of London are coming in from surrounding territory, for this is Jim's first appearance in these parts in more than a dozen years or since he was a novice. A complete sellout looms for the grapplers, who for the nonce at least are stealing the show from the box fighters, a strange state of affairs in Pittsburgh, but a fine testimonial to the popularity and box office pull of London.

Jerry Hart, Troy Hill heavyweight, will resume training at the Pittsburgh Lyceum tomorrow following a layoff due to grippe.

Bunny Buntach is working on more matches for his big fellow, George Parks, now that George has turned the tables on Emmett Rocco. George was to join Max Schmeling as a sparring partner, but there is a hitch over terms, and, if he can do better grabbing a match here and there, he may pass up the glory of being connected with the champion's retinue.

Leon Jendrasiak, Grand Rapids featherweight, who made a hit with the local fans in two sensational battles against L. P. Carpentier at the Moose and Steve Senich at the Arena, will leave for home with his manager, Jim O'Grady, on Sunday to prepare for a bout with Joe Palazzolo, of Detroit, at Grand Rapids on April 27, but will return here later. Leon is the type of boxer who is at his best over a route and should be given a chance in a 10-rounder when he comes back.

Fights Tonight

Frince Saunders vs. Mickey Genaro, 10 rounds, Eau Claire, Wis.

Hershey Wilson vs. Bud Jones, 10 rounds, Danville, Ill.

Jose Estrada vs. Jimmy Reed, 10 rounds, Jacksonville, Fla.

Peter Mike vs. Relampago Saguero, 10 rounds, Tampa, Fla.

MATE TO RUN AT PIMLICO

BOWIE, Md., April 8.—(AP.)—Mate, chief rival of Twenty Grand for the 3-year-old turf championship last year, will start his 4-year-old campaign for stake honors in the $15,000 Dixie handicap at Pimlico, May 7.

The Dixie, decided over one mile and three-sixteenths, is the first of the many handicap events for which A. C. Bostwick has named Mate with the hope the son of Prince Pal will pass Sun Beau as the leading money winner of the world before the end of the year.

Winner of $273,425, Mate is the leading money winner in training. Although seventh on the financial list, he is only a little more than $100,000 short of Sun Beau's record of $376,744.

MISSES 300 SCORE

A near perfect score was rolled last night by William Dubbs, captain of the Bears team of a Squirrel Hill church league. Dubbs rolled 279, scored eight straight strikes and missed the ninth by a slim margin, getting a spare with the next ball.

WRESTLER PUMMELED

GREENVILLE, S. C., April 8.—(AP.)—Rosenbloom pushed into the ring and pummeled George Hills, New York wrestler when he attacked Referee Joe Robinson during a match here last night with Steve Zoudi, former Boston College athlete. Hills threw Zoudi, but Robinson declared the latter the winner, asserting the New Yorker kicked his opponent. Then Hills attacked Robinson. Kilt clad in his tights, Hills was marched off to the police station, but was released an hour later. No charges were preferred.

Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight champion, who has been at odds with his manager, Frank Bachman, from time to time, has just signed a new five-year contract with the latter.

Ray Alyia says he can prove one Mexican can whip three Filipinos—if they'll match his Tony Herrera with Bat Battalino, Tony Canzoneri and Billy Petrolle.

Madison Square Garden, New York, has averaged $53,828 per show for the 15 boxing cards staged there since Jimmy Johnson became matchmaker. The top gate was $86,500 for a Kid Chocolate-Tony Canzoneri match.

Vincent Hambright, who boxes Ted Yarosz in the windup at the Garden next Monday night, is best remembered here for his bout with Jimmy Belmont in the opening show at Duquesne Gardens a few winters ago, when he had Jimmy on the floor something like 14 times in the 10 rounds, but couldn't stop him. Before that he boxed a draw with Tom Maloe in the Commons, which was failed to honor only one show before being condemned as unable to hold crowds and he later met Sergt. Sammy Baker at the Garden. He is a stand-eyed Filipino, who is a terrific puncher, but not much of a boxer and is inclined to be stiff and lumbering in his movements. He has been doing his recent looking around New York.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

George Kelly's return to the National League by way of the Dodgers discloses smart action on the part of Max Carey, the new Brooklyn pilot. It was rather strange to see an athlete of Kelly's skill pass out of the big show; had Del Bissonette remained in good health the former Giant star would have found the road back a rough thoroughfare.

As a defensive firstbaseman, Kelly still remains one of the greatest the sport has produced among the righthanders. Ol' Highpockets could make any kind of a throw look like an easy chance; his style being somewhat on the order of Earl Sheely, than whom there have been no better fielders, so far as this writer is concerned."

Kelly's remarkable throwing arm was put to a good use in the many years he performed for John McGraw. The big firstsacker was used as a pivot man in all shots from the outfield and on George rested a large part of the intercept system employed so successfully by the New York infield in the days when Kelly was at his crest, both as a fielder and hitter.

Speaking of Kelly's batting is a reminder that he, like our own Gus Suhr, was an easy mark for the smart pitchers of the National League for some time after he reached the big show. George had a painful weakness on a high pitch and the boys with the good control soon had his number. George had a crouch position at the plate and his stooped manner often deceived the umpires to call balls on what really were legitimate strikes, except for his apparently clever trick.

Pitchers like Babe Adams could take Kelly out of the picture regularly, but George refused to give up. It is probable that he put in much practice in swinging at high pitches and in due time he was making "clotheslines" out of shoulder offerings that were meant to fool him. Then the smart pitchers had to change their methods—they employed the mix-'em-up system, but Kelly was able to solve them anyhow.

OLDACH VICTOR OVER GORNICK

Matty Oldach, of Erie, weighing 140½ pounds, had to go at top speed all the way to wind up with a split decision in his 10-round battle at the Palisades, McKeesport, last night with Marty Gornick, of Whitaker. The judges both voted for Oldach, Referee Jack Henderson casting his ballot in favor of Gornick.

Oldach dropped Gornick with a right to the chin in the second round, but the Whitaker puncher was up at the count of eight. He rallied in the third and had the Erie star in a bad way, and both men fought furiously for the remainder of the bout.

In the semi-final, Jimmy Dean, Erie Negro, defeated Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, in an eight-round go. Both weighed 137 pounds. Hal Finney, of Pittsburgh, 140½ pounds, defeated Joey Brown, 149 pounds, in a six-round go, and Andy Kosel, of Turtle Creek, whipped Petey Jahn in the four-round opener. The men came in at 120 pounds. A small crowd witnessed the bouts.

BUTLER AT HOLY CROSS

The Butler Big Five will be the attraction of the Holy Cross quintet for the Negro amateur basketball championship of Pittsburgh in the Center Avenue Y. M. C. A. tonight. The Butler Amateurs will meet the Y. M. C. A. Trojan five in the preliminary game.

MEETING TONIGHT

A meeting of the E. H. Jens nine, of Elliot, to discuss plans for the coming season, will be held tonight at 808 Crucible street. All last year's players and those desiring a tryout are requested to attend.

PANTHERS HONOR VARSITY ATHLETIC TEAMS

SIX CAPTAINS APPOINTED AT BANQUET

By JESS CARVER

The olives, compliments and varsity letter and numeral awards were passed freely last night as the entire athletic personnel of the University of Pittsburgh gathered in Webster Hall for the annual sports dinner. Six captains were appointed, too, and, in all, 158 certificates of participation in formal athletics presented.

Director of Athletics W. Don Harrison acted as master of ceremonies, although he passed the old buck to his assistant, Jimmy Hagen, when it came to handing out the certificates and pronouncing some of the names. Director Harrison presented three of the deans of the university, Messrs. Holbrook, of the School of Engineering; Armbruster, of the School of Business Administration, and Seig, of the College and School of Education, as speakers of the evening. Dean Holbrook represented Chancellor Bowman, unable to attend because of a previous engagement.

SMITH COURT LEADER

Don Smith, of Bellevue, was appointed basketball captain for next fall; Francis (Cowboy) Seigel, of Sioux City, Ia., of the boxing team; Mario Rubbo, of Twin Rocks, Pa., honorary captain of the boxers for the past season. Jack Hanna and Herman Adlersberg, co-captains of the swimming team, and Ernie Mair, captain of the rifle squad.

Jack Shricker, Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Conference 160-pound champion, was awarded a varsity letter in boxing. He is competing in the Eastern Intercollegiate Olympic boxing tryouts at Penn State this week-end.

The varsity and freshmen football, basketball, swimming, track, cross-country, boxing, rifle, tennis and golf teams were present.

Harrison announced that the Pitt swimming team next year will meet both Harvard and Yale on a planned eastern invasion. The Yale swimmers have not been defeated in 67 consecutive dual meets. The announcement therefor cheered Coach Pat Corr not a little.

GRIDDERS VERSATILE

Three of the footballers, including John Luch, Mike Sebastian and Seigel, were recipients of two certificates, Luch and Sebastian getting track letters as well and grid monograms. Seigel came under the football-boxing class.

The following received certificates:

Varsity, football—Edward Hrabarey, Ralph Daugherty, Joseph Tormey, Hart Morris, Walter Milligan, Francis Seigel, Tarquino Onder, James MacMurdo, Jesse Quatse, John Love, John Meredith, Paul Collins, Theodore Daley, Joseph Sabadasz, Robert Hogan, Rocco Cutri, Paul Reider, Warren Heller, Michael Sebastian, John Luch, James Clark, Robert Morris and Bernard Windt, manager.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—A New York professor has published a book on the history of human stupidity and he doesn't even mention the 5,000 guys that stole second with the bases loaded.

Nick Altrock

Speaking of stupidity, Wall street is betting 1,000 to 1 against Cincinnati and the Chicago White Sox winning the pennants. There never was a Cinci team bad enough to rate those quotations. Remember in 1914 when the Boston Braves leaped from last to first place in three months and then flattened the A's in four straight world series games?

I wouldn't bet 1,000 to 1 against the Peoria team of the Three-Eye League being this year's world champion. I admit the White Sox and Reds look weak, but Wall street must think they're dead. Ho-hum! Good old Wall street! Wasn't that the thoroughfare that thought this depression would last only three months?

CITY LEAGUE LISTS CLOSED

By TOM BIRKS

The City Baseball League, leading sandlot diamond organization of the Pittsburgh district, will operate during the coming season as an eight-club circuit. This was decided last night at a meeting of the league officials and two clubs, the Geislers and the Frank Ferris club, were given franchises.

A tentative schedule was drawn up, rules for the operation of the loop made and next Thursday evening set as the date for the setting of all arrangements for the opening of the campaign and the adoption of the schedule.

The Geislers will play their home games at Stowe Field, McKees Rocks, and will be managed by Dave Wickline. Leo Green will be in charge of the Ferris entry. The Ferris club will play its home contests on the Wilson avenue grounds on the North Side.

The Soho Board of Trade, Carrick Eagles and McKeesport Olympics had representatives present at the confab and sought berths in the circuit, but were turned down.

The other six clubs in the loop are: J. L. Thomas, Books, Homewood, North Siders, Dormont and Reliance Life.

Lovely Gowns

Lovely gowns galore in exquisite shades seen at the Rosa Ponselle concert last night in Syria Mosque accentuated the impression that the evening was an occasion.

And by far the most striking gown in the huge house was that worn by the diva, of heavy white satin, molded to the figure over the hips and gracefully flared to the floor, with a scarf of the satin decorating the back of the gown. And the feature of the gown was a very long cape of satin, deeply bordered in silver fox, having a smart scarf fastening at the neckline.

Two of the debs of the season, Katharine Frazer and Betty Kennedy, I saw chatting with friends in the foyer during the intermission. Katharine chose a black satin gown with tulip pink satin bodice, and Betty looked charming in seafoam green lace with a long scarf of the lace as decoration.

Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., chose a gown of creamy yellow, printed in orange and green, and having a jacket.

Wear Jackets

Juliet Hillman was in beige lace with a matching jacket trimmed in kolinsky, and Mrs. James O. Flower wore purple crepe.

Others noted were Mrs. John J. Kennedy, in green satin; Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., in lotus pink lace; Mrs. E. Paul Tunnell, in white satin with a rich purple velvet wrap; Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh in black velvet, and Mrs. Mortimer Miller in black chiffon.

Mrs. Jack Bissell chose a cinnamon brown crepe dress; Mrs. John W. Lawrence, black velvet, and Frances Fitzgerald, cream lace. Harriet Fickes chose white lace, and Mrs. E. S. Fickes, black chiffon.

Clara Dorothea Jenkins, in black chiffon, arrived with her mother, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, in black chiffon with a wrap of silver lame, and Mrs. George Pearson was in black chiffon.

Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., who occupied a box, was in black velvet and chinchilla. Neil Stewart Zang chose a spring frock of cream crepe printed in green, and Katherine MacCloskey wore a black and white printed crepe.

Spring Frocks

I saw Mary Blair Holmes, wearing a gold lame dress, chatting with friends. Her mother, Mrs. J. H. Holmes, was in flame chiffon embroidered with a small gold motif.

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, wearing Wedgewood blue satin, was chatting with the John G. Hoffstots, of Greensburg. Among those in boxes were Mrs. A. P. Brill in pale blue satin, and Mrs. Edwin Ruud in black satin.

Mrs. John F. Walton, wearing an interesting paisley printed crepe gown and a brief green jacket, I saw with Mrs. Clarence Stanley.

Paisley Crepe

Others there were Mrs. Frank Chesterman, Mrs. Jacob S. Peyton in pale blue chiffon, Mrs. George E. Tenner, Mrs. Clarence Byrnes, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. J. F. Casey, Mrs. William Maclay Hall and Mrs. George P. Bassett.

After the concert the George David Thompsons, of the Highwood apartments, entertained with a supper party at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association for Rosa Ponselle and her party. And among the guests were the Robert J. Doddses, the E. O. Dorbritzes, the W. F. Knoxes, Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot and Charles A. McClintock.

* * *

Virginia Drake, daughter of the J. Frank Drakes, and Cherry Ross, of New York, a frequent Pittsburgh visitor, who are making a spring visit to Hot Springs, Va., were guests of Marshall Heminway at a tea on the Casino lawn Wednesday afternoon.

Guests At Tea

Honoring the W. Eugene Garys, of Pittsburgh, the William K. Dunbars, of Plainfield, N. J., entertained at a tea dance at the Pinehurst Country Club Wednesday night.

Outlook Alliance Marks 25th Year With Pageant

The pageant, written by Mrs. Chester F. Johnston for the occasion, was the chief feature at the 25th anniversary celebration of the Outlook Alliance, which was held yesterday in the Congress of Clubs. Included in this was the introduction of the founder and first president, Miss Grace V. Henderson, of Meadville, who spoke of the founding. Each president stepped through "The Opened Book." Mrs. E. B. Heyser, the incumbent, coming last and greeting the guests with a poem.

There were several episodes and tableaus and between these dancing and music, the former by two bits of femininity, Beatrice and Gwendolyn Leiseder, who have an amazing sense of rythm.

Some exceptionally original costumes were worn by the committee chairmen for their introduction at the conclusion of the pageant. The nominating committee's ticket was elected as presented during a business session.

STOCK PRICES AGAIN MAKE NEW LOWS

Sprinkling of Fractional Recoveries Appear in Early Afternoon Trading

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—The stock market was still staggering under the weight of stubborn selling today.

Price averages penetrated new low territory for recent years for the eighth successive session. Trading was again in only moderate volume, and the numerous losses of 2 to more than 4 points again reflected the absence of buyers rather than large scale liquidation.

By early afternoon, there was some letup in the selling and fractional recoveries appeared here and there. The selling embraced most important groups but was particularly conspicuous in the utilities once more. Issues off about 2 to 4 to new lows for the cycle, included United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, Union Pacific, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide, Safeway Stores and Eastman. Exceptional declines appeared in Detroit Edison, off 7, and Peoples Gas, off 5, while a number of preferred issues declined sharply in a thin market.

The very length of the decline alone lead to expectations in brokerage quarters that something would have to intervene soon to bring a turn, but the business and financial news of the day failed to provide a basis for anything in the way of bullish efforts.

The General Motors sales report for March was the principal item of corporate news, showing that domestic consumers bought 48,717 cars, or slightly more than the 46,855 bought in February, but less than half the 101,239 for March of 1931. Preliminary reports of the results of the week-old April sales campaign of both General Motors and Ford were mildly optimistic.

The gain of $19,000,000 in currency in circulation shown in the weekly Federal Reserve statements was somewhat discouraging. This was against the normal trend. Circulation dropped $10,000,000 in the like week of last year, $23,000,000 two years ago, and $32,000,000 three years ago.

The break-up of the Danube conference in London was disappointing, in view of the critical financial situation in Central Europe. The fact, however, that the Reichsbank was able to reduce its rate to 5½ per cent from 6 was somewhat encouraging.

Vigorous scotching of propaganda against the dollar in Paris was gratifying to international banking circles, where the recent strength of the French franc had been regarded as artificial. Some further outflow of gold from New York to Paris is now expected.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Utah Copper Company, member of the Kennecott group, reports for 1931 profit of $2,027,149, after expenses, depreciation and retirement of property, but before reserve for metal adjustments amounting to $420,195, which was charged against surplus account. There was no federal income tax liability for the year. In 1930 profit, after expenses, depreciation, etc., was $5,880,581, but before charges for investments and metal adjustments of $5,192,151 and $420,195, respectively, against surplus account. Cost of producing copper was 6.99c a pound. This compares with 8.47c per pound in 1930.

Associated Oil Company and subsidiaries report for 1931 net profit of $2,112,788 after taxes, depreciation, depletion and retained investment loss for the year, equal to $1.36 a share (par $25), on 1,280,612 shares of capital stock. In 1930 the company reported net profit of $7,213,284, equal to $3.15 a share.

Libbe, McNeill and Libbe and subsidiaries report for the year ended February 29, 1932, net loss of $1,981,946 after depreciation, taxes, interest, foreign exchange losses, and after taking credit for $1,200,000 inventory reserves carried over from the previous year. This compares with net profit in year ended February 28, 1931 of $2,130,357 after depreciation, taxes and interest.

American Power and Light Company reports for 12 months ended February 29 net income after expenses, taxes, interest and other charges of $11,286,941, equal, best to $1.80 a share on the common stock outstanding. This compares with net income of $16,617,878, equal to $3.50 a share for the 12 months ended February 28, 1931.

Nash Motor Car Company reports for quarter ended February 29, 1932, net profit of $211,927, after deducting all expenses of manufacturing, selling and administration, and providing for depreciation and taxes, and providing for dividends and taxes. This compares with net profit of $1,090,194 in the first quarter of the previous fiscal year. On February 29 last the company had cash and government securities in its treasury amounting to $4,401,022.

Ward Baking Corporation had net profit of $182,721 in the 12 weeks ended March 26, equal to 50 cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock.

LISTENING IN

With the Radio Editor

PETER HIGGINS, Pittsburgh's own, heads a list of stage and radio favorites on the air tonight.

Higgins, former choir boy here whose tenor voice has won for him recognition as the probable successor to John McCormack is featured in the "Theater of the Air" program on WCAE at 10:30 o'clock. He has not been heard here in several months, having been forced to cancel a recent appearance on the same program at the last minute.

Mr. Higgins

Gus Van, of Van and Schenk fame, starts a new commercial series as "The Melody Man" over WJAS at 9:45. Appearing with Leo Reisman on WCAE at 9:30 are Frank Luther, radio favorite; Pilar Arcos, and the Walton Sisters.

Three symphonic programs are offered today on WJAS. The Philadelphia Orchestra, under the baton of Leopold Stokowski and augmented to a total of 123 musicians, presents a program of two hours and 15 minutes, beginning at 2:30, when it broadcasts the American premiere of Arnold Schoenberg's "Gurrelieder" from the Metropolitan Opera House in Philadelphia.

Fritz Reiner, guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, directs a 110-piece student orchestra of the Curtis Institute of Music from 4:45 to 5:30, and at 11 p. m. Howard Barlow and his orchestra present a program of master composers, opening with Wagner's Overture to "Rienzi."

Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, author and financial expert who writes daily and Sunday for the Sun-Telegraph, speaks over a nationwide NBC network including KDKA on "The Business Depression and the Way Out" tomorrow night at 7:45. Mr. Rukeyser's address, based on the results of a survey he has made of the nation's financial structure, will deal with the factors that have been blocking business recovery.

Program Pointers

JANET READE, platinum blonde of the stage and screen, whose specialty is the warmer sort of "torch song," is guest artist with Leonard Joy and his orchestra over KDKA tonight at 8. An adept comedienne as well as singer, Miss Reade was featured with Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee," with W. C. Fields in "Ballyhoo" and with Maurice Chevalier in "The Smiling Lieutenant." She has just completed a record-breaking appearance at the Palace Theater which ran nine weeks with Cantor and George Jessel. Tonight she sings three characteristic numbers and several Broadway song hits of today and yesterday.

Miss Reade

Ward Wilson imitates former President Calvin Coolidge over KDKA at 6:30.

"A Nose to Thumb," an aviation thriller based on a flier's loyalty and its price, is presented by the KQV Players at 8:45.

The glamorous circus days of 50 years ago, when P. T. Barnum imported Jumbo, the elephant, from England and caused the circus sensation of the decade, are depicted during the "Today and Yesterday" program over WJAS at 8:30.

Hank Peters, Friendship Town's sheriff, tells the results of his expedition to investigate the superstitions surrounding the town's old deserted homestead over KDKA at 9.

Ann Lester, 25-year-old blues singer recently announced winner of Paul Whiteman's Brooklyn auditions, makes her network debut with Whiteman and his Chieftains over KDKA at 10.

WWSW features tonight include a broadcast of the prize fight at the Arena at 9:45, and a minstrel show by the East McKeesport Fire Company No. 2, at 11:15.

Fan Fare

KAY DONNA, Kay Kronick to Pittsburgh—blonde singer of ballads, makes her network debut Monday when she starts a new song series, "Do You Remember?" for NBC. Kay, who will be heard every Monday night at 10:30 over the NBC chain including WCAE, graduated from Peabody High School last June, and was first heard over WCAE. Incidentally, she has never had a music lesson from anyone except her mother. . . . Sunday is her eighteenth birthday. . . . She would rather sing than do anything else, but loves dancing and swimming, and as for pets she likes big dogs, and cats, too, especially "big, fluffy ones."

Miss Donna

When Leopold Stokowski first enters a hall or studio where his orchestra is to broadcast, he walks around snapping his fingers . . . That's how he finds out about its acoustics.

Seven members of George Olsen's band have been with him for seven years . . . Singin' Sam was in the theater 26 years before he went into radio . . . Someone who should know reports that "Mr. and Mrs." may return to the air and that there's still hope for "March of Time" . . . Billy Murray, Marcella Shields and Arthur Scanlon are doing a program on WOR . . . Louise Fravne, WJAS soprano heard each Saturday night, usually takes as many as four voice lessons a week . . . Walter Winchell, Eddie Cantor and George Jessel began their careers together as ushers in an uptown New York theater . . . When the Kipling series concludes on WCAE, it will be followed by dramatizations of O. Henry's stories.

Question Box

Can you tell me who takes the characters of Hobbie, Lem, Sara and Virginia in the Stebbins Boys' sketches?—W. L. P., Arnold.

Hobbie is played by Harry Humphries; Lem, by Harold McGee; Sara, by Florence Naker, and Virginia, by Adelina Thomason.

Long Gives Latest Sports Gossip

An authoritative talk on sports events of both local and national importance is given by James J. Long, sports columnist of the Sun-Telegraph, over WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

That chatting little bargain-hunter gives her "Peggy's Tips" today at 9 a. m. over WCAE.

Pittsburgh kiddies again come before the microphone to present a half-hour program for the children over WCAE at 4:45. The youngsters present a free public performance at Carnegie Museum tomorrow.

The Lawson Sisters, harmony team, and Sonny Joy with his uke and comic songs, are featured with the WCAE Novelty Orchestra during the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club broadcasts at 11. Herb McGee is master of ceremonies.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, keeps WCAE listeners posted on the latest news, broadcasting 10 times daily from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms. He is on the air at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

INSULL PACT REPORTED

NEW YORK, April 8.—(INS.)—A temporary agreement to tide over the Insull utility situation was reached yesterday, it was reported in usually well-informed Wall Street circles.

The arrangement, it is understood, calls for the carrying on of the present Insull set-up pending reorganization, and the immediate payment of some of the $250,000,000 bank loans.

Samuel Insull spent yesterday here in conference with Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Board, and bankers.

A persistent but unconfirmed report was that Young would head the reorganization committee.

Young's help is understood to have been asked in an effort to sell part of the Insull eastern properties. These properties are controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company, one of the larger of the Insull holding companies. This company and the two Insull investment trusts—Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities of Chicago—are to be reorganized under the plans now being discussed.

The New York loans are held by five big banks here, and with the securities pledged for loans in Chicago, the banks are in control of the whole Insull system. The decision of sale of any properties and reorganization is said to rest with them.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Mystery Woman Tells Police That She Expects Death Within Few Hours

CHAPTER II

As Thatcher Colt reached her table, Lola Carewe extended one hand, exclaiming:

"Forgive me, Mr. Commissioner. I would not have done this for the world if I had not felt driven to it."

Extra chairs were brought and presently five of us were gathered around the table. All felt at least a little self-conscious. There was a moment's awkward silence. On nearer view the effect of Lola Carewe's beauty was still startling. If she did not look so youthful, her expression was more brilliant. The woman's eyes were extraordinarily large and alive, with a cat-like trick of changing their lustre. Behind her outward poise, I sensed a fierce nervous tension.

"Mr. Colt"—she began, boldly enough, but her lips were trembling—"I hope—I—I—"

"Better wait a moment," suggested the Commissioner, soothingly. "There's plenty of time." And then, turning the subject, he added: "What a magnificent ruby you are wearing tonight!"

His eyes dawdled admiringly on a gleaming, fiery stone pendant on a chain of pearls around her throat. With a little humming cry, Lola lifted the stone, fixed in a gold setting of exquisite craft, and held it up in her palm. Colt's dark head inclined forward as he studied the shining bauble.

"So much more beautiful than the purplish color of most large rubies!" he remarked softly.

"You talk like a connoisseur, Mr. Colt," Lola exclaimed. The subject of jewels seemed to lull her nervousness; she was at once more composed. "Do you know precious stones?"

"A police chief has to know something about jewels," Dougherty inserted with a wink at Rowland and a noisy chuckle. "He has to find so many stolen ones."

Colt's eyes, leaving Lola's face, returned to the ruby.

"The weight of this one," he murmured, "must be at least 25 carats."

A LARGE GEM

"Twenty-five and a half," she corrected him proudly.

"There are so many famous diamonds—and so few famous rubies," lamented Colt. "I suppose this one came from some old Burmese king who needed ready cash?"

His brows lifted in well-disposed curiosity.

"I do not know the ruby's history," Lola answered, with a restless fidget of her shoulders. "I have had it for many years, Mr. Colt. I shouldn't be troubling you like this . . ." Her voice died away, but it was plain she now wished to turn the talk back to her own purpose. Colt lingered, absorbed in the jewel.

"Nearly all large rubies are at least slightly striated," he rambled on. "But this one is virtually flawless. It is even more beautiful than the famous Lurky Baldwin. Such a stone enters the market only about once in a century. Of course you realize that you are taking a great risk in wearing it around New York?"

"Just what I was telling her," agreed old Rowland crisply.

"But it's New Year's Eve!" protested Lola Carewe.

NEW YEAR STARTED

As if her words were the cue to Father Time, a bell began to chime. It was the long-awaited signal for noise. The remaining midnight strokes were obliterated in the clamor instantly let loose in the Crystal room: a brattle and brangle of cheers and shouts, knives and forks drumming on china, the frog-like croaking of rattles and a hoarse blast of horns. Many stood and waved their napkins while others sang "Auld Lang Syne." The little New Year was getting "a great big hand" in Mayfair.

Brightly Lola Carewe glanced around her. She lifted her napkin, as if intending to rise and wave and sing with the rest. Then a change came over her. She put down the napkin and clasped her hands tightly as she looked at Thatcher Colt.

"I am not afraid of jewel thieves," she declared, a trace of challenge in her voice. "There are things in this world worse than jewel thieves."

In the din her voice was almost lost. Every minute the revel grew more boisterous. We could only sit and wait until a fanfare of clarinets and saxophones signaled the first dance of the New Year, and the chatter-vari gave way to a foxtrot.

"And what is it you do fear?" resumed Colt, his glance leaving the dancers and lingering on the ruby.

"That you, Mr. Colt, will not take my story seriously."

"I shall ask only for facts."

"Will you recognize them as facts" or will you think me mad?"

EXPECTS DEATH

Her sidelong glance might have been demented or sinister or merely a look of deep-rooted fear.

"I shall listen attentively," promised Colt.

But you policemen do not believe in anything you cannot put in handcuffs."

"I think it would be much better if you came directly to the point," prompted the Commissioner coldly.

"That's just what I was going to tell you, Lola," added Vincent Rowland, again wagging his finger. "Get right down to the facts with Mr. Colt."

Lola Carewe breathed deeply and looked away with an angry little wrinkling of her brows. Her fingers drummed ineffectually on the table. Although she had entreated him to join her, Lola seemed already irritated at the presence of this unruffled, deep-eyed man who was New York's police chief. He was so much the master of the situation—and he would not play the courtier to her charms. Neither her beauty nor the mysterious preamble had provoked in the Commissioner more than a polite and reserved interest.

"I mean," Lola disclosed finally, "that I do not expect to leave Mayfair tonight alive."

COLT STOICAL

She glanced rapidly at our faces, appraising the effect of this remarkable announcement. Yet Thatcher Colt expressed neither shock nor surprise. As if her news had proved of the flimsiest inconsequence, he was negligently lighting a cigaret. But Vincent Rowland's mouth hung in a haggard arc, and Dougherty was pop-eyed.

"You mean," gasped the District Attorney, "that they have put you on the spot?"

Lola Carewe looked genuinely taken aback.

"I do not know whom you mean by 'they.'"

"Never mind," rumbled Dougherty. "You do believe someone intends to take your life?"

"That is true. I feel that I am doomed unless Mr. Colt can save me."

Dougherty turned his over-large blue eyes to Colt, who continued to gaze thoughtfully out at the dance floor.

Synopsis

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe known as "The Night Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. Following a spirited discussion, Lola sends a note to Colt, urging him to join her, stating that a life is at stake and she must speak with him.

Now Go On

Embers of Love :-: By Hazel Livingston

CHAPTER LVI.

"Does he—look so much like me?" she faltered. "Why nobody else—nobody ever—

Robin, darling, go out in the hall to Marie. She's waiting just outside the door. And come back in 15 minutes, to us. And then granddad and you and I will go home!"

"Goodbye, granddad—"

"Goodbye, sir!"

"I've always said he was adopted, you know," she continued, still a little unsteadily. "It seemed the best way."

"Yes, I know. I always figured you could do it your own way, Dora. The rest of them seemed to think it was natural, you taking a boy to adopt. Because didn't like it was shuffling out of the way. But I always thought—and, of course, now I've seen him. Well, he's a nice boy. You'll raise him up all right. Oh, this is going to work out kind of bad now. I got Curtis Sargent outside. He's waiting out by the stage door. I told him I'd—"

"You've got Ken Sargent here—out by the—"

WELCOMES KEN

Yes, out by the stage door. He didn't want to come in, but I told him sure, why not? I told him as we were leaving. Right out on the sidewalk! He's changed a whole lot. Lily Lou kind of lost that way he used to have that grated on me. He seemed kind of blue, walking along by himself, so I spoke to him. I hope you don't mind—"

Don't mind—oh no—no. It doesn't matter. Is he coming in? Here?

Unless he's got tired of waiting. I kind of forgot him. Guess I'd better go along. Maybe I'll come see you at the hotel tonight. That is, if you aren't busy."

Oh no. I'm not busy. Do come."

Oh, if you change your mind, I'm staying over at the Traveler's Hotel on Mission street. I figured I'd stay over tonight."

Yes. I'll call you. I'll—all right, dad; goodbye till then—I'll see you tonight."

She went to the mirror, looked at herself anxiously. It was too late to change. She had better receive Ken this way in makeup with some of the think of it wiped off. It didn't matter anyway. It was really quite funny, quite funny.

"Come in," she said.

He stood in the doorway.

He was as her father said, changed. She bit her lip. An old nervous habit forgotten years ago.

It was nice of you to come," she said, looking at his broad shoulders, his tanned face, his whole alien being.

EXPECTED SUCCESS

He took her hand. "It was nice of you to let me come. I would not have intruded, but your father—"

"Yes, he told me."

"I've been to every performance of course. But I wouldn't have intruded."

No—of course not," she murmured, scarcely conscious of what she was saying. There seemed to be nothing left to say.

Here she was—and here he was—and five years, five long, hard years of so between them.

"You've changed," she said finally.

So have you."

I suppose. I've done what I started out to do."

I always knew you would. I was never surprised when your name flared in the headlines, and I read about you in magazines and things. It was fate."

Fate. It was hard work! Oh, Ken, it's been hard. You don't know. I couldn't tell you. Besides—what does it matter. It's all over. Will you have a cigaret? Sit down, tell me about yourself."

Not much to tell. It's you who—"

"Who made the front page? No. I saw your name in the papers often enough. I saved the clippings."

Nothing to my credit," he said.

Oh! Sure, you would think so. But tell me. If you did read about me, didn't you think I might have—had to hear from you?" A word of congratulation a line—something? That was hard to take, Ken."

TELLS ABOUT ROBIN

She had not meant to say that. It slipped out.

Hard to take? After you left me flat!

I'm flattered that you think I did. All these years I've had to live down the fact of having been left—"

It doesn't matter." She walked over to the dressing room, dabbed at her brimming eyes. Remembered that she was still in makeup, and any minute Marie would be back with Robin—with Robin—

"You may as well know that I have a little boy. 5 years old."

He stared at her.

"You mean that you, that you have—"

"Yes. You and I. I called him Robin."

"You had no right to keep that from me!"

But you—but I—"

She was too tired. She could not tell him. "Ken, don't you see that I, that I couldn't—"

"Lily Lou—darling—"

MARRY AGAIN

He lifted her in his arms, rocked her as she used to rock the Bubchen, crooning over her, whispering the foolish endearments of long ago.

* * *

"I waited for hours, sir," Marie told Tony. "I had Robin in bed, and the child was asleep, but they woke him up. I don't like to have him woke up. He's a high-strung child. He hadn't ought to be woke up like that, and get all excited. Mme. Lansing hadn't ought to stay up all hours like that after a performance, either. She'll lose her voice, she will. She's frail. I don't like it."

* * *

May and Bess were disgusted, simply disgusted to hear that Ken and Lily Lou were married again.

My goodness, NOW! when she's got her career in her hands! She should have stayed with him in the first place if she wanted him. Oh, it just makes me SICK!" May said.

"Well, if she's happy—" Bess said doubtfully.

KEN SUCCESSFUL

"Yes, but it isn't even as if he had amounted to anything! Raymond got the low down on the whole thing. Didn't I tell you that Ken broke with his father right after Lily Lou left for the East the first time and acted perfectly disgracefully down there in South America? Raymond says he BOASTED about going down there to drink himself to death . . . yes, I know he doesn't drink now. I'm just telling you what this fellow told Raymond."

But Lily Lou said he'd made a big success with his coffee plantations. She said distinctly that he did all that by himself, without any help from his father and that was why she was so proud of him!"

"Oh, fudge!" May said. "Is there any class in a coffee plantation? Shipping coffee? If he wanted to do shipping why didn't he stay with his father, and have all that capital in back of him. Here he is nothing but a shipper when all the time he could have been in his father's office!"

Bessie worked on the sock she was darning. "Well, it's taught me something. I'm going to let my kids live their own lives. Here we broke our necks to make an opera singer out of Lily Lou and all she wanted was that Ken Sargent.

"And Ken's father broke his neck to keep them apart and take Ken in the business, and after five years they're together again and Ken's still not in his father's business!"

* * *

The newspapers had the most to say.

There was a large picture of Lily Lou and Ken, as they were sailing for South America, right after the wedding.

A HAPPY ENDING

Lily Lou was the proverbial opera star, wrapped in chinchilla, with orchids, large as any Nita Nahlman ever wore on her shoulder, smiling brilliantly.

Ken, wearing a polo coat that wasn't very different from the one he wore in the old commuting days, stood in the background, holding small Robin, a youthful sailor in blue reefer and cap, by the hand.

The newspaper caption read: "Madame Lily Lou Lansing, with her husband, Kentfield Carey Sargent—With them is Robin Lansing, Madame Lansing's child by a former marriage."

Tony was much amused when he saw the picture and the caption.

He and his friend, the chorus master, celebrated Lily Lou's wedding in a little Italian restaurant, and waxed sentimental before the evening was over.

"Fame," said the chorus master, "Fame in her fingers! And now she will never sing again! What a misfortune."

"Fame? Poof!" Tony said. "It is nothing. Does it matter if you are famous, when you are happy?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

At the meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Clubs tomorrow, each member who attends will receive a special card of instructions about the big free Sunday show to be given on May 15 at the Stanley Theater.

This card must be kept by each member and they must get it stamped, showing that they have attended four out of the next six meetings. So, boys and girls, when you receive your card tomorrow see that it is stamped and be sure and bring it with you every time you attend the meetings.

MEMBERS PRESENT

Some of the members that attended last Saturday's meeting at the Cameraphone chapter were: Howard Klingensmith, John Tauro, Joe Tauro, Junior Wisson, Edgar Baesel, Chandler Roberts, Robert Swanton, Rony Callaro, Charles Schmitt, Mary Jane Conn, Bill Richman, Patricia Roberts, Bud Bruneiser, Betty Stevenson, Janet Stevenson, Peggy Ann Conn, Grace Richmond, Jim Derivan, Dorothy Henry, Regis Murphy, Buck McClain, Betty Herr, Marion Richman.

All of these children promised Mr. Seigel, manager of the Cameraphone Theater, to bring at least one new member with them tomorrow when they attend the regular meeting.

There will be another "Scissors Circus" cut-out in next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph. The acrobatic elephants gave the youngsters loads of fun last week and to go with the elephants the cut-out this Sunday will be "Mr. Lion Rolls the Ball." Don't miss "Mr. Lion" this Sunday.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

"Take your work seriously, but not yourself"—is this your motto?

No, you are averse to concentrating every minute or even an hour while you are on your job.

For some reason you are convinced that you will "wear out" if you pay too close attention to your work.

You think it impossible for a person to give undivided attention to any one subject hour after hour without detrimental effects, physical and mental.

But there is no reason for alarm along such lines.

Few people are injured in any way from the work they do.

If you'd think less of saving yourself and more of accomplishing something worthwhile your advancement would be greater and more rapid.

Many persons think of too much work as injurious, but more than likely it is what you do with your leisure that is injurious.

To avoid things that are harmful to mind and body is sensible.

You should not so seriously consider your personal value that you will not expend the required effort in your work to make it well done.

It is more likely to be your idle time or the holidays that make you ill or unnerved.

(Copyright 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

You undoubtedly got more than a thrill out of the first big, sensational installment of "The Murder of the Night Club Lady." If you really enjoyed these opening chapters you will do your friends a real favor by telling them about it, a tingling mystery-story. It isn't too late to start this story, because the daily synopsis tells briefly but completely all that has gone before. Who killed Lola Carewe? Perhaps you can solve the murder as Thatcher Colt, super-detective, unravels the evidence.

A Step Forward

The Public Service Commission's Decision to Investigate Electric Rates Is a Victory for the People.

The decision of the Public Service Commission to investigate electric rates, especially those charged domestic consumers, marks a notable advance in the people's campaign to get just treatment from the public utilities.

The commission has yielded at least partially to the demand for fair rates; it has conceded that the fairness of the present rates is open to question. To that extent, then, public opinion has gained a victory.

In view of this development City Council need be in no hurry to accept as reasonable the picayunish rate reduction, amounting to about 10 cents a month for the average consumer, recently offered by Frank R. Phillips, president of the Duquesne Light Company, as a "take it or leave it" proposition.

If City Solicitor Waldschmidt is correct in his estimate of the cost of a suit for lower rates, it would be a burdensome undertaking; for he speaks of the necessity of spending hundreds of thousands of dollars and of consuming several years before a decision could be expected. The Public Service Commission's investigation, we trust, will relieve Pittsburgh of the need of any such procedure, while at the same time assuring us of lower rates if they are justified.

Notwithstanding the Public Service Commission's concession the fight for legislation to curb the rapacious public utilities should proceed. In view of the privileges they are given by the commonwealth and in view of the fact that their services are a necessity, the utilities should be limited to a rate that will yield them fair earnings.

They are not entitled to earnings such as a gas company serving Butler and Mercer counties was reported, in a case heard by the Public Service Commission Wednesday, to have earned in recent years. Records were introduced purporting to show that the company's dividends had averaged 19 per cent during the last nine years and were 84⅔ per cent in 1922 and 60 per cent in 1925. Public utilities with such earnings should be required to reduce their rates.

The Public Service Commission's plan to take the initiative itself in an inquiry into the fairness of electric rates, and not require private citizens to bear the expense, inspires the hope that other utility rates also will come under official scrutiny.

The Talbot Act Upheld

A Conference at Harrisburg, Preparatory to Another Legislative Session, Is in Order.

The Supreme Court, by a 4-to-3 vote, has upheld the constitutionality of the Talbot act, under which the Legislature at its recent special session appropriated $10,000,000 for poor relief.

The minority agreed with Gov. Pinchot that the act was in conflict with that section of the Constitution which forbids donations by the state to charity, but the more liberal interpretation prevailed.

The decision will be a godsend to Philadelphia, where the relief committee has just issued its last food orders to the 60,000 families under its care and where other resources were lacking. Philadelphia will receive about $2,500,000 of the Talbot appropriation.

Allegheny County, though apparently not quite so hard pressed as Philadelphia, will also appreciate the state relief, of which our share is to be about $1,700,000.

It is to be hoped no time will be lost in raising and disbursing the money.

Now that the way has been paved for state appropriations, another special session of the Legislature is in order, for the Talbot donation is inadequate.

Before the Legislature meets, however, a conference of political, business and welfare leaders should be held at Harrisburg to devise a program. There should be general agreement on the plan before the session starts, that wrangling may be avoided and time and money saved.

With the state now authorized by the Supreme Court to take care of the unemployed, there is no reason why Pittsburghers should approve the proposed $5,000,000 relief bond issue on which they are to pass in the forthcoming election. Interest and sinking fund charges on the bonds would have to be raised by taxing real estate, which is already overburdened. The state has other means of raising money.

The upholding of the Talbot act does not make it less necessary that the Harris "family-help-family" plan shall be a success. Allegheny County requires all that it can get under the Talbot act and several millions of dollars additional to feed its 28,000 destitute families.

Nor should there be any let up in the promotion of city and county public works to provide employment.

Mt. Vernon

Great Washington Shrine Is in Safe Hands—
Let Congress Keep It There

The House of Representatives should promptly consign to the oblivion, where it belongs, the Treadway bill for the purchase of Mt. Vernon by the federal government, which has just been reported to the House.

Congress has before it at the present time many urgent matters of vital concern. It will do well to attend to them with as much intelligence as it can muster. It has no time to waste.

Any of the time of Congress spent upon debate of the Treadway bill would be worse than wasted. Such a debate would be pernicious.

Mt. Vernon is in excellent hands. It is the duty of Congress to see that it remains there. The Mt. Vernon Ladies' Association has saved and embellished this national shrine, beloved above all others by the American people. They give to it a loving care that all the federal boards and commissions could never give.

These patriotic women took possession of the home of Washington at a time when Congress was indifferent to its fate. They rescued it from possible destruction. They restored it. They opened it to all the people of the land, with its rich store of historic treasures associated with the simple daily life of Washington.

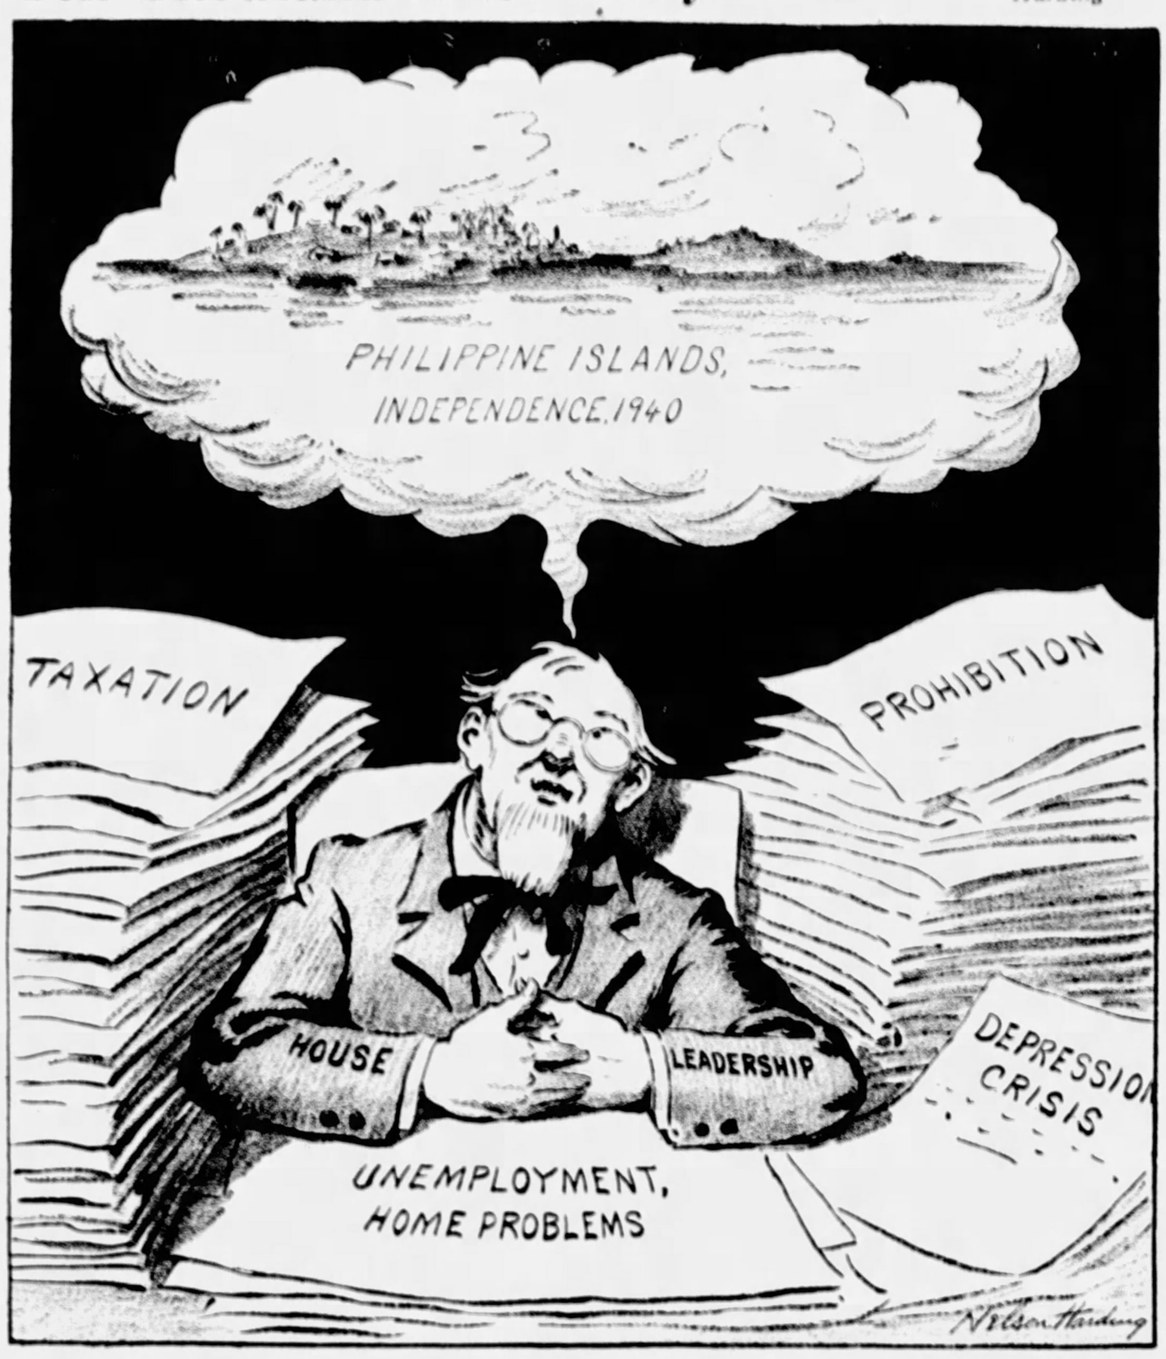
But for the patriotic service to the nation of these splendid women, Mt. Vernon by this time probably would have been converted into a suburban subdivision, and the home of Washington torn down or remodeled into a garage.

What Congress neglected to do, these women of America did. They now oppose the Treadway bill, which seeks to remove Mt. Vernon from the safe hands which for so long have guarded it. In this they will be supported by all right-thinking Americans.

Mt. Vernon has been kept free from all exploitation, including political exploitation.

Let us keep it so. Congress should defeat this bill by an overwhelming vote when it comes up for consideration. It should not have been reported from the Lands Committee. Having been reported, it should be beaten.

Ten Thousand Miles Away! -:- By Nelson Harding



We often hear a dreamer say:
"I was a thousand miles away."
Here's one who strays ten thousand miles,
In thought, to far Pacific Isles.

With all that work to do at home,
This is no time for minds to roam,
But who can tell just where to find
The politician's roaming mind?

'Stupid Complacency'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We have been reading Leon Trotsky's history of the Russian Revolution from just before the fall of the Romanoffs to the accession of the Communists. Whatever may be said against Trotsky in Russia and out, it cannot be said that he is not a genius with the pen. Among all the literary statesmen there is but one who approaches him in the capacity for vivid narrative, and, strangely enough, this is his pet aversion and supreme foe, Winston Churchill.

In these days of shaking political and social foundations everywhere, the conservatives and even reactionaries in America would do well to read this book of Trotsky's. Even these will be impressed by the fervor and self-sacrifice of the Communists. The masses are suffering under the pressure of the various plans, but they are suffering gladly, because they feel that in the end there will be a new social order in which the common man will be happier and more secure.

To find anything approaching the fervor of the people for a system, one must go to Italy where another plan is being tried. To those who believe in democracy and in such institutions as we have here, it must be appalling to realize that millions are willing to suffer and die for a principle and policy hostile to our own.

In this country how few there are among the powerful who are willing to suffer the loss of a penny for the preservation of our institutional life.

Dr. Fosdick Is Not a Demagogue

No one will accuse the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, brilliant pulpit orator of New York, of being in sympathy with Communism or lax in his devotion to our American forms. He speaks in the most beautiful church in the city and to a congregation of the intellectuals and the rich. He is not a demagogue. He has just called attention to the fervor in Russia and the utter lack of fervent devotion to our ideals here. And he says:

"How can we as a nation be so apathetic in the face of the economic tragedy, the political stupidity and crookedness and the criminal ascendancy that now confronts us? In the long run we will not defeat Communism by denouncing it. We will defeat Communism only by surrounding it with a similar devotion to our own social ideals of economic justice and public service. Troubled times are ahead unless this nation can shake itself free from its stupid self-complacency and selfish materialism to lay hold upon its chance of building here a better society."

But we look in vain for evidence of a realization on the part of the powerful that the preservation of democracy and of our American institutions depends on putting into operation drastic social and industrial reforms. Instead we find the smug assumption that we can patch the old wagon here and there and rumble along a little longer.

* * *

Heard No More Of That

One year ago, men of substance in the industrial and financial sphere were placing an intelligent interpretation upon the meaning of these times. They were admitting that something must be done for social justice; that there must be drastic reforms in our industrial system by the industrialists themselves; and that government must do its part. They were admitting that there is no such thing as overproduction, and that underconsumption is our trouble; that the machine age calls for readjustments in hours and days of labor to give to men their inalienable right to work; that some way must be found to give to workers a sense of security in their jobs; that we must abandon the idea that human beings who have worked constantly all their lives can in old age be thrown upon the human scrap heap like so much rubbish to rot and starve; that some form of insurance must be found; that we would have been better off had we given a more generous share of the joint fruit of capital and labor to the workers.

Then, suddenly, we heard no more of that. We have often wondered just what happened? Did the stoneblind reactionaries discipline the enlightened and tell them to close their mouths?

* * *

What Do We See About Us?

We need not become hopelessly pessimistic by frankly facing the realities in America today. The ostrich which sticks its head into the sand to escape danger is not a model for an intelligent man. What do we see about us?

We see 30,000,000 farmers being reduced to an economic level of the peasants of pre-revolutionary France.

We see more than 8,000,000 breadwinners eager to earn their bread denied their inalienable right to work, and 40,000,000, including their dependents, just a step ahead of beggary.

We see well-meaning, but short-sighted men and women begging dimes and dollars from door to door to prevent the starvation of the victims of our system.

We see gangs of racketeers and gunmen living brazenly on crimes of violence and beyond the control of the law, and see these increasing in numbers and impudence. Ordinarily murders in America no longer get big headlines; it is all routine.

And this all means society itself in its organized capacity, is entering the stage of disintegration.

* * *

Not One Penny for The Man at the Bottom

And what are we doing about it? The government at Washington is trying to cure the evils by helping the people at the top, but nothing has been done as yet that relieves the misery of the millions at the bottom. It is trying to maintain the earning power of money, and thinks that a part of the function of government, but is doing nothing to increase the earning power of average men, on the theory that government has "nothing to do with individuals."

We have put $2,000,000,000 at the disposal of the man at the top, but not one penny for the man at the bottom.

* * *

"Just Another Depression"

Now the railroads must be saved; there are imperative reasons, affecting everyone, why they must be. And banks with frozen assets must be saved, for their failure would reach the masses with its effect.

But none of these measures come within shouting distance of the solution of the paramount problem of saving society and our institutions through necessary readjustments making for the social justice which we do not have.

Thus there is no intemperance in Dr. Fosdick's description of the attitude of our responsible leaders and the people as one of the "smug complacency." Never in American history has the times demanded such an outstanding leadership amounting to genius as today; a leadership capable of comprehending and grappling with the social and economic evils that are responsible for our present plight. And a leadership that knows enough to know that this is not "just another depression." If the reforms required must wait on individual initiative, nothing will be done.

Ten and 12 years ago we heard that the "country was tired of brilliant men and geniuses in power" and wanted to be comfortable with just ordinary men. Now the call is for an extraordinary man to lead and drive us out of the morass.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

How to Be a Woman-Charmer

I am always surprised when I receive a letter from a man asking me how to make a woman love him. I thought that the modern man's greatest problem was how to make the women STOP loving him.

* * *

There are so many guaranteed, fool-proof ways to charm the Fair Sex, that almost any man could be a riot with the women, if he chose to take the trouble. And the TIME! But it seems that there are still lots of men who lack the "technique."

A man can always charm a woman by the simple device of flattering her. The path to the feminine heart is covered with applesauce. Flattery may sometimes frighten a man; but no WOMAN ever got enough of it!

* * *

No woman can ever forget a man who has told her that she has beautiful shoulders, wonderful eyes or a cute little nose. It sinks in! He doesn't need to be subtle or to wrack his brains for new and original methods. The same old stock forms will do. Just say it with words of one syllable—and her imagination will be the rest. You can't lay it on too thick.

* * *

Another way to make a woman think of you as her "dream-boy" is to LISTEN to her, while she talks about herself. This sounds easy; but the man who can listen to a woman with more than one ear and one brain-cell is far more rare and precious than lots of things in the Metropolitan Museum.

Almost any man can win a woman these days with a little chivalry or a gesture of gallantry. Every woman loves a Sir Walter Raleigh. Every woman falls for the protecting, "I'll-take-care-of-you-little-girl" manner. Every girl yearns to be "protected"—even when there's nothing to be protected from.

* * *

But the shortest cut to any woman's imagination is via the Love-Route. No woman's heart can fail to hold a soft spot for a man who can convince her that he finds her adorable, desirable and irresistible, and knows how to say it with WORDS! Of all the clever "lines" ever sung or pulled, there is none so effective as "I love you!" Even when a girl doesn't believe it, it thrills her to HEAR it!

* * *

Oh, yes, there are a thousand ways to charm a woman. It's SO easy! But, the first, last and only rule is, "Forget yourself and STAR THE WOMAN!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 8.—Thoughts while strolling: Resemblance Day—Edgar Selwyn and Walter Lippmann look alike. So do Jack Haley and Mayor Walker and Sailing Baruch and Charles I. Scott. And Patsy Kelly and Hope Williams walk alike. A gravity about the Lambs these days.

Odd how most of us now look upon Von Hindenburg as just a gentle old man. No one can be in so many places in a day as Bide Dudley. Save perhaps the late Louis Mann. One-word description of Achmed Abdullah—bristly. Walter Damrosch, a Breslau, Germany, boy, who made good in the city.

Sixth avenue's luncheon hour hullabaloo. Doughnut shops, cafeterias. Window vaudeville. Employment bulletins. A tattered old man writing a postcard on a fire plug. Broadway's pervading scent of apples, symbol of man's original perplexity. What's the V. A. for in John Weaver's name? Elmer Rogers of the Palace.

Elizabeth Young, the debutante in Peggy Fear's play. Berton Braley graying, too. Another of my favorite people—Gene Crawley. Looks like we go to Europe for a song this summer. And now you can hire a full dress suit for a dollar. Wherever you see George Olsen you'll see Ethel Shutta.

What's become of those meat shops with huge sausage hooked on the wall? Ed Wynne gives the idea "I'm not very good, but I'm trying." And they go ga-ga. I do the same thing, but they don't ga-ga. About time for Tommy Millard to be rounding in from Shanghai. The sudden popcorn craze.

George Jessel's a symphony in brown. He's not dressed up. He's a production. What's become of Carl Harbaugh and Eddie Dillon? Kate Smith is wearing glasses. The madonnas who halt expectantly before shop windows. Broadway's tooth-pickers. Sucking teeth. And belching with plenty.

No one can look so perky as Leonore Ulric. Spring in Bryant Park. Those huddles of lean sandwich men on the grass. Like outcrops of spikey weeds. Old women on benches dreaming, so close to a city's clamor. Life running to ashes. What's this—an afternoon with Emerson?

A fast stepping young married couple are nightly frequenters in the speakeasies with their very young son. The picture prompted Pearson McCord to recall a bit of philosophy of an old colored man in Kentucky: "If the Daddy trots and the Mammy trots, the colt don't pace."

Talk turned to a disreputable figure in the Broadway parade and Ray McCardell observed: "He has all the attributes of a cur dog—save gratitude."

* * *

A curious desolation comes to Times Square between 2 and 3 a. m. The hub-bub of life seems to evaporate like the slow rolling of a fog. Street noises simmer to a stifled hum. Foot-falls may be heard several blocks. Then all of a sudden activity is renewed with a Niagara spurt. Until 4 o'clock sidewalks overflow. The serene dregs of night bristle hideously with staccato motor honks. Explanation: Speakeasies disgorging their hordes.

* * *

There are several instances in New York of nearly white Negroes "crossing the line." Old-time newspapermen remember a fellow worker, a red-haired Negroid from Jamaica, who quit the world of his race forever and passed for white. He became a city editor, an assistant managing editor and a Sunday editor before his death. One of the well known Wall street racketeers, whose blue-sky promotions have brought great ruin to investors, is part Negro. For years he passed for white.

George Gershwin is likely the most expensive visitor Hollywood producers ever brought to the studios. They paid all his expenses for several months, including a car with a day and night chauffeur, and at the end of the visit presented him with a check for $100,000. In return the gifted Gershwin studded a talkie with a folio of his deathless tunes. But they were deleted completely in the cutting room. All of which makes Hollywood, Hollywood. Or something.

Dorothy Parker, high priestess of the intelligent, drew a dumb table companion at a recent dinner. They went through course after course without him uttering a single word, although Mrs. Parker exploited all her conversational lures. Upon tasting the salad he finally and grudgingly observed: "Excellent." And Mrs. Parker shrieked: "Old Silver Tongue is off again."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

This muddled business called life—if you only knew what it was all about; if you had a set of rules you could follow—

But you haven't. So you blunder along, never knowing what will come next, getting into the most unexpected and exasperating messes.

"But what can I do about it?" you say, helplessly. "Things just happen that way, without any reason."

You're wrong. Things do not "just happen." There is a reason for everything.

There is a reason for everything you do.

There is a reason for everything that everyone else does.

Nothing is an accident.

Nothing happens "on impulse."

Everything you do ties up with something you have done before. Every act has roots which go back to the very beginning of your life.

Yesterday, Mary, you had that dreadful quarrel with your husband. Today it makes you sick to think of that quarrel. How could you possibly have said those cruel, bitter things? Of course, things have been pretty hard lately and Jim hasn't seemed to be putting up much fight. But you know how Jim is. You've been married to him 11 years. In spite of his faults he is a grand guy. And yet, out of a clear sky came that devastating row! Why, oh why do things like that happen?

They happen because we make them happen—arrange for them to happen—Mary. That row with Jim has been brewing for 16 years; ever since your dad died when you were 15 and you, just entering Hi, had to move into a shabby house and wear hand-me-downs. A bitter pill for a youngster to take, and that bitterness has been poisoning you, secretly, ever since.

You decided then that you weren't getting the breaks. You covered your young grudge with braggadocio, wise-cracks, moody, sulky spells; but the hurt was there. The hurt was still there, after you'd left Hi, gotten a good job and were able to dress as nicely and live as well as your friends.

And every subsequent misfortune has revived the memory of that first hard knock; has intensified that secret feeling of injustice. Unconsciously, Mary, you've been carrying a grudge; and that grudge has shaped and colored thousands of acts in your life for which you thought "there was no reason." It caused that row with your husband yesterday. It will cause more rows, more bitter, resentful acts, unless you get it out of your system.

For every human act there is a reason. For everything in nature, every "act of God," there is also a reason. But our minds are still too limited to comprehend God's plan. We can, however, know why we and our neighbors do what we do. We can foresee and if necessary forestall the human acts.

That is the difference between a man and a brute. Brutes have intelligence of a sort. They can learn certain things. They can feel love and hate, fear and desire. But brutes seldom, if ever, reason. They cannot look ahead and plan their lives, preparing for some conditions, protecting themselves against others. They are at the mercy of life.

But a man can study himself, his neighbor and his environment. He can measure his resources and plan his program. He can foresee what effect certain decisions will have upon his whole life. He can think backwards and forwards.

It is possible to study how the mind works, just as it is possible to study how the body works. They are both machines, operating in accordance with definite laws.
